

Deans of Women, Men Give Welcome

The following welcoming letter has been written to the new students by Frank J. Simes, dean of men:

"It is with a great deal of pleasure that we in the Dean of Men's office welcome you to the campus.

"You stand on the threshold of great opportunities. How you take advantage of these opportunities will shape the course of your lives for years to come.

"One of the greatest opportunities you will have is that of profiting from the many facilities and services provided by the University to assist you in reaching sound decisions on matters of importance to you.

"Your instructors, academic advisors, counselors, and many other people are available to help you meet the many problems you will encounter during your college years.

"We urge you to consult these people when you feel you have a problem that needs attention. Taking the initiative in seeking the advice of some qualified person will undoubtedly result in a quicker and more satisfactory adjustment to college.

"Should the occasion arise when you feel you need to talk over a problem with someone feel free to come to our office, 109 Old Main."

4 LA Lectures Given Annually

Each spring the College of Liberal Arts sponsors a series of four lectures. These lectures, given by well known men in their field and university professors, cover subjects of general interest to everybody and are open to the public.

Last year the lecture series covered a wide variety of subjects and speakers. They included a talk on France by Henry M. Peyre, a Yale professor, The Meaning of Liberal Arts, by Ben Euwema, dean of the Liberal Arts College; a talk on South America by President Milton S. Eisenhower; and a lecture on the Middle East by the United Nations representative from Iraq.

Dean of Women Pearl O. Weston has directed the following letter to the new students:

"A most cordial welcome is extended to you our new students. Congratulations on choosing the Pennsylvania State University as your school for the next few years. "May you find a home away from home and the experiences and studies that will prepare you for a happy and useful life.

"We hope you will give the members of my staff and me an opportunity to know and to serve you. Our office is 105 Old Main; you are most welcome."

Dazed Frosh Find Answers At SU Desk

If you have that confused, and oh-so bewildered freshman gape as you attempt to find your way around campus, then the Student Union desk in Old Main is just what you've been looking for.

Just locate yourself on one of the countless paths crossing the University and you're sure to end up at Old Main. Here in the first floor lobby, you'll find the Student Union desk, which is the general information center of the University.

Under the direction of George L. Donovan, the Student Union desk will provide you with almost any type of service you can ask for. The desk is a distribution point for most of the campus publications including the Daily Collegian; Froth, the humor magazine; the Ag Hill Breeze, agricultural publication; and Pivot, the University's poetry magazine.

Telephone directories for nearly 300 towns and cities in Pennsylvania and neighboring states can also be found at the SU desk along with up-to-date train and bus schedules for your convenience.

The SU desk is a centralized distribution point for tickets to dramatic productions, concerts, the Community Forum speeches, and dances. Besides these functions, the SU desk is the scene

New Students --

(Continued from page one) men will enter the College of Engineering where 809 men and 21 women have been admitted. The smallest admission is in the College of Physical Education and Athletics where 28 men and 24 women will be admitted. Admissions in other colleges include 252 men and 46 women in the College of Agriculture; 274 men and 27 women in the College of Business Administration; 255 men and 29 women in the College of Chemistry and Physics; 63 men and 238 women in the College of Education; 33 men and 166 women in Home Economics; 183 men and 183 women in the College of the Liberal Arts; and 117 men and one woman in the College of Mineral Industries.

Williams said Tuesday the given figures might vary by today, with the men's withdrawals matched by late admissions and the women's totals declining through withdrawals. No more women are being admitted.

Mueller said some large double rooms in women's dormitories will be used as triple rooms, and beds have been placed in lounges of Grange, Simmons, Atherton, and McElwain Halls until permanent rooms are found for all coeds.

Bursar Handles University Fees

Financial transactions of students with the University are carried on through the Bursar's office, located in the basement of Willard Hall.

At this office, open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday and from 8 a.m. until noon Saturday, students pay fees and fines and collect money for employment by the University.

Fees must be paid by students before they may register for classes. The office has arranged a system whereby students may pay fees before coming on campus. This eliminates waiting in lines to make payment in person as well as a possible delay in registration.

Refunds are also made at the office.

Temporary facilities are also available in the office for the safe keeping of money.
