

Sorority Ribboning Will End Rushing

By DOTTIE BENNETT

Ribboning, the final phase in the two-week rushing program of the sororities, will take place at 7 tonight in the sorority suites, following distribution of bids to the rushees' rooms late this afternoon.

Preferential cards may be signed by the rushee from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. today in the Dean of Women's office, if this was not done at

New Rules Distributed By Housing

Information regarding an amendment to the housing and food service contract and instructions for termination of residence in University residence halls have been distributed to students by the department of housing.

50-Cent Charge

The amendment changed the charge for failure to return the dormitory room key from $5 to a charge of 50 cents. The $5 fee previously was deducted for the $10 room and key deposit. Students are instructed to report a room key loss to their residence hall office. A new key will be made for a charge of 50 cents. If a key is not turned in at the end of the year, 50 cents will be deducted from the key and damage deposit.

The instructions warned that $5 would be deducted from the key and damage deposit if any student fails to check out of his room properly.

Students Must See Dean

Students leaving school at any time other than at the close of the semester should see the dean of their respective colleges and complete an academic withdrawal form. Men students must report to the Dean of Men's office, 109 Old Main; women students must report to the Dean of Women's office in 105 Old Main. The students must then check with the Fee Assessor and leave the withdrawal form in 4 Old Main.

Withdrawing students then complete the same procedure prescribed for students leaving residence halls at any time other than the end of the academic year in June.

the Panhellenic post office after last night's coffee hours. These cards will then be compared with preferential lists which have been made out by the sororities and submitted to the post office.

After the lists have been compared with the cards, acceptance lists will be prepared for the sororities, and can be obtained from the Dean of Women's office at 4:30 today. Bids must be turned in to the Dean of Women's office at 4:45 today.

Members Will Be Escorts

Sorority members may call for the rushees in their rooms, and escort them to the suite, where the ribboning will take place.

While rushees have been hurrying from suite to suite, through registration, open houses, coke dates, at homes, parties, coffee hours and tonight's ribboning, their main source of contact with the sororities has been through the Panhel post office.

The post office, located in Atherton Hall, is run by sorority alumnae, under the direction of Mrs. Chester Dahle and Mrs. George Leffler, Panhel advisers. All invitations, acceptances, and regrets must go through the post office, as during the rushing period a strict silence is observed between the rushees and sorority members.

454 Registered

First contact with the post office came when 454 girls registered and paid the required rushing fee. After proceeding through the open houses, they reported to the post office to receive their invitations for coke dates. The replies to these invitations were then turned in to the post office for the sorority rush chairmen. After the coke dates, the same procedure was followed through the open houses, the parties, and the coffee hours.

The final phase of activity for the post office staff will come this afternoon with the receiving and comparison of the preferential cards and lists.

Singing—

We believe they have enough brains so that 15 years from now, they won't look back on their college days and say that then they were at their highest peak of success.

If only people could see student politics in its true light, realizing that it is just a game being played by students, perhaps they could laugh too, the same kind of laugh we give to a class-C Western movie.

Astronomers Study Heavenly Oddities

By NANCY SHOWALTERS

Located on campus east of the Temporary Union Building are two tiny aluminum-domed buildings which don't resemble the usual campus building at all.

These buildings are two observatories used by students taking astronomy 90, a three-credit nonmathematical astronomy course for nonscience majors.

The North observatory contains a six-inch refracting lens, and in the South observatory is a ten-inch reflecting telescope. The South observatory telescope was built at the University and is clock-driven to keep a celestial object in view as the Earth rotates.

This semester two planets, Jupiter and Saturn, will be visible, and the observatories will be open ten nights to the public. The dates will be announced later.

Astronomy 90 has had two hours of one night a week set aside for laboratory work. If the night is clear, the astronomers go to the observatories where they operate the telescopes and identify many celestial bodies.

The course does not require that the student see all the mythical figures which the stars are supposed to form. In fact, this is impossible, since many of the figures are very large while being made up of only a few stars. Sometimes these stars don't even appear on the actual outline of the figure.

These mythical images were imagined by shepherds and sailors from about 500 B.C. to 500 A.D., who used to stare at the sky all night long. A few of the constellations, however, have been named in modern times since there are a microscope, a telescope, and a grandfather's clock in the heavens also.

Astronomy divorced itself from astrology during the Middle Ages when a few men of the day realized that astronomy is an exact science, while astrology is an unreality based on fortune-telling by the stars.

Thru the Looking Glass

with Gabbi

Every college has a legend passed on from year to year—yes, and every store has a reputation passed on from ear to ear. And ETHEL'S got the reason to go with her rep. Eavesdrop a bit with me and let's see what she's got cool and clever for you . . .

Pressing room problems . . . poof!

There are scads of dizzisms that can drive a person mad so why let closet claustrophobia be a chief burn? ETHEL can solve this dilemma with skirt and slack hangars that save hair-pulling (and clothes-pulling) and adds a gala touch because they're iridescent mother-of-pearl—it's not real, natch, so not expensive, catch?

Cleanliness is next to cleverness.

Stretch and yawn and chase that pesty sandman real quick-like in time for those 8 o'clocks with a "loofah" wake-up-your-skin, bath sponge—oval, palm-shaped and terry-cloth covered—it floats! And so much handier than a washcloth. The damage . . . just one dollar.

For those who didn't schedule Art 55.

We all like to make our dorm and fraternity rooms a little more "denimish" (even if we can't afford the bear rug) . . . so why not begin your interior decorating with a cool conversation piece like a waste basket featuring Barnum and Bailey circus posters straight from the band wagons or for the more sophisticated (we have some of those in our dorms, too), real pages from the London Times. These paper catchers can be had for just $3.00 and on up.

Stop making an ash of yourself

. . . and give yourself some place to put those "good for the rug" ashes besides in your roommate's beer mug. In ETHEL'S you'll find ashtrays with modern motifs to ashtrays with bean-bag bottoms. They're low priced, attractive and certainly make for a great gift. We can go on for columns, but the printer thinks the bottom of the page should be the end . . . but we don't think it should be the end of your visit to ETHEL'S. So amble down real soon and browse to your heart's content—and tell her Gabbi sent you—will you?
