The studies also indicate growth for General Extension instruction and for Agricultural and Home Economics Extension.

Population Trends
The studies show that the population of the nation rose from 76 million in 1900 to 123 million in 1930 and that by 1970 it may rise to 200 million.

Of this number, 14.7 million are expected to be of college age (18 to 21 years). This is about six million more than the number of persons now in the college-age group.

"The population pattern of Pennsylvania," the studies report, "shows a growth pattern similar to that of the United States." From 1900 to 1950 the state's population rose from six million to 10.5 million and by 1970, "is conservatively expected" to exceed 12.5 million.

College Enrollment
Meanwhile, the college enrollment in the nation climbed from 111,000 to nearly 2.5 million between 1900 and 1950. By 1970 this figure is expected to reach 4.5 million, of which four million will be undergraduates.
