

Cabinet Tables Screening Plan

A motion to set up a committee—applicants screening board was tabled by All-University Cabinet Thursday night.

The motion proposed by All-University vice president John Speer asks that the nine college student council presidents form the board. The board would screen all applicants for cabinet committee appointments and make recommendations to the All-University

Student Group To Conduct Concert Drive

Eleven students have been named to a central committee to direct the Community Concert Association campaign among students.

Members of the series last year may renew their memberships this week. The campaign for new members will open Monday night with a kick-off party at 7 p.m. in Atherton Hall.

Student leaders are Barbara Murdough, Mary Kelly, and Jeanne Maxwell, women's residence halls; William Mills, James Miller, William Neal, and Richard Hurlbrink, men's residence halls; Stanley Michalski and George Buckhout, fraternities; and George Black and Joan McKinley, town.

David H. McKinley, campaign chairman, urged present members to get in touch with one of the student workers this week if they wish to renew their membership. Membership price is $6.10.

Headquarters for the campaign will be located in 204 Old Main. Workers will report their sales there.

Memberships will be limited to 1215, the seating capacity of Schwab Auditorium where the concerts will be held. The campaign will close as soon as this figure is reached, or at noon Oct. 9 at the latest.

The local committee will meet at the close of the campaign to arrange the program for a year.

Clique --

Previous Code The code previously stipulated that clique members register at the Student Union desk. They would have been issued membership cards which would have been stamped at clique meetings. Attendance at at least one meeting prior to the nomination meeting also was required.

In speaking against pre-registration, Famous said "Registration at Student Union wouldn't aid elections."

Voters' Apathy He pointed out that "voters' apathy" includes "registration apathy," and that many persons who might wish to attend clique meetings would fail to register. This would cut down clique membership, he said.

Famous also pointed out the possibility of having several hundred clique cards duplicated "for only a few dollars."

Favro Makes Proposal The proposal was put into a motion by Richard Favro, president of the Business Administration Student Council.

In supporting the motion, Benjamin Sinclair, representative of the Board of Dramatics and Forensics and former Lion Party clique chairman, said pre-registration didn't eliminate the possibility of altering registration lists. "This system is fool-proof," he said.

In another alteration to the election code, the words Waring Hall were substituted for Hamilton Hall as a permanent polling place.

Women Move To Dorm Halls

Maple and Pine cottage occupants and women living in residence hall lounges have been transferred to permanent rooms in Simmons, McElwain and Atherton Halls, and Woman's Building, Mrs. Cornelia Hibbs, assistant to the dean of women in charge of housing, said yesterday.

The delay compelling women to accept temporary room assignments was caused by women failing to notify Mrs. Hibbs they were not returning to the University, she said.

Most of the vacancies occurred in single rooms. Only a few doubles were left to be filled. Elm and Spruce cottages will be used as permanent residence halls.

Drama and Forensics To Hold Board Meeting

The Board of Dramatics and Forensics will meet at 4 p.m. tomorrow in 108 Willard to adopt a constitution and elect other officers, Benjamin Sinclair, president, announced yesterday.

The board consists of the men and women debate managers, presidents of the Blue Band, Glee Club, Players, Thespians, and Radio Guild.

Recently purchased engineering equipment will be installed in an Engineering Computation room, the location of which is to be announced within a week, after administrative details have been taken care of, George Kulynych, president of the Engineering and Architecture Student Council, has announced.

Engineering Council made plans to hold a faculty-council discussion workshop to plan projects for the 1954-55 year.

The following committee chairmen were appointed at the first council meeting last Tuesday evening: Bernard Carson, seventh semester aeronautical engineering major, open house; Alan Glou, seventh semester industrial engineering major, elections; George Yingling, fifth semester engineering science major, budget; David Black, seventh semester industrial engineering major, social; and David Shoop, seventh semester architectural engineering major, project.

Dickerson Invited To Ed Conference

Russell B. Dickerson, director of resident instruction and associate dean of the Agriculture college, has been invited to participate in the National Conference on Rural Education scheduled for Monday through Wednesday at Washington, D.C.

The invitation came from Harold A. Dawson, executive secretary of the National Education Association. The three day conference is sponsored by the NEA's department of Rural Education.

Dickerson was asked to serve on a panel on Monday evening's program to discuss "Opportunities for Rural Youth at the College Level."

Outing Club Plans Hikes for Sunday

Students interested in hiking in the Beaver Dam area with the Penn State Outing Club may meet at 2 p.m. tomorrow at the rear of Old Main. Buses will be provided for transportation to Tussy ridge.

There will be four hikes starting from various locations along Tussey mountain and terminating at Beaver Dam, where food will be provided.

The buses will return at 6 p.m. This hike is the first in a series of fall hikes planned by the club, during which they will explore trails suitable for marking.

Leader Defends Negative Vote On Pechan Bill

Sen. George M. Leader, Democratic candidate for governor, defending his 1951 vote against the loyalty oath law, Wednesday night pointed out that President Milton S. Eisenhower also opposed the act.

According to an Associated Press report, Leader declared:

"The Republican politicians who are attacking me for my vote on the Pechan Act are also attacking Dr. Milton Eisenhower, president of Penn State University, and brother of the President of the United States."

President Eisenhower, along with the heads of the University of Pittsburgh, Temple University, and the University of Pennsylvania, objected to the measure at a Senate public hearings in 1951.

"My opposition to the Pechan Act, which calls for meaningless oaths by public employees and teachers, was based upon its usefulness as a measure to curb subversion; by its discrimination against the patriotic Pennsylvania religious sects whose religious scruples prevent them from taking oaths, and by its insulting inference that Communist sympathizers are found particularly among public employees, school teachers, and university faculty members," Leader told a St. Mary's audience.

The law requires state and municipal employees, including teachers, to swear they are not members of subversive organizations under penalty of losing their jobs.

West Dorm Council Names Social Head

West Dorm Council approved the appointment of John McCabe, fifth semester chemical engineering major, as Social Club chairman. The meeting was the first for the council this school year.

The council acted to make the yet to be named West Dorm social chairman vice president of the Social Club, and passed still another setting the time for future meetings as 7 p.m. every Monday.

McCabe held the post of temporary chairman of the social committee before his elevation to Social Club chairman. McCabe, not a member of council, will not have a vote in council. He will direct activity in the West Dorms.

The West Dorm social chairman, along with other committee chairmen and council officers, will be named within two weeks.

Experimental Theatre Sponsors Revolutionary Drama Series

By ALICE GRUBB A new step in creative American drama is being taken at Penn State.

"Comedia," a series of satirical skits and playlets, sponsored by the Experimental Theatre, is an experimental research product. This is the first project of its type to be used in this country.

"Comedia" is copied from the improvised comedy of the professional players of early Italy, who developed "masks," or caricatures of character types. They bore a direct, satirical reference to the social structure of the times.

Using these "masks," abstracted and simplified from actual life into exaggerated characters played by a stock cast in small skits and playlets, "Comedia" portrays a satirical picture of University life.

Experimental Theatre is looking for contributions of verbal sketches telling satiric stories of university life. Kelly Yeaton, associate professor of dramatics, has contacted dramatics professors and enthusiasts all over the country for ideas and suggestions. He feels that perhaps the best contributions will come from students and faculty members, producing satirical representations of each other.

The Experimental Theatre, a production of the dramatics department, is under the direction of Yeaton; Warren Smith, associate professor of dramatics; and George Oliver, graduate student of dramatics. It will produce a series of dramatic projects each year, in which anyone may participate.

Each spring the Theatre sponsors "Five O'Clock Theater," a playwrights theater which presents scenes from new scripts at 5 p.m. every Tuesday in Little Theatre.

"Great Scenes from Plays," a new series sponsored by Experimental Theatre this year, re-enact famous scenes from great plays. The first of these series will be a scene from "Othello."
