'Roadblocks to Faith' Theme for Mission

The Rev. James A. Pike, dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City, will be guest lecturer for the University Christian Mission tomorrow through Tuesday.

"Roadblocks to Faith" is the theme of the mission, which is sponsored jointly by the off-campus student Protestant church groups and the University Christian Association.

Activities Planned by 4 Churches

Four student church groups have planned activities for this weekend.

The Lutheran Student Association will hold a scavenger hunt and fireside sing at 7:30 tonight at the student center, 412 W. College avenue.

Wesley Foundation of the Methodist Church will hold a "Knoxem College Football Party" at 8 tonight. Students are asked to wear old clothes. There will be open house for alumni and friends tomorrow at the Foundation.

Young Friends

C. Gundu Rao, graduate student in mineral sciences from India, will lead a discussion on the Hindu religion after the supper meeting of the Young Friends at 6 p.m. Sunday at the State College Friends Meeting House, 318 S. Atherton street.

Rabbi Benjamin M. Kahn will speak on "The Meaning of Succos" at Sabbath Eve services at 8 tonight at Hillel Foundation.

Today is the deadline for registration for the courses in Hebrew and Jewish history offered by the Foundation. Tomorrow night Hillel will hold open house for alumni and students. A lox and bagel brunch will be held from 11 a.m. to noon Sunday. The cost will be 25 cents for members and 65 cents for non-members. The Hillel Graduate Club will hold an organizational meeting at 7:30 p.m. Sunday.

To Hold Supper

The United Student Fellowship of the Faith Evangelical and Reformed Church will hold a supper at 5:30 p.m. Sunday. After the supper the group will attend a lecture by the Rev. James A. Pike, speaker for the University Christian Mission.

The Protestant church groups will take part in the University Christian Mission lecture Sunday night as co-sponsors with the University Christian Association.

Army Chaplain Speaks Tonight

Lt. Colonel Alexander J. Turner, chaplain and executive officer of the Chaplain Board, Fort Slocum, N.Y., will speak to the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship at 7:30 tonight in 405 Old Main.

Turner served 33 months in Aleutian Islands campaigns and in Alaska during World War II. He was discharged in 1945 to continue graduate work toward a doctor's degree.

In 1947 he entered the regular Army. He was assigned to the staff and faculty of the Army Language School, Presidio of Monterey, Calif.

After a tour of duty in the Far East, Turner returned to the U.S. and completed work on his doctorate thesis. Several leading seminaries are now using the thesis in connection with courses of study for prospective chaplains which were originated in 1951.

Turner will also give a talk about his experiences in Korea and Japan and show slides at a picnic sponsored by the Inter-Varsity after the football game tomorrow at the home of Frank Koehler, 1208 Old Boalsburg Road.

He will speak to the student church class of St. John's Evangelical United Brethren Church at 10:30 a.m. Sunday and will address the Roger Williams Fellowship of the University Baptist Church at 6:30 p.m. Sunday.

Faculty Dinner

The mission will open with a faculty dinner for the Rev. Pike at 6 p.m. tomorrow at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church. A short talk by the Rev. Pike will follow the dinner.

Member of Bar

The Rev. Pike, who was an attorney before he entered the ministry, received an LL.B. degree from the University of Southern California and is a member of the California Bar and the Bar of the Supreme Court of the United States. During World War II he served in Naval Intelligence and then as attorney for the Maritime Commission and War Shipping Administration.

He is a graduate of Union Theological Seminary, and from 1949 to 1952 served as chaplain of Columbia University and chairman of its department of religion, which he now serves as adjunct professor.

The Rev. Pike will speak at Chapel services at 10:55 a.m. Sunday in Schwab Auditorium. His topic will be "Religion As Your Birds-eye View."

He will give a series of three lectures at 7 p.m. Sunday, Monday and Tuesday in the Mineral Science Auditorium. The lectures are open to the public. An informal social in the Thompson Hall playroom will follow each lecture.

3 Topics

The topic for Sunday's lecture will be "Isn't Religion Unscientific?" The Rev. Pike will speak on "Isn't Ethics Enough?" Monday and on "What's Unique About Jesus?" Tuesday.

The Rev. Arthur L. Ruths, Lutheran student pastor, Patricia Floyd, student director of Wesley Foundation, and the Rev. Robert B. Starbuck, student pastor of Faith Evangelical and Reformed Church, are in charge of the mission.

Alumni Can Expect 'Changes'; 5000 to Arrive on Campus

By DOTTIE BENNETT

When approximately 5000 alumni arrive on campus today and tomorrow for the 34th annual Homecoming, they will find, as the fraternity lawn display theme indicates, "There's been some changes made."

The most important change since last year's Homecoming is that Penn State is now a University, marking the fourth name change in its history.

In 1855, when the charter was granted, Penn State was known as The Farmers' High School of Pennsylvania. In 1862 President Lincoln signed the Morrill Land Grant Act, and the Farmers' High School became the Agricultural College of Pennsylvania.

The next name change was to the Pennsylvania State College, which was again changed last November to Pennsylvania State University.

Homecoming alumni will also find the town in the midst of a controversy over whether or not the name State College shall be changed to Mt. Nittany. Of the three groups involved in this controversy, one favors the name change, a second group feels that the name State College is satisfactory, while a third hopes to change the name to something other than Mt. Nittany. The issue will be decided at the Nov. 2 election.

In the past the community has been known as Boalsburg, Farmers' High School, Agricultural College, and State College.

There have also been changes in the campus since last Homecoming. The Hetzel Union Building is now nearing completion and an ice skating rink and a nuclear reactor are being built in the Nittany dormitory area. The rink will probably open about Nov. 15, and the reactor is scheduled for completion in December.

Two building names have changed also. What was formerly Horticulture building, is now known as Weaver Hall, and the West Dorm Lounge is Waring Hall.

At the West Virginia game tomorrow, alumni may notice the latest innovation in freshmen customs. Blue dinks have now replaced the green ribbons and dinks, and the black bow ties are no longer worn.

Just as there have been many changes on campus, Homecoming Day itself has changed. Originally it was known as Pennsylvania Day, on the theory that since Penn State is a state supported institution, a day should be set aside to honor the state.

On Pennsylvania Day alumni usually inspected the campus and buildings in the morning. In the afternoon there was a football game between the freshmen and sophomores and a cider party was held in the evening.

Gradually the alumni decided to make Pennsylvania Day into Homecoming Day and in 1920 it was changed.

One thing, however, has remained fairly certain through the years. No matter how nice the weather appears, it's wise to take an umbrella. It will probably rain.

University Photographer Receives Recognition

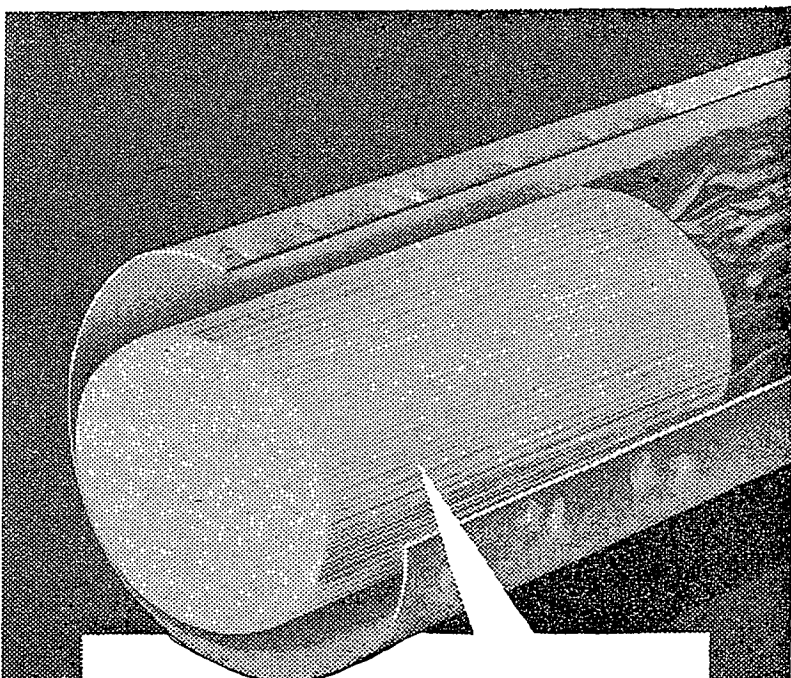

George J. Johnson, University photographer, was made a fellow of the Photographic Society of America at the society's annual meeting in Chicago last Saturday. The award was given, according to the society for "outstanding contributions to the advancement
