

Three Coeds Win Panhel Scholarships

Three independent women were awarded $75 Panhellenic Scholarships by Panhellenic Council last night. The women are Inez Alt-house, fourth semester journalism major; Elizabeth Hebelka, fourth semester physics major; and Florence Wojick, second semester liberal arts major.

Packard Named Representative For Conference

Joan Packard, president of Leonides, will represent Leonides at the National Student Association Congress, Aug. 22 through 31, at the University of Iowa, Ames, Ia. Leonides voted that one representative will be sent with all expenses paid. However, council decided to divide the expense if additional Leonides represented the group at the congress. The registration fee is paid by All-University cabinet.

Nancy White, past president of WSGA urged the representatives of Leonides to aid the Penn State Alumni Association in their drive for membership by encouraging the senior women in their units to join the association. Miss White stated the advantages of the group as a link with Penn State after graduation and a group to aid seniors in their associations and contacts in new communities. She gave the representatives posters to take back to their units.

Helen Spagnola, a Leonides representative, was elected as a representative to the Penn State Christian Association in their discussions of various campus activities. PSCA will organize with the international colloquium and the Marriage Council for the discussions with leaders in the fields.

2 HEc Stipends Are Established

Two scholarships have been established by the Pennsylvania Restaurant Association for students in the College of Home Economics who are Pennsylvania residents.

The purpose of the scholarships is to encourage more men and women of ability to enter the field of hotel and restaurant administration and management. They will be awarded on the basis of scholarship and need for financial assistance.

The University Board of Trustees Friday approved the plan which will provide two $200 scholarships, beginning in September, according to President Milton S. Eisenhower.

LSA Will Hold Senior Banquet

The Lutheran Student Association will hold its annual senior banquet at 6:30 p.m. Friday in the Fellowship Hall of the Student Center, 412 W. College Avenue.

Edwerth E. Korte, former pastor at the University and now Chaplain at Gettysburg College, will speak. The banquet is sponsored by graduate students and alumni. Tickets may be obtained at the Student Center today.

Grad Students to Hold Dance in WD Lounge

The Graduate Student Association will sponsor a dance for graduate students from 9 p.m. to midnight Friday in the West Dorm Lounge.

Music for the dance, which is free to graduate students, will be provided by Lynn Christy and his Campusers. Faculty members are invited.

Officers' Names Due

Clubs, social fraternities, honoraries, and other groups must turn in names of newly elected officers by Saturday at the Student Union desk in Old Main in order to be included in next year's Student Union Directory, according to George L. Donovan, director of associated student activities.

The sorority rushing schedule for next fall was approved by the council after the length of evening coke dates was changed to 45 minutes and dates for open houses were changed from Sept. 17 to 18 to Sept. 18 and 19.

2 Evening Coke Dates
The new coke date times are from 6:30 to 8 p.m. One half hour was added to the time. The change will permit rushees to accept two coke date invitations in one evening and allow sororities more time to talk to rushees.

The open house date change was made to avoid a conflict with registration of rushees on Sept. 17. There was also a possible conflict with university registration.

The rest of the rushing schedule was unchanged. Pre-registration will be made by rushees this spring, and fall registration will be held on Sept. 17 and 18. The open houses will be held Sept. 18 and 19; coke dates, Sept. 20 to 24; at homes, Sept. 26; parties, Sept. 27 and 28; and coffee hours, Sept. 30.

Preferential Signing
Rushees may sign preferentials in Atherton Hall after coffee hours or on Oct. 1 in Old Main. The council voted to issue the rushing booklet during the summer to women who registered for rushing in the fall.

As an improvement over the old rushing booklet, the new publication will include the invitation forms sent by sororities to rushees and the proper replies that may be made by the rushees.

Louise Moreman, Panhel president, asked that one senior from each sorority attend a meeting at 12:30 p.m. today in Grange playroom at which Nancy White will explain the operations of the Penn State alumni association.

Philotes Will Honor Seniors at Dinner

Philotes, independent women's social organization, will hold a farewell dinner for graduating senior members at the Tavern Monday night.

Results of Spring Carnival were discussed Monday by Philotes. The group decided to hold its first meeting of the fall semester the first Monday evening of classes.

Dorm Nicknames Have Forerunners

By JOE BEAU SEIGNEUR

Pollock 10 which housed coeds early last fall semester was nicknamed Stalag 17, but Devil's Den and the Bright Angel probably never have occurred to anyone recently as names for dormitories.

Back in 1903, two temporary buildings were put up west of the Armory to house male students. Gen. James A. Beaver, former governor of Pennsylvania, had just returned from a western trip and brought with him some "gung-ho" (as most of us would probably dub it) names. Bright Angel and Devil's Den were his particular favorites.

A few years later both dormitories were chopped in half. No one is quite certain what happened to Devil's Den (no relation to the Snack Bar), but one-half of Bright Angel was reconverted into a forestry shed. Photographs reveal the Forestry Building much as it is today, with a small wooden wing attached to it.

The other half lost the name of Bright Angel completely, being more mysteriously dubbed the Pest House, Penn State's first infirmary for contagious diseases. It was located approximately in the middle of Beaver Field.

The main health service was set up in the home of the Dean of the School of Mines, located in an orchard north of Carnegie Hall.

Eventually the Pest House was removed when in 1909 beautiful New Beaver Field took its place. "Beautiful New Beaver Field" then amounted to a few tempor-

Khayam Expressed Decay in 'Rubaiyat'

By GAY SNODGRASS

The college student of today gets it from all sides. Prohibitionists denounce him for being alcoholic—philosophers silently brood about his materialism—ascetics point a thin-veined finger at him for being pleasure-seeking—and missionaries invoke the wrath of God upon him for his anti-Christianity.

They all agree upon one thing, however—that he is a product of a diseased 20th Century. At no other time in the history of the world, these critics rave, has man been in such a state of moral decay.

And yet an 11th Century poet-scientist expressed these same traits of "decay" in a now-famous book of verses. Omar Khayam, in his "Rubaiyat" rejected Logic for Wine when he wrote: "For 'Is' and 'Is-Not' though with Rule and Line And 'Up-And-Down' by Logic I define, Of all that one should care to fathom, I Was never deep in anything but —Wine."

Khayam was born in Persia near the end of the 11th Century. A promising student in school, he became a close friend of the future Vizier to the sultan. The two made a pact to share any fortune the other might acquire.

When Khayam's school friend became Vizier, Khayam asked only for a small pension so he could devote his life to study.

Although Khayam soon became famous throughout Persia as a scientist and man of knowledge, he found no truth either in knowledge or religion. In the words of Edward Fitzgerald, whose translation of the "Rubaiyat" is considered by many to surpass the original, Khayam failed to find "any Providence but Destiny, and any World but This."

The disillusioned man of knowledge came to the conclusion that sensual pleasure is the only worthwhile purpose of life—philosophical musings are only tiresome blind allies.

No matter what he did, Khayam could not shake off his conviction that the hand of Fate was relentlessly guiding his steps.

The anguish Khayam experienced in arriving at his rather hopeless beliefs, however convinced he was of their truth, is revealed in these lines near the end of the "Rubaiyat":

"Ah Love! could you and I with Him conspire To grasp this sorry Scheme of Things entire, Would not we shatter it to bits —and then Re-mould it nearer to the Heart's Desire!"

NCU Student Dies in Brawl

An all-night beer and card fraternity party at the University of North Carolina Saturday ended with one student dead and two others badly wounded, after a sudden burst of gunplay.

Putman Davis Jr., son of a wealthy Greenwich, Conn. family, was killed. Davis was reportedly to have started the shooting.

William H. Joyner, of Summit, N.J., was shot in the back and reported in very critical condition. Allen B. Long, of Chevy Chase, Md., was shot through the shoulder. He was not believed seriously hurt.

The three were members of the Phi Delta Theta chapter at the university.
