

Simes Announces New Traffic Policy

Dean of Men Frank J. Simes Tuesday announced students who have incurred fines from traffic violations will have 48 hours to pay them after they have appeared before Traffic Court.

Simes said the new policy was being put into effect because some students have failed to pay fines promptly. If fines are not paid during the 48 hour period, the car of the violator will be sent home, Simes said.

Frosh Women Will Continue Room Selection

Second semester freshman women holding room selection numbers from 151 to 625 will select rooms tonight at the Dean of Women's office, according to Mrs. Cordelia L. Hibbs, assistant to the dean of women in charge of housing.

Coads holding these numbers will select in the following order: those who have numbers 151 to 215 will select from 6:30 to 7 p.m.; numbers 216 to 475 from 7 to 7:30 p.m.; and numbers 476 to 625 from 7:30 to 8 p.m.

Room selection numbers were drawn yesterday and coeds holding numbers from 1 to 150 selected rooms last night.

Roommates may use the lowest of their two numbers when choosing rooms, but both numbers must be presented.

Any freshman women who have not drawn and desire rooms next semester must draw Friday in the Dean of Women's office.

Eight-week students will draw and select rooms after Easter vacation. The date will be announced later.

Greek Week Called Success

The 1954 Greek Week was "very successful," John Carpenter, co-chairman for the week, has reported.

Greek Week ended Saturday night with houseparties after the Interfraternity-Panhellenic Council Ball Friday night in Recreation Hall.

Other events for the week included work projects March 27; IFC-Panhel Sing, won by Tau Kappa Epsilon and Kappa Alpha Theta; outstanding pledge banquet; exchange dinners; and the annual spring banquet Thursday night. Beta Theta Pi won the outstanding fraternity award at the banquet.

Sigma Phi Sigma and Chi Omega were awarded outstanding scholarship awards at the banquet, and Beta Sigma Omicron and Phi Epsilon Pi were given first prizes for the Greek Week poster contest. Both were winners in last year's poster contest.

Engineers Will Hold Open House

The open house to be sponsored by the College of Engineering and Architecture from 1 to 5 p.m. on Saturday will include exhibits from the Departments of Aeronautical Engineering, Electrical Engineering, Architecture, and Agricultural Engineering.

Chairman of the annual open house is Bryan Troutman, seventh semester electrical engineering major.

The Aeronautical Engineering department will exhibit a wind tunnel, water table, and the static deflection test of an airplane wing.

The wind tunnel housing a jet trainer model has air speeds of 130 miles per hour. Small pieces of cotton attached to the model will show how air flows around the plane at different altitudes.

The electrical engineering displays, representing both the fields of power and electronics, will feature an oscilloscope showing visitors what their voices look like and an organ powered by the chemical action of lemons. The organ music will be transmitted by light and then converted back into sound by a photo-transistor.

The architectural display will be located on the third and fourth floors of Main Engineering Building and will include design problems, structural drawings, and art work.

The agricultural engineering exhibit will cover the four phases of agricultural engineering: land development, power and machinery, rural electrification, and farm structures. If weather permits, farm machinery will be on exhibit on the mechanical engineering parking lot.

Thurston Retires From Ag Faculty

Henry W. Thurston Jr., professor of plant pathology, has retired with emeritus rank after 24 years on the faculty, President Milton S. Eisenhower has announced.

A graduate of the University of Illinois, Thurston received his Ph.D. degree at Columbia University. He was appointed to the Penn State faculty in 1919 as assistant professor of botany and in 1934 was promoted to associate professor of plant pathology. He was appointed full professor in 1944.

Before coming to Penn State, from 1915 to 1917, he worked with the U.S. Department of Agriculture as a plant pathologist.

Simes also announced that beginning after Easter vacation, suspension of driving privileges will carry over into the fall semester. This is to equalize the penalties with those given earlier in the semester, Simes said. Since there will be only seven weeks of school left after vacation, suspending driving for the remainder of the semester would not be an equal penalty to a suspension given earlier in the semester.

The length of time the suspension will carry over into the fall semester will depend upon when a violation is incurred, Simes said. A student whose car was sent home immediately following Easter vacation, would get his driving privileges back sooner than a student who incurred a violation near the end of school.

Simes also announced a new traffic policy for graduating seniors. He said that a graduating senior who incurs repeated violations will be dealt with as a discipline case, instead of through traffic court. This policy was considered because sending home the car of a student who has only four or five weeks of school left would be no penalty, Simes said.

Graduates Drop Cabinet Petition For Seat, Vote

Graduate Student Council dropped its petition for a seat on All-University Cabinet because such a position would have made graduate students subject to cabinet's jurisdiction, Moylan Mills, council member and editor of the Graduate Newsletter, said yesterday.

The council originally wanted to petition for a seat on cabinet, but wished no vote. Later cabinet representatives suggested council petition for voting privileges.

According to Mills, council thought the proposal would put graduate students below the level of undergraduates. He said they felt both groups should be on an equal plane.

When council has a matter it wants to present to cabinet, or when it wants to express opinions or advice on an issue, a council representative will attend cabinet in an unofficial capacity, Mills said.
