Red Theme Panned At Gridiron Banquet

By MIKE FEINSILBER

There was a little bit of Red for everyone to see last night as members of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity, heartily lampooned campus, administration, and town personalities at their annual gridiron banquet.

Everyone from the grass-squashing ROTC marchers to the "Best-Dressed" president, "whose brother is with the government" to the general manager of the student operated, student radio station for students—Prof. David R. Mackey—who was asked, "But when will students ever hear the station, Mr. Mackey?", felt the sting of SDX's barbs.

Gift Suggestions To Be Discussed By Senior Class

The senior class will meet at 7 p.m. tomorrow in 106 Osmond, Richard Crafton, president, has announced. The agenda for the meeting will include committee reports.

Carolyn Pelzcar will present a report on the suggestions for the senior class gift. Suggestions for the $9000 gift can be made by members of all classes at the Student Union desk in Old Main until Friday.

The senior ball committee report will be made by Walt Back, chairman. An explanation of Class Night and awards will be presented by Richard Gibbs.

The last report will be by Nancy White, chairman of the committee appointed to study the possibility of eliminating finals for seniors.

And the University Provost, Adrian O. Morse, rebutted with the snappy sting of a New England lobster.

Morse, who promised he was "going to make a good appearance," since he "borrowed these clothes from the President of the University," was this year's "Sweetheart of Sigma Delta Chi." "When any good newspaperman feels like exercising," Morse quipped, "he lies down 'til the feeling goes away. Of course, if he lies down too long, he becomes a professor of journalism."

And Morse kidded the house-mother-wary fraternities—"expectant fraternities, a houseful of boys expecting a mother." But he reassured the Greeks that it was

Senate Group May Consider Dating Changes

Suggested changes in hours and qualifications for chaperons, described in the new fraternity social code, will probably be considered this morning by the Senate committee on student affairs, Henry S. Brunner, chairman, said yesterday.

If any comprehensive changes are made which would require the committee to submit a report to the University Senate, they may be submitted tomorrow, Brunner said.

Thomas Schott, Interfraternity Council president, presented the suggested changes, drawn up by the IFC Board of Control, to the committee last Wednesday.

No Action Last Week

Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, said no action was taken then as there was not sufficient time at last week's meeting to consider the suggestions.

When the suggestions were made, neither Kenworthy nor Schott would say specifically what the suggested changes were.

Last week Kenworthy indicated he would explain the suggested changes after they are considered by the committee.

Similar to President's Ideas

Schott said fraternity presidents would have an approximate idea as to what the suggestions were because they were similar to those discussed by them when they met March 10.

At that time the presidents asked Schott to represent them at a meeting with President Milton S. Eisenhower to discuss the drinking and dating policy which goes into effect Sept. 1, 1954.

The suggested changes presented to the committee are those discussed when Schott met with President Eisenhower and Kenworthy. They met three times.

Object to Chaperons

The presidents' major objections to the new policy concerned the extensive use of chaperons, qualifications for chaperons, and the limitations on the time when women would be permitted in the houses.

They asked Schott to present to President Eisenhower a request for longer hours when women could be in fraternities and a request for more lenient choice of chaperons.

Dating in fraternity houses must end at 8 p.m. Sunday, according to the new policy. Under the present unchaperoned dating code, dating is permitted in fraternity houses until 11 p.m. Sunday.

The presidents expressed a particular interest in reducing the requirement that alumni chaperons be of ten years' standing.

In the new code proper chaperonage is defined as two couples, three adults, or a part-time house mother. In addition to alumni, chaperons may be chosen from members of the University faculty or staff, fraternity advisers, and parents of chapter members.

The new policy provides that chaperons will be required at all times women are present, except in cases of "dry" houses. These houses may have limited unchaperoned dating.

No other business will be conducted at tonight's meeting, Schott said.

29 Are Caught In Speed Trap

Twenty-nine motorists were caught in State College yesterday as violators of the 35 m.p.h. speed zone on Atherton street.

This was the third trap set by police in a campaign to slow down drivers on the town streets, bringing the total to 81 arrests. The fastest speed was timed at 53 m.p.h., according to Chief John R. Juba. He said the tests will continue indefinitely.

James Rugh, eighth semester Business Administration major, and R. W. Scollon, research assistant in Industrial Film Research Progress, were the only two caught from the University.

Ike Wants Increased Tariff Authority

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—President Eisenhower urged a hesitant Congress today to give him increased authority to reduce tariffs and seize the initiative in smashing "unjustifiable barriers" to expanded world trade.

Many Republicans applauded Eisenhower's broad objectives. But from strategically placed members of a party of high tariff traditions came predictions that the President will have to settle for considerably less than he wants.

The bid for more power to lower import duties was the pivotal point in a special 5000 word message to Congress that set forth Eisenhower's foreign economic policy.

"For our own economic growth," the President said, "we must have continuously expanding world markets; for our security we require that our allies become economically strong. Expanding trade is the only adequate solution for these two pressing problems confronting our country."

Specifically, he asked Congress to extend the reciprocal trade agreements law for three years beyond its June 12 expiration date and add to its extra authority for him to negotiate cuts in American tariffs in exchange for reductions in tariffs of other nations.

Robert Kean (R-NJ), a top Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, said he is for all this but doesn't believe Congress will go for it. "An extension of the present law," he said, "is about the best we can expect. Sen. Martin Humphrey (D-Minn) said that "Democrats can't muster enough votes to get the thing through," and the Republicans will reject it.

The presidential message reflects a shift in emphasis from aid to trade. Give-away economic aid for other countries should come to an end as soon as possible," Eisenhower said.

"While a reduction in aid will step up pressure for a resumption of the old pattern of trade between the West and Communist nations," Eisenhower said, an increase in peaceful trade, "so far as it can be achieved without jeopardizing national security, and subject to our embargo on Communist China and North Korea, should not cause us undue concern."

There were other proposals, too, for: Giving foreign firms an even break on U.S. government purchases if American bidders are treated on an equal basis in their countries.

Stimulating a freer exchange of currencies, more American investments abroad, and a stepped up volume of international travel.
