

State Party--

meeting of the entire clique to conform to the new elections code passed by All-University Cabinet Thursday night.

Under the new permanent code, election of clique officers must be made in a meeting of the full clique. However, since no registration list of last semester's members of State Party was available, the committee decided to have the council elect clique officers under the old code.

This would prevent, the committee said, an open meeting which Lion Party members, and new students who have not joined a political party could attend, or from which State Party members who had possibly thrown away last semester's registration cards could be barred.

The State Party's representative council consists of the four clique officers—vice clique chairman, secretary, secretariat, and treasurer, co-chairmen of eight committees, the chairmen and secretaries of each class clique, one representative from each college, a fraternity representative, a sorority representative, independent men's and women's representatives, and the chairman of the advisory committee.

The State Party trouble started Sept. 20 when John Fink resigned as clique chairman, and named John McMeekin, former clique treasurer as temporary clique chairman. McMeekin tentatively scheduled a meeting for Sunday night to elect clique officers.

On Wednesday afternoon McMeekin, Miss DelleDonne, John Lyon, vice clique chairman and acting head of the party until Wednesday night; and Rheta Bobrow, secretariat, met in the Waring Hall snack bar, and decided to call a meeting that night to discuss party financial conditions.

At that meeting Miss DelleDonne was elected clique chairman with 18 members of the council and Lutter present. Lutter said he was notified of the meeting 15 minutes before the meeting began, and was told an election was going to be held. Richard Rigling, who had made the phone call to Lutter, denied that he had stated that there was going to be an election, but admitted he may have implied it.

Nominations Set For Town Council

The executive committee of Town Council has called a meeting for 7 tonight in 108 Willard for the purpose of nominating members to the council.

Nominations for ward representatives will be made from the floor by electors present who reside in that particular ward. Any under-classman living off campus limits who has an all-university average of 1 or better and is in no way affiliated with a social fraternity is eligible as an elector.

Elections will be held next Tuesday evening at a meeting to be called by the Association of Independent Men's Board of Governors Elections Committee.

mer sophomore class clique chairman, that she had packed Wednesday's meeting.

She said that McMeekin and Richard Rigling, financial chairman, were present when she notified clique members of the meeting.

Lyon announced today that a closed meeting of the clique's student representative council will meet to elect the permanent clique officers 7 p.m. Wednesday in 108 Willard.

Approximately 75 freshmen attended the orientation meetings sponsored by the State and Lion Parties Sunday night.

Jesse Arnelle, All-University president, told approximately 45 freshmen at the Lion Party meeting that student politics at the University presents "a quick lesson in the democratic system of American politics on a small scale."

Arnelle said experience gained in student government provides one with much useful experience and helps one vote more intelligently in national elections.

Donald Balthaser, senior class president, told the freshmen at the State Party meeting they were the nucleus of a strong party organization.

Arnelle said successful cliques result not from the number of people in them, but from the attitude of the members. He urged the freshmen to continue to take an active interest in student government and go out and interest others in their class in politics.

Party structure was briefly outlined at both meetings. Gordon Pogal, Lion Party clique chairman, said nominations for the Lion Party's class clique offices will be held Oct. 10.

Encampment--

a Pennsylvania art show.

To supplement the program with student activities, the encampment centennial committee urged that a permanent student centennial group be set up by cabinet to work with the existing University committee. The encampment group also drew up a list of suggestions to be used as a basis for the student committee to follow.

These suggestions include billboards at the entrance to State College, holiday decorations, a Daily Collegian supplement, a Collegian "Did You Know" column, student speakers for home town service clubs, a history quiz show, an essay contest under the subject "What Penn State Means to Me?", a centennial song, a centennial queen, Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association Championships, and a special centennial mailing list.

The committee also proposed that window paintings in an historical theme replace Greek Week posters this year and that the University Centennial be incorporated in 1955 in Pennsylvania Week, homecoming lawn displays, and band day. It was suggested that fraternities and sororities give publicity in their national magazines and University activities include the centennial theme when possible.
