Terrific Trio

THE McCLOSKEY TRIPLETS who have gained national prominence with their entrance to Penn State are (left to right) Julie, Joyce and Jean. Now residents of State College, the three redheads were born in Washington, D.C. Julie will study home economics; Joyce, art education; and Jean, elementary education. The women, first triplets in the history of the University, have promised to wear different clothing so professors will be able to distinguish them apart. What's the next thing that's going to happen this year?

Orientation Schedule Announced

New students on campus will be greeted and introduced to social and academic aspects of University life through a week of meetings, tours, and conferences with representatives of administration, faculty, and students.

Orientation week is designed to acquaint new students with the University and with each other. It also provides an opportunity for the University to know the new student through necessary testing.

New students can obtain information and directions from members of Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, who will operate a booth at the intersection of the Mall and Pollock road. Student counselors will also be on hand to aid in the orientation program.

Hatmen, Women To Counsel Frosh

Hatmen and hatwomen will attend a dinner at 8:30 tonight at the Nittany Lion Inn prior to the beginning of their three counseling sessions with new students.

Counseling sessions for new men will be held at 6:45 p.m. tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday in assigned rooms of campus buildings.

Members of Chimes, junior women's hat society, and Cwens, sophomore women's hat society, will meet with freshman coeds at 10 p.m. tomorrow, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday in their residence hall units.

Both men and women will tour the campus with members of the five men's hat societies and two women's groups as guides before they go to Recreation Hall to hear President Milton S. Eisenhower welcome the new students to the University.

On Tuesday night, registration procedures will be explained to men. Other topics for discussion will include study requirements, buying books, handling money, the University Health Service, and campus regulations concerning parking, and women's hours.

On Wednesday night, the customs program, general conduct of students, activities, social life, honorary and professional societies, and religion will be discussed.

Women will meet with Dean of Women Pearl O. Weston at 6:15 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab Auditorium, before they tour the campus and go to Recreation Hall to hear President Eisenhower.

On Tuesday, Women's Student Government Association will explain its purpose, organization, and functions to new women students at 6:45 p.m. in Schwab Auditorium. On Wednesday, the Women's Recreation Association will be explained to the women and on Thursday evening, Panhellenic Council and Leonides, women's independent organization,

President to Speak; Dorms Will Be Full

By PHIL AUSTIN

Orientation Week begins today with the arrival of 3531 new students, including 2750 freshmen, at the University.

During the week, new students will be tested and familiarized with facilities and personalities at the University. Freshmen will also receive instruction from members of men's and women's hat societies in special counseling sessions tomorrow through Wednesday.

Residence halls have been filled except some units in the Pollock Circle area where about 100 vacancies exist, Otto E. Mueller, director of housing, has reported. Women's residence halls have been filled to accommodate the 895 new coeds. A total of approximately 3000 men and 2400 women will reside in University residence halls, Mueller said.

Prexy Speaks Tomorrow

President Milton S. Eisenhower will welcome new students at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow in Recreation Hall. Jesse Arnelle, All-University president, will also speak.

Dean of Admissions and Registrar C. O. Williams said 2014 freshman men and 736 women will be admitted to the University. All but 168 men and 48 women who will commute will live in University residence halls.

Williams said 408 students, including 317 men and 91 women, are transferring to the campus from University centers, and 373—269 men and 104 women—are transferring to the University from other colleges and universities. Former students being readmitted include 143 men and 12 women. All students except those students readmitted must undergo orientation.

717 Enrolled in Centers

A total of 717 students—505 men and 212 women—will be enrolled in University centers throughout the State, and 88 men will enter the University's forestry school at Mont Alto.

Last year 3475 students participated in the orientation program. This included 2065 freshman men and 760 freshman women.

Total enrollment will be about the same as last year, Williams predicted. Last fall an enrollment of 11,638 full-time students made the University rank 11th in size among colleges and universities in the nation. Williams said his prediction was based on the demand for housing in town. Non-commuting single undergraduate women and freshman men are required to live in University residence halls. Upperclassmen may live in the borough.

Registration To Begin Wednesday

Registration—the process of selecting courses to be taken during the semester—will begin at 8 a.m. Wednesday in Recreation Hall.

Undergraduate students will register alphabetically regardless of class between Wednesday and noon Saturday.

Students will enter Recreation Hall according to the schedule found on the front of the fall semester timetables. Timetables may be bought at the Scheduling Office, 4 Willard for 20 cents. Students will be admitted only at the time designated on the timetables.

All students must pay their fees to the bursar in the basement of Willard Hall before reporting to Recreation Hall. Forms for fee payments were mailed to students in August to eliminate congestion at the Bursar's office.

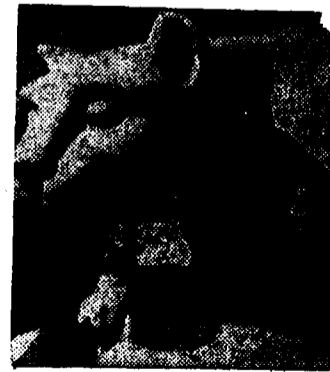

Each student must see his adviser at least 24 hours in advance of the time he is scheduled to report to Rec Hall.

Special students, University employees, and students who failed to register at their appointed time will register Saturday morning.

The system to be used this semester for the first time is designed to prevent congestion at certain stations during the registration process. Under the process, each student will register twice on each day of registration, during a four year stay at the University.

Under the old system, seniors and juniors registered before sophomores and freshmen were admitted to Recreation Hall.

Today ...

The Nittany Lion Roars

The Lion welcomes the new students who comprise the 100th group to join the Penn State family. He is also happy that they are the first class to enter the institution since it was given its new status as a University. He hopes that they will be good to his school and that it will be good to them.

Another thing, the Lion reminds them not to forget that next year is the Centennial year and the University will be having a 365-days-long birthday.

Eisenhower Welcomes New Students

Although President Milton S. Eisenhower will speak directly to the new students at 8:30 p.m. tomorrow night, he has addressed the following welcoming letter to the freshmen and transfer students:

"A cordial welcome to all students who for the first time have come to Penn State.

"I know that every member of the University staff and student body joins me in saying to you: We hope your life on the University campus will be happy, profitable, and rewarding—all you hoped it would be when you decided to come here.

"Penn State is big, but it nonetheless warm with friendship and full of personality and opportunity.

"I trust you will enjoy yourself here for the next four years or more, but also I hope you will always keep foremost in your thinking that you have come for serious purposes, which we want to help you fulfill.

"The primary interest of this University is to contribute to your development as a balanced, mature, thoughtful, competent individual.

"You will find here outstanding teachers, capable counselors, interesting companions, and valuable equipment. These present you with your opportunity: the opportunity to draw upon each of these elements in fostering your own growth and understanding.

"Keep in mind always that you must educate yourself. Others can help, in a multitude of ways, but yours is the major responsibility.

"This University, at considerable cost to the citizens of Pennsylvania, offers you a highly privileged opportunity. I know you will grasp it eagerly.

"Good luck to all of you."
