Published Tuesday through Saturday mornings, during the University year, the Daily Collegian is a student-operated powspaper.

The Baily Collegian

Successor to THE FREE LANCE, est. 1887

Editorials represent the viewpoint of the writers, not necessarily the policy of the paper. Unsigned edi-torials are by the editor.

Entered as second-class matter July 5, 1934 at the State College, Pa. Pest Office under the act of March 3, 1879.

TAMMIE BLOOM UNANGST, Editor

FRANK CRESSMAN. Business Mgr.

Managing Ed., Diehl McKalip; City Ed., Mike Feinsilber; Copy Ed., Mary Lee Lauffer; Sports Ed., Dick McDowell; Edit, Dir., George Bairey; Radio News Ed., Phil Austin; 20c Ed., Peggy McClein; Asst. Sports Ed., Herm Weiskopf; Asst. Soc. Ed., Manag Ward; Feature Ed., Buylee Friedman; Exchange Ed., Edwund Reiss; Librarian, Marcie MacDonald; Senior Board, Bey Dickinson.

Asst. Bus Mgr., Benjamia Lowenstein: Lecal Adv. Mgr., Sondra Duckman: National Adv Mgr., William Devers: Circulation Co-Mgrs., Richard Gordon, Gail Fromer: Promotion Mgr., Evelyn Riegel: Personnel Mgr., Carel Schwing: Office Mgr., Peggy Troxell: Classified Adv. Mgr., Dorothes. Ebert; Sec., Gertrude Malpezzi: Research and Records Mgr., Virginia Coskery.

STAFF THIS ISSUE: Night editor, Joe Beau-Seigneur; Copy editors, Al Klimcke, Dottie Stone Assistants, Earl Kohnfelder, Terry Leach, Mike Moyle. Ad Staff: Mona Signorino, Claire Murray.

Moral-Leave Locked Doors Locked!

Women's dormitory rules and regulations are regarded sometimes as inconvenient nonsensebut following one of them could, perhaps, have prevented unwelcome visits by a prowler to Thompson and Atherion Halls last weekend.

The head hostess in Atherton Hall yesterday ventured a guess as to how the prowler entered that dormitory. She said the ground floor doors had been locked and checked for the night, although it was before closing hours. A coed, the dorm through one of the doors. Although locked to the outside, they can be opened from the inside. The door didn't lock again when she

The result? Several hundred terrified coeds. The door had been locked about 9:45 p.m. as it is every night because it is impossible to lock eight doors promptly at 10 p.m.

Coeds have the right to leave a dorm at any time, as long as they are in by closing time, but they do not have the right to open locked

To usurp this right, as was demonstrated Sunday night, may be more convenient, but it can threaten the security of all who think they

Parking and Gripes

Of all the crises to strike the Penn State campus within recent years, this year's parking situation would appear to be one of the worst. At least all the gripes which have arisen concerning it would lead to this impression.

There is no doubt in anyone's mind of the fact that campus parking facilities leave much to be desired. The question is, what good will all the griping do? Parking facilities are inadequate, obviously, due to the growth in enrollment at the University in recent years. And steps are being taken to alleviate the situation. But for the present, there is nothing to be done but sit and await results.

The general attitude toward the situation recently has been nothing short of childish. And this is true not only on the part of students and other campus drivers, but also on the part of campus officials who would certainly be represented to maintain gooder heads.

expected to maintain cooler heads. At present nothing is being accomplished save the growth of animosity among all concerned. And it is obvious that a little patience by all is the order of the day.

Steps are being taken such as the improvement of present parking facilities and the creation of new ones, but the progress will not be evident for some little while. So for the present the situation might be somewhat alleviated by strict adherence to regulations. Most important of all however, a little less griping and a little more mature attitude would certainly be in order on the part of all concerned.

-Al Klimcke

Bell Merits His Honor

Louis H. Bell, the unsung gentleman who runs the public information department of the University, collected a whale of an honor this summer-and he deserves every bit of it.

Bell was cited for outstanding achievement by the American College Public Relations Asby the American College Public Relations Association. The citation praised Bell for his contribution to the association during the past tenyears and his "able, dignified and broad-gauge interpretation of the Pennsylvania State University, and thus representing American higher education, across State and Nation." citation for a man who daily faces the task of keeping possibly the most remote school in the nation (for metropolitan newspaper coverage) on the map.

The citation also praised Bell for his "brilliant and unstinting service "to the association, in particular as first editor and pathsetter of its now well-established "Newsletter" and as "far-sighted and successful vice president for

Bell has been head of the public information department since 1943 and prior to that, he served on the faculty. Bell is also a graduate of the University, so he is no stranger here.

It is a fine honor to a man who day-in and day-out does a very fine job for the University. -George Bairey are safely locked inside. The hungry coed should have used the main front door.

An old business adage is that the best way to sell something is to advertise. Many coeds inadvertantly advertise to passersby and prowlers when they neglect to draw their shades after

A large University is bound to attract many types of people, some undesirable, to its cam-pus. If a person is so natured that he is in-clined to theft or to lust, a clear view into an empty room or to one occupied by a coed may stir him to seek an open door.

Advertisement, coupled with opportunity . the unlocked dormitory door . . . is bound to attract buyers.

-Ann Leh

Froth--Unfortunately

It isn't always, but unfortunately it happens once a month. Today is Froth Day. The frothy publication is as inevitable as Penn State weather, and through somewhat similar twists of fate we're victims of circumstance and circulation. Froth Day—the day all journalists regard with great embarrassment, their closet case of the fourth estate. And with much concern we penmen view these bourgois jesters who try so valiantly to master the skills of writing. It is with saddened hearts that we realize the imwith saddened hearts that we realize the impossibility of passing on to them the wisdom of true journalism.

But Frosh, and upperclassmen as well-ve said, it happens only once a month. Froth Disease is not contagious unless one gets too close to printing presses, and such cures as mental institutions and rest homes are being improved constantly.

So bear with the monthly gag, students—it is to be tolerated and guided. Scorn is lost upon it. And ironically, its circulation staff is unbeatable. "They'll get you every time." So be it. "And so as we greet with down cast eyes

The advent of Froth's day,
We toast the day's demise
And with it freedom from the vice For one more month!"

—Peggy McClain and Nancy Ward

Registration: Success

Despite ominous predictions and many gripes and groans last spring, the new alphabetical registration schedule this semester has proved to be a success.

The second highest number of students in the history of the University—11,685— registered in the 3½ day period with comparatively few long lines. For the first time freshman and sophomores were not forced to delay taking required courses because upperclassmen, seeking electives, had filled the sections.

Thanks to an alternation in the Senate Regulations for Undergraduate Students, no upper-classmen, either, were kept from required courses. The rule change, anticipating possible snafus, states that upperclassmen would be given preference should a section be overcrowded, both on a semester and on a curriculum basis.

Registration assistants were able to keep reast of students registering. By the time the second half day of registration opened Wednesday afternoon, all IBM cards received Wednesday morning had been sorted according to category and most cards had been sorted on a sectional basis.

Perhaps the only harm done by the new registration system was to upperclassmen's pride.

—Ann Leh

Gazette...

COLLEGIAN CIRCULATION STAFF, 6:30 p.m., business office, Carnegie Hall COLLEGIAN PROMOTION STAFF, 7 p.m., 102

Willard LA LANTERN BUSINESS AND EDITORIAL STAFFS, 8:10 p.m., 104 Willard
PARMI NOUS, 8:15 p.m., Sigma Alpha Epsilon
PLAYERS' ADVERTISING MEETING, 6:45
p.m., loft of Schwab Auditorium
ROD AND COCCUS CLUB OFFICERS' MEET-

ING, 7 p.m., Patterson Hall and the state of the state of

Research Grant

A grant of $1800 to the Univertry of payrole and derivatives.

work.

Language Reading Exam Ashby Fills DIR Post

The foreign language reading Jefferson D. Ashby, who has sity by the Research Corp. of examination, required for all been assistant to the director of sity by the Research Corp. of examination, required for all the Division of Intermediate Regi-New York City will continue sup-candidates for advanced degrees, stration for the past two years, port of research on the chemis- will be given Nov. 1. Appli- has been named director of the cants must register before Oct. 4. division. Philip S. Skell, assistant professor of chemistry, is conducting the sor of chemistry, is conducting the sor of chemistry, is conducting the sor of chemistry and sor of chemistry. Sparks.

Duke University.

Little Man on Campus

By Bibler

"Oh heck no-my mattress sags."

'Potential Powder Keg' -

Trieste Looks Like

Instructor, History

(This is the first in a series of articles by University faculty members. Dr. Thaden has earned his advance degrees at the University of Zurich in Switzerland and at the University of Paris. He presents a first-hand report on the Trieste situation in this, the first of two articles. Dr. Thaden's second article will appear in Saturday's Daily Collegian.)

At first glance, Trieste appears not too different from a typical Italian seaport town like Naples.

In both Trieste and Naples, there is a narrow plain near the sea with white-facaded, modern buildings and wide streets. The hills towering above the port are criss-crossed with the narrow winding streets of an old city, with its animated, chattering humanity shaded from the hot sun by drying laundry hanging between windows and the stone walls of houses whose top stories nearly meet overhead.

town and environs inevitably dispels much of the initial impres-be assured by the Security Counsion one might have of Trieste cil of the United Nations. as a typical Italian town.

Trieste's geographical position and history provide us with the essential explanation for her rather unique position as a city of Italian culture—at least 70 per cent of Trieste's population claims Italian as their native tongue—which is economically and historically a part of central Europe, not of Italy.

The geographical and economic ports and imports of these two countries naturally pass through Trieste, whose position at the northern end of the Adriatic makes her the nearest proct to Austria and the most practical one for Yugoslavia. Tito's nation otherwise lacks good ports, nation otherwise lacks good ports, because of inadequate transportation facilities over the mountains separating the interior of Yugo-slavia from the Adriatic.

Historically, too, Trieste has been much more closely associated with its northern and eastern hinterland than with Italy since the time it was a Roman colony, then known as Tergeste. 🤻 known as Tergeste.

During the nineteenth century, many Triestinos showed an increasing interest in the idea of an Italian nation, despite their prosperity under Austria. After the creation of a united Italy in the Shiloh church on the Benner the creation of the University art collection. The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main.

The painting will be added to the University art collection.

The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main.

The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main.

The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main.

The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main.

The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main.

The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main.

The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main.

The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main.

The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main.

The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main.

The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main.

The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main.

The painting will be hung in the lounge of Old Main. the sixties and seventies, this sen- Pike. timent became more and more pronounced.

In World War IL Mussolini picked the losing side, and the complaints of the Slovenes and the Croats concerning their maltreatment during the Fascist regime therefore received sympathetic treatment by the victorious allies. In the second meeting of the Foreign Ministers Council in the summer of 1946, the fate of Istria and Trieste was decided.

verhead.

A closer examination of the part of Istria—in all, 285 square

The Free Territory was to have a governor who was not "a citizen of either Italy, Yugoslavia, or the Free Territory" and who was to be nominated by the Security Council in consultation with the Italian and Yugoslav governments. However, no candidate satisfactory to the Russians, Americans, Yugoslavs and Italians could be found.

Accordingly, the Free Territory hinterland of Trieste today lies remained without a governor and in Austria and Yugoslavia. The divided into the two occupation agricultural and industrial expones which had been established

Oil Painting Purchased For Old Main Lounge

An oil painting, "The White Church," by Mrs. Gladys H. Gold-stein of Baltimore has been purchased through the Alumni Fund and will be added to the Uni-

Tonight on WDFM

1	t
١	7:30	Pep Rally
Į		DOC Feeture Experience of Ave
	8:45	News
	9:00	House Party
ı	9:15	Light Classical Jukebox