

Whartons to Assist Miss 'State' Judging

Mr. and Mrs. B. Carl Wharton will assist Mary Pickford, stage and screen star, and Evelyn Ay, "Miss America of 1954," in judging the five finalists vying for the title of Miss Penn. State.

Coronation ceremonies will be at 8:30 p.m. Monday in Recreation Hall.

Wharton, who was graduated from the University in 1927, is general agent for the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Company for the south central part of Pennsylvania. He is past president of the Harrisburg General Agents and Managers Association and immediate past president of the Pennsylvania Association of Life Underwriters.

Held Several Positions

Wharton received the National Quality Award for eight years and is a life member of the Leaders Round Table of the State Association. A member of the Lions Club of Harrisburg, he is past president of the Industrial Club of Harrisburg. In 1948 he was general chairman of the Red Cross Fund Raising Campaign for the Harrisburg area.

Two years later, Wharton was general chairman for the Community Fund Raising Campaign for Harrisburg and vicinity. He is now vice president of the Harrisburg Community Chest and Council.

Banquet for Finalists

A banquet for the five finalists, who are Phoebe Erickson, Ruth Grigoletti, Nancy Hagey, Nancy Van Tries, and Jane Yahres, will be held immediately preceding the coronation. Judges of the finalists will attend the dinner.

Seymour Lazarus, eighth semester education major, will emcee the coronation ceremonies. Music will be provided by Lynn Christie and his campusers.

Correction

Fred Seipt, fourth semester dairy husbandry major, was elected vice president of the Agriculture Student Council instead of secretary as was reported yesterday in the Daily Collegian.

David Morrow, fourth semester dairy husbandry major, was elected secretary of the council.

Gov. Fine --

When asked to comment on the effects of the Pechan Act, the law which requires loyalty oaths from all state employees, the Governor said he could not make any definite statements. He explained that he had no definite results, either good or bad, to cite and said that he had heard many people arguing both sides of the law. The Pechan act was passed in 1951, the first year of Fine's administration.

To Resume Private Practice
The Governor said after he leaves office in January, he tentatively has planned to resume his private law practice in Luzerne county. He said he wanted a chance to relax after his busy schedule as governor.

In response to a question about the outstanding accomplishment of his administration, Fine listed the expansion of the state health programs and extension of the merit system to health employees first. Other action he deemed "important" were: revisions to the school laws increasing remuneration of school employees, measures to combat alcoholism, extension of the state highway system so that by January there will be no unimproved state roads remaining, extensions to the Pennsylvania turnpike, and the coal conference to discuss the ills prevalent in the coal regions.

Mortar Board Taps Thirteen

Thirteen junior women were tapped by Mortar Board, senior women's hat society, this morning. The women were serenaded by the active chapter of Mortar Board last night. They were pledged early this morning, and then honored at a breakfast in Simmons Hall.

Women tapped were Aurelia Arre, Ann Cunningham, Baylee Friedman, Sylvia Grube, Janice Holm, Mary Lee Lauffer, Margaret McClain, Polly Moore, Kathryn Reynolds, Iris Rodgin, Joyce Shusman, Maud Strawn, and Nancy Ward.

Qualifications for membership to the society are service to the University, leadership in campus activities, and a 3 average above the All-University women's average.

Millie Mershon, with her Marilyn Monroe stance, is perfect in the part of Mignonette, the Bonnard's maid. The audience loved the scene where she is "pinned" with a medal by Desmond.

Perform Well
Ann Patterson as Sally, Lee Stern as Doctor Gagnon, Myron Cole as Alfred, and Ron Taylor as Mr. Frye do well enough in their roles. Miss Patterson shaped up immensely in the last act, and Cole had the audience roaring with laughter.
