

France Agrees On Eden Plan

PARIS, Sept. 16 (AP)—Premier Pierre Mendes-France agreed today to British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden's emergency plan for a seven-nation West European defense alliance including Britain. Perhaps two more nations will join the seven in London about Sept. 27.

The new alliance would include Britain, France, a rearmed West Germany, Italy, Belgium, the Netherlands, and Luxembourg. There also were widespread reports here it would be expanded to include Norway and Denmark during London talks.

The United States and Canada also are expected to attend the London talks.

The agreement came after two-day talks climaxing Eden's flying swing through Western European capitals to save European unity after the French killed the EDC, which had not included Britain.

Eden and Mendes-France issued a joint communique today saying they were fully agreed on the importance of strengthening the Atlantic community and achieving unity "in which the United Kingdom will play a full part."

A French Foreign Ministry spokesman said that meant agreement on the basic idea of Eden's plan. Mendes-France himself announced the forthcoming London talks. The French Premier said diplomats will try to iron out differences before the London meeting.

Eden, back in London tonight, indicated to reporters he still did not have full American and French support for all phases of his program for rearming West Germany. He said a "wide measure of agreement" was reached, but warned that "a good deal of work remains to be done."

The British plan was thrown into the breach after the French National Assembly blasted a hole in European defense plans by killing the EDC treaty to set up a six-nation unified European army. This body would have put West Germans back into uniform under control of a European superstate associated with NATO. Britain gave it her blessing but would not join it.

Eden took to the air last week to sell his substitutes to the countries that signed the army treaty. He got approval from all of them. But his two days of conferences with Mendes-France gave no official answer to the question:

Will Mendes-France help put

West Germany into the North Atlantic Treaty Organization?

Germany wants equal treatment with NATO's 12 European members, the United States and Canada. The United States, Britain and some European countries are willing, but France and others are hesitant. U. S. Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has come to Europe to talk about it but will not visit France this trip.

A French Foreign Ministry spokesman today made public a passage from an off-the-record speech last week in which Mendes-France said:

"The entrance of Germany into NATO can be considered possible under certain conditions. Everything depends on the conditions and precautions."

dustry are elected at the June meeting by six delegates from each county. Of the six delegates, three represent agriculture, and three represent business and industry.

These delegates to the board are nominated through letters sent to the more than 600 groups in the state interested in the University.

The county groups caucus at the June election meeting and decide whom to support. The agriculture group and the business and industry group each vote for six in separate elections.

Between meetings of the entire board, the executive committee meets and transacts business in the name of the board. This group meets at least seven times each year.

Under the executive committee are several subcommittees which aid in the work.

These standing committees are architecture, buildings and grounds, finance, educational matters, student and staff welfare, and extension. Other special committees are appointed as needed.
