Windcrest Trailers Will Be Vacated

The Windcrest area, now containing 17 remaining trailers, will probably be vacated by the end of the academic year, Otto E. Mueller, director of housing, said recently.

The Windcrest area was originally set up to house World War II veterans and their families during their studies at the University.

Mueller explained that the trailers were now more than 10 years old, and that it was no longer practical to maintain the community, because upkeep on the trailers cost more than the trailers.

Customs Band To Organize At Nittany 20

Customs violators composing the freshmen band will meet at 1 p.m. tomorrow at Pollock road and Nittany Dorm 20.

Violators required to wear signs to the game will also meet with the band.

The entire group will form a pre-game parade to Beaver Field. The parade will start on Pollock road and continue on Burrows road to Recreation Hall. The band was originally to perform during halftime ceremonies.

Hugh Cline, co-chairman of Freshman Customs Board, said freshmen must wear their dinks to the football game. No freshmen will be admitted without dinks. Any freshmen who have lost their dinks can sign a master list at the Student Union desk in Old Main until 5 p.m. today. These students will be admitted to the game, Cline said.

Veterans will need their draft cards to be admitted to Beaver Field tomorrow.

W. Va. Tickets Near Sell-Out

A complete sell-out of permanent stand seats for the Alumni Homecoming game with West Virginia was announced yesterday by the Athletic Association.

The 28,720 permanent seats in Beaver Field were filled by the end of the second day of general sales. Tickets went on sale to students and townspeople Wednesday morning.

About 2500 tickets for the temporary end zone bleacher seats will be sold at $2 at the Athletic Association ticket office, 248 Recreation Hall.

Attendance at the game next Saturday is expected to top the previous high of 30,321 set at the Michigan State game in 1951.

Today Is Deadline For UBA Refunds

Today is the last day students may claim money and unsold books at the Used Book Agency in the Temporary Union Building.

Paul Hood, UBA manager, announced yesterday no checks for unclaimed money would be mailed this year. In other years some students had been given money without their receipts and then when the slips were found, received a check in the mail, thereby collecting twice.

Unsold books not claimed within 30 days become the property of UBA, Hood said. UBA will be open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today.

Seating at Games Will Not Change

The student seating arrangement for home football games will not be changed this year, contrary to rumors circulating around campus.

Harold R. Gilbert, assistant athletic director said yesterday the same seating arrangement used for the past two years will be continued.

Under this arrangement freshmen sit behind the north goal posts with the sophomores, juniors, and seniors seated in that order up the east side of the field.

The plan to vacate the community began four years ago, after the number of trailers in the area had been reduced. The Windcrest area formerly extended from the area between Pollock Dormitories and the two Women's dormitories to College avenue. The remaining tenants now live in the area behind McElwain Hall.

Applications are not being accepted for new assignments in the area, nor may present tenants sublease their trailers. Operating practices, maintenance, and services are continuing under previously existing policies, with no change in rent schedule. There is a uniform rent of $28 a month. There have been no new tenants for the last four semesters.

The University developed the trailer plan for the veterans in October, 1945, when 93 trailers were made available by the National Housing Administration. The trailers had been built in 1941 originally as defense housing for war workers in New Castle.

Later the University acquired trailers from other defense housing communities, mostly from the Baltimore, Md., area. By 1947, 253 trailers had been provided on campus by the Federal government, and more than 50 privately owned trailers were provided.

More than five years ago maintenance became a problem. Parts of vacated trailers were salvaged for the upkeep of others, Mueller said.

Since 1945, the veterans have completed their studies and vacated the area. Maintenance became the responsibility of the married students and veterans who later occupied the area. In the fall of 1953 only 49 trailers remained in the area.

The area formerly had a community bath house and laundry, comprised of three trailers for the purpose. It has become impossible to continue upkeep of the unit. Trailers have a useful life of eight years as a general rule, Mueller said.

Vacating tenants have been instructed to salvage such fixtures as electrical appliances, windows, sink, and usable plywood. The shell of the trailer will be burned.

The University has an agreement with the Federal government not to sell these units for housing after the Windcrest area has been discontinued.

Education Policy Revision Asked

Recommendations to strengthen general education at the University were presented to University Senate yesterday in a report by the subcommittee on general education.

Senate took no action on the report, but decided to postpone discussion until a special meeting, to be called at a later date by President Milton S. Eisenhower.

The report, presented by Ernest W. Callenbach, committee chairman, sets forth 13 objectives and recommendations for improving general education.

5 Educational Ideas Outlined by Prexy

If the American people intend to give their educational system the financial support it needs and deserves, they must be willing to make sacrifices in other less vital areas, President Milton S. Eisenhower told a convention of teachers and school administrators at Altoona yesterday.

Eisenhower spoke on "Education's New Responsibilities," and as a framework for his discussion of the impact of America's fast-rising population on its schools, he outlined five "fundamental ideas" which form this country's educational creed:

First, that education is vital to the economic, social and moral strength of the free system.

Second, that all the nation's youth are entitled to equal educational opportunity.

Third, that the security of the United States depends upon the character, ideas, ingenuity, and competence of its citizens . . . especially its youth . . . and that these qualities are enhanced by a free educational system.

Fourth, that the complex responsibilities we share with other free nations call for broader knowledge, greater skill, deeper understanding, and a higher degree of maturity on the part of all Americans . . . qualities which sound education must foster.

Fifth, that while educational problems are usually nationwide in scope, the formation of educational policy and the control and management of our publicly-supported educational institutions are traditionally and properly state and local functions.

Summarized Surveys
Dr. Eisenhower summarized recent national surveys which indicate that the number of students graduated yearly from high schools in the United States will increase from last spring's 1,274,000 to 2,600,000 in 1970. Long-range development studies conducted for Penn State's Board of Trustees indicate that by 1970 there will be about 33,000 more total college and university students in the Commonwealth than there were in 1950, when enrollments in Pennsylvania's colleges and universities totaled 107,000.

Judicial Board Asks Probation For 2 Frosh

The Association of Independent Men's Judicial Board of Review last night recommended that two first semester men residing on the first floor of Hamilton Hall be placed on judicial probation until Thanksgiving.

The two students were reported on Wednesday for removing a sliding door from a closet and playing ping-pong on its surface.

The door, complete with an erected net, paddles and ball, was discovered lying on a desk by a housekeeper Wednesday morning. No damage was reported.

The board will recommend judicial probation and the paying of any expenses incurred in replacing the door by physical plant workers to the Dean of Men's office.

Judicial probation involves attending every meeting of the board for the sentenced period.

Last night was the semester's first meeting of the independents' judicial group for trying disciplinary cases. Members of the board are volunteers who were selected by a screening committee last spring.

Committee Picks Zelko

Harold P. Zelko, professor of public speaking, has been named to a two-year term on the public relations committee of the American Society of Training Directors.

The committee recommended that each freshman or transfer student be examined in the areas of reading and writing skills, elementary computation, and literature and the fine arts.

Candidate Exams
It was also recommended that candidates for baccalaureate degrees be required to pass examinations in several areas of general education: social and physical science and personal and community health.

Among the other objectives included in the report were:

1. To acquire typical factual information, regardless of occupational limitations, in the fields of physical science, biological science, and the humanities. To achieve this objective the committee recommended that each student be required to schedule 12 credits in biological and physical science and 12 credits in humanities and social science, with not less than three credits in each field.

Critical Judgment Needed
2. To develop ability to apply "critical judgment" in the four areas listed above. To achieve this objective it was recommended that students take courses in logic or argumentation, if the objective was not met by other courses in these fields.

3. To foster effective listening and speaking and to develop reading and writing skills as aids to productive reasoning. The committee recommended that comprehensive tests be given in the sixth semester, and that remedial courses be given according to the results of the examination.

The committee also recommended a program for developing skill in elementary mathematics and quantitative thinking.

To achieve this end, the report recommended a comprehensive examination in these fields during the third semester, and the institution of remedial courses if necessary.

Cars to Start Rally Tonight

A motorcade and groups of hat men and women will round up students for the first home game pep rally at 8 tonight in front of Old Main.

The motorcade will begin at 7:15 to collect students on campus, downtown, and at fraternities. Hat men and women will enter dorms at the same time to collect freshmen for the rally.

Members of the Blue Band and cheerleading squad will take part in the demonstration. Harriet Barlow, seventh semester education major, will be mistress of ceremonies assisted by Carole Schmitzer, fifth semester business administration major.

The rally is being held at 8 to enable coaches and members of the team to be present.

Sponsoring organizations are Scrolls, senior women's hat society, and Skull and Bones, senior men's hat society.

4000 Parking Permits

The Campus Patrol has allocated close to 4000 parking permits on campus for the current school year. Students have been issued 1560 permits and faculty and staff member 2408 permits.

Ike to Give More Speeches for GOP

DENEVR, Oct. 7 (AP)—President Dwight D. Eisenhower, heeding party calls for help, decided today to step up his personal campaign for a Republican Congress by making at least one more major political address than he had planned.

The chief executive will go that far, Vice President Richard M. Nixon announced at the Denver White House after conferring with Eisenhower, but still is determined to do no barnstorming for individual GOP candidates in the November election.

And Nixon told a news conference that in his opinion the President has been and will continue to play "exactly the right role" in what several GOP leaders have termed a tough fight to maintain Republican control of Congress.

The vice president said it would be a mistake for Eisenhower to get "personally involved" in any intraparty feuds over candidates by barnstorming for individuals. He said that would smack of the "purge idea" and would do the party more harm than good.

Nixon agreed it's a difficult battle for the Republicans, but expressed confidence his party will win. He declared the campaign the Democrats are waging would take the country "back to the days when the Communist danger was ignored—back to the days of the red herring."

His "red herring" remark was an indirect criticism of the Truman administration's handling of the subversion problem.

The decision for the President to make at least one more major speech than the two already announced undoubtedly won't satisfy all hands—particularly GOP candidates.

Eisenhower will make a nationwide television-radio address tomorrow night, the first of the three major speeches he now is planning. He and Nixon will speak at a big political rally in the 6000-seat Denver Municipal Auditorium, and similar GOP "precinct workers day" rallies all over the country will be turned in.

As previously announced, the President will make another nationwide TV-radio address Nov. 1, election eve.

Republican congressional leaders will arrive here tomorrow for a political strategy conference and a review of the international situation in advance of Eisenhower's evening speech.

At his news conference today, Nixon hit back at Democratic National Committee contentions that, as a senator, he voted in ten cases against positions later taken by Eisenhower in the 1952 campaign.
