

Gridders Tumble Syracuse, 13-0, For Second Victory

By DICK McDOWELL

Despite a rash of fumbles that had them in a hole several times, Penn State, led by a crushing line, battered Syracuse Saturday afternoon, for its second victory of the season, 13-0.

The win, which broke a six-year jinx at Archbold Stadium, came through fundamental football. The Lions didn't try to get fancy, but instead pounded steadily on the ground and set up a defense that kept Syracuse backs bottled up all afternoon.

However, the unspectacular score really didn't show a true picture of the game. The Lions had control throughout and except for a few moments in the second half of the contest, completely outplayed the Orange.

Lions Gain 188

In all the Lion offense ripped off 188 yards and held coach Ben Schwartzwalder's squad to only 96. Lenny Moore, the fleet Penn State left half, led the Lions again on the ground with 87 yards.

The Lion's first touchdown came in the dying moments of the first quarter when Moore crashed off left tackle and sprinted 22 yards into the left corner of the endzone. The score climaxed a 76-yard drive.

Penn State added its other touchdown early in the third period. Ron Younker bolted over from the one after he had returned a Syracuse punt 50 yards to the 18 to set the stage.

Significant Win

For the Lions, it was a significant win. The Orange had been annual trouble makers for Engle's teams and more than once had upset heavily favored Lion clubs.

Moore, along with two power-plus fullbacks, Bill Straub and Chuck Blockson and halfback Bill Kane, all shared in the constant barrage thrown at the Orange line.

Once again the Lion passing attack faltered. But quarterback Don Bailey, who completed only three of seven passes, deserved a much better fate. Two of his heaves were right on the button and possibly touchdown bound, but were dropped by intended receivers.

Drama Board Elects Officers

The Board of Dramatics and Forensics Sunday elected two officers and adopted a constitution.

Frank Cressman, Thespian president, was named vice president and Deborah Peek, Players president, was named secretary treasurer. Benjamin Sinclair, manager of the men's debate team, was elected president last spring.

The constitution provides for monthly meetings and self-nomination for board officers.

The board voted to assess each member agency $5 a year for operating expenses.

The other board members are George Black, Blue Band president; Robert Piper, Glee Club president; Craig Sanders, president of the Radio Guild; and Ann Leh, acting manager of the women's debate team.

The next meeting will be Nov. 14.

3d Party Movement Fails; No Chairman

By DON SHOEMAKER

The University Party passed from the campus political scene Sunday night before it officially came into being.

Approximately 60 people attended the organizational meeting, but failed to elect a clique chairman to head the party.

Rudolph Lutter, one of the party's co-founders, was nominated for the post four times. He declined, however, because he said he felt that due to "adverse" publicity which had been circulated about him, "The party would have three strikes against it from the beginning" if he were elected.

In declining the nomination for the fourth time, Lutter indicated he was dropping out of campus politics. "You are seeing here tonight, a person who is dropping out of his main activity here at Penn State," he said. He then adjourned the meeting.

Nominees Decline

Three other men were also nominated to head the party, but each declined. They were John Riggs, co-founder of the party; Steven Jordan, former State Party candidate for freshman class president; and H. Arthur Simm, staff member of WDFM, campus radio station, and a member of the elections committee.

Riggs declined the nomination because he said he didn't know enough about politics to run the party.

Jordan declined because he said he has "an interest in other campus activities which can't involve politics." He did not elaborate on the statement.

In declining the nomination, these men urged Lutter to run.

Simm declined because he is a member of two campus activities—WDFM and elections committee—which prohibit him from taking an active part in campus politics.

Lutter Pledges Support

Even though Lutter would not run for clique chairman himself, he pledged his full support to anyone who would be elected. "I will work just as hard as if I were clique chairman," he said.

He asked how many of the group would be willing to work for the party. About 21—a third of those present—rose.

On the basis of this showing, Lutter said he did not feel the party would be well enough represented to give it any strength.

In closing the meeting, Lutter made the following statement:

"If this meeting hasn't done anything else, I hope it has made you think about what goes on in student government."

Coed Debaters to Meet

First semester women who have signed for debate will meet at 7 tonight in 2 Sparks to hear a practice debate by four members of the women's varsity squad.

Women Visitors Not Allowed In Men's Dorms

James W. Dean, assistant to the dean of men in charge of independent affairs, said yesterday that women visitors, regardless of relationship, are not permitted to enter men's resident halls in the West Dorm area at any time.

A weekend will be held later in the semester, Dean said, when women visitors will be permitted in the halls.

Weekend female guests wishing to call men living in the West hall area should use the phone at the main desk in Waring Hall.

Dean said coeds were still frequenting the small lounges of Hamilton and McKee. They are only allowed in the lounges during chaperoned parties. Out-of-town guests may meet men students in the lounges, but men students must first notify their unit resident adviser, or the main desk in Waring. This rule applies at all times, Dean said, especially during Homecoming weekend.

Customs Board to Meet

Freshman Customs Board will meet at 8:00 tonight in the Old Main lounge to hear customs violators and discuss plans for next year's board.

Collegian Issues Candidates Call

Students interested in joining the editorial and advertising staffs of the Daily Collegian will meet tonight. The Daily Collegian advertising staff will also meet.

Editorial staff candidates will meet at 7 p.m. in 1 Carnegie and advertising candidates will meet at 7 p.m. in 10 Sparks.

Richard O. Byers, assistant professor of journalism and advertising adviser to the Daily Collegian, will speak at the advertising staff meeting at 6:30 p.m. in 9 Carnegie.

Alcoholic Ban Provokes Riot At Bucknell U.

Two state policemen broke up a demonstration of 300 Bucknell University students yesterday against the University's recent ban on alcoholic beverages in off-campus fraternity houses.

After gathering on the campus, the students marched to the center of town chanting "we want beer." Stopping at a main intersection, some of them sat down on the highway to dramatize their demonstration.

When a group of Lewisburg and University police failed in efforts to disperse the students, Gordon Hufnagle, chief of police, called the Milton State Police barracks for help.

When two state policemen responded to the call, the students scattered. They quickly re-assembled on a nearby street and finally dispersed as the police car drove toward them again.

Hufnagle reported that no one was injured in the demonstration.

Ed Council to Meet

Education Student Council will meet at 7:30 tonight in 204 Burrows. Committees will be appointed and plans discussed for the semester, Sally Lessig, council president, announced.

Agreement Returns Trieste to Italy

TRIESTE, Free Territory, Oct. 4 (AP)—The City of Trieste goes back to Italy tomorrow under an agreement Italy and Yugoslavia will sign in London.

The agreement, announced officially today, will end a nine-year dispute that brought Yugoslavs and Italians close to war several times.

This key port at the head of the Adriatic will give Italian troops a flagwaving welcome. When they take over they will be greeted by red, white and green Italian flags flying from windows and by a huge banner sewn by 60 women.

Under the compromise agreement, Zone A of the free territory, including the city, will go to Italy, while Yugoslavia will get Zone B. Marshal Tito's troops have occupied Zone B while U.S. and British troops kept watch over Zone A during the postwar dispute over the territory.

As soon as the London agreement is signed Premier Mario Scelba will report it to the Italian Parliament and demand a vote of confidence to back his action.

Washington and London have been prodding Rome and Belgrade for a long time to end a situation which could cause rejoicing behind the Iron Curtain. U.S. Ambassador Claire Boothe Luce said in Naples today the United States felt a solution of the problem would "create a condition in which the whole of the Mediterranean area could be strengthened."

The agreement will free the American Trieste garrison force of about 4000 for duty elsewhere. The British will pull out about 3000 troops.

These occupation forces have been down to minimum supplies since last Oct. 8, when Washington and London announced they would return the zone to Italy. Tito bridled at this announcement, and Yugoslav and Italian troops glared at each other across the border for several weeks as a crisis threatened.

Most of 300,000 inhabitants in the 86-square-mile Zone A have been taking the news of the settlement without excitement. However, tension has been noted in small areas along the southern boundaries which are expected to go to Yugoslavia under the London pact.

About 3000 persons live in the area that may change hands. They are expected to have a chance to get paid for their holdings and move into the Italian area if they choose. Several families have already packed and left the border of Cervatini, fearing it might go to Yugoslavia.

Yugoslavia will get more territory in its zone—119 square miles, but fewer people—75,000.

Concert Group Lists Program By Orchestra

The Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra will be one of the Community Concert artists in the Community Concert series this year.

Other programs of the series, which usually includes four concerts, have not yet been contracted, but will depend on the outcome of the membership campaign.

The committee in charge of scheduling the concerts will arrange the full program at the close of the campaign when the amount of money available for the series is determined.

The Symphony is booked in advance of other numbers because nearly a year's notice is needed to obtain a Symphony Orchestra. The date the Orchestra will appear, however, will not be definite until the entire program is arranged.

Season tickets for the series are now on sale for $6.00. They may be purchased from student workers or in 204 Old Main.

The sale will continue until 1215 tickets, the seating capacity of Schwab Auditorium, where the concerts are held, have been sold. Tickets were sold out at noon of the third day of the campaign last year, according to Harold Welch, executive assistant of Community Concert Inc. of New York.

Senior Class Meeting Called by Balthaser

Donald Balthaser, senior class president, has called a class meeting for 8 p.m. tomorrow in 10 Sparks.

A discussion will be held on the appointment of committees to consider a class gift, the senior prom, and senior class night.

Students interested in working on committees may attend.

2100 Courses Added

Approximately 2100 courses were added by students during the two weeks of classes. Harry A. Sperber, assistant University scheduling officer, announced yesterday.

Students will be able to drop courses until Oct. 16 in the basement of Willard Hall.

Eng Council to Meet

The Engineering Student Council will meet at 7 tonight in 107 Main Engineering, George Kulynych, council president, said.

'Queen' Deadline Moved to Oct. 7

The deadline for entering candidates in the Homecoming Queen contest has been advanced from today to Thursday, Peter Lang, chairman of the contest, said yesterday.

A 5-inch by 7-inch photograph of the candidates is preferred. Contestants must be University coeds. Any fraternity, sorority, or independent group may sponsor entries.

Entries may be submitted at the Student Union desk in Old Main.
