

455 Women Register For Sorority Rushing

By DOTTIE STONE

Four hundred fifty-five women students have officially registered for fall semester sorority rushing, according to Mrs. Jean H. Dubois, assistant to the Dean of Women in charge of Panhellenic affairs. Mrs. Dubois, replacing Mary E. Brewer, is helping with the Panhellenic post office in Atherton Hall. She will be there during post office hours to answer rushees' questions on rushing.

Sorority rushees, wearing school clothes, will continue to fill their sandwich hours with coke dates at sorority suites from 1 to 5 p.m. today and from 6:30 to 8 tonight.

dent positions were being compensated out of proportion to the work which they required and should be reduced.

In order to assist in the growth of University radio station WDFM, the committee recommended that organizations should make a conscientious effort to utilize the facilities of WDFM. The group also asked the patience of the student body while the station is in its infancy along with the students' cooperation in developing it.

With the aid of faculty and students, the committee felt that the program of the College Councils could be strengthened, and that the results would be beneficial to University-wide student government.

Should Abolish Secretariat

In order that the clerical work which cabinet requires could be carried out more efficiently, the encampment group recommended that the cabinet secretariat be abolished. To compensate for this, the committee suggested that a secretarial staff be organized and placed under the direction of the All-University secretary-treasurer. In addition, the group recommended that the NSA be made a special permanent cabinet committee to be responsible to the All-University president.

Suggest Standing Committees

In its final proposal, the committee suggested that cabinet undertake executive functions, in addition to its legislative powers, in the form of standing committees. These committees would be chaired by cabinet members and would be composed of the chairmen of such sub-committees as may be needed. The group also suggested that participants in the sub-committees should be selected largely but not exclusively from those who have completed a course in leadership training. It was not the purpose of the group to prohibit cabinet from appointing special committees.

Missing Man Found Dead

The body of a man missing since Labor Day was found Sunday in his shanty northeast of Moshannon.

Michael Joseph Simcisko, 69, who lived alone, was found by neighbors, dead from what is believed to be a bullet wound in his chest.

No gun or weapon was found. Police said that the body was very badly decomposed so that it has been difficult to determine anything specific about the wound which is believed to have caused the death.

No bullet has been found as yet.

Neighbors of the dead man told police they believed he carried a large sum of money on his person. According to reports, the sum was in excess of $1000.

Simcisko's body was found lying on its left side. There were signs of a struggle and the door of the building was open.

Kickoff Dance Friday

The annual Kickoff Dance before the opening football game against Illinois will be held from 8 p.m. to midnight, Friday in Recreation Hall. The dance is for the benefit of Campus Chest. Admission will be 50 cents.

Penn State Pacers

The Penn State Pacers, a group of hot-rod sport enthusiasts, will meet 7 p.m. Thursday at Triangle fraternity, 226 E. Beaver avenue. Students interested in the hot-rod sport and desiring to join the Pacers may attend.

Rushees picked up invitations yesterday morning at the Panhel post office. They scheduled coke dates from 2 to 5 p.m. and from 6:30 to 8 p.m. yesterday.

Tomorrow they will pick up invitations for Thursday and Friday and return them to Panhel post office in the afternoon. No coke dates are scheduled for Wednesday.

Rushees who accepted coke dates for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday should consider them canceled, Mrs. Dubois said. They should accept new coke dates Wednesday for Thursday and Friday.

Rushees spend about an hour in each suite, if their number of free hours permits. Rushees and sorority members talk, play cards, and sing. No refreshments are served.

No rushing function will be held Saturday. Rushees will pick up invitations for At Homes, which will take place from 2 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Each rushee may accept four invitations to At Homes.

She may not stay longer than one hour at any sorority and may not revisit the sorority that afternoon. Afternoon dresses and stockings are appropriate dress for At Homes.

The Panhel rushing booklet emphasizes that each rushee should answer every invitation she receives. If the sorority does not receive an answer, it does not know if the girl has received its invitation.

Dire Consequences Meet Unwary Frosh

By BILL PETE

The scene is the campus bulletin board. On it is a large yellow poster, offering harsh regulations and warning of dire consequences for those who disobey them—all this printed in large red letters.

Sounds like a scene from "1984", doesn't it? But actually the scene was the early 1910's and the sign was a typical proclamation that sophomore classes issued to the incoming frosh.

Any doubt about the strictness of "old-fashioned" customs will be destroyed by one glance at the pictures in the Pattee Library. In the hallway leading to the stairs there are two window cases indicating the differences between frosh customs in 1911 and those of 1954.

The handbooks in those days merely laid down a set of rules to follow. Instead of the encouragingly mellow greeting printed in the handbooks today, freshmen were greeted all over campus by menacing posters that suggested the sheer joy sophomores took in hazing the underdog.

Windows Display Differences
Although the display windows feature only such odds and ends as freshman bibles, posters, and a copy of the 1911 Penn State Collegian, they offer many interesting conclusions about customs then and now.

For example, present customs will be over sometime during the first two weeks of classes. In 1911 customs went on indefinitely sometimes for the entire semester. Today customs are not enforced on weekends. Time was, says the Penn State Collegian in the windowcase, that on Sundays the seniors would leave Chapel first, then juniors, sophomores, and lastly the freshmen.

Welcoming Speeches vs. Paddles
Today there are welcoming speeches; yesterday there were welcoming paddles. The freshman bible, in Section IV, article F, as much as begs sophomores to enforce customs.

In the good old days the sophomores, smarting from the paddle swats of the previous year, even took practice swings with their paddles in anticipation of the incoming freshmen.

Nowadays when customs are over, the new University student is accepted on an equal basis with the upperclassmen. In the time illustrated by the window display, even the sophomores had some restrictions, with the juniors and seniors still exerting considerable authority over both the freshmen and the sophomores.

Two unique examples which hung over the heads of the frosh and sophomores were the rules that a student was not allowed to wear school colors until late in the sophomore year. And that both freshmen and sophomores had to dress formally and wear jackets to all major social functions.

And although the frosh themselves were not permitted to smoke, they had to have matches handy for any and every sophomore who wanted a light.

Frosh Did Rebel

One wonders if the freshmen ever rebelled. Apparently they did. One case of the show window depicts the usual sophomore proclamation, and the other case holds a reply by the freshmen. The amusing part of the practice is that the frosh "did not post proclamations," or at least were not caught posting them, especially when they referred to the sophomores as "fourflushers."

Indeed, the frosh did rebel in 1911, and they did groan under customs even as the present frosh will. But things are different now! And to borrow a cliché, "You never had it so good."
