

Trainer to Receive Hort Show Honor

The annual Hort Show this weekend will be dedicated to Walter W. Trainer, supervisor of landscape construction and maintenance for the University.

Trainer, who is largely responsible for the beauty of the campus, has held his position at the University for nearly 25 years. He has planned the planting of trees, shrubs, and flowers to landscape every new building since assuming his position.

In 1932 the care of the University golf course came under his supervision, and in 1944 his responsibilities were enlarged to include the maintenance of the University farms.

Trainer's study in this field began when he enrolled in the University in landscape architecture, after World War I. After receiving his degree in 1923, he became a landscape engineer, employed by a Philadelphia landscape architecture firm.

He returned to the University in 1930 to take his present position. Since then he has taken additional courses to earn his master of science degree.

In addition to his campus responsibilities, Trainer served on the borough shade tree commission from 1931 to 1948, holding the office of chairman for six years.

Although previous shows have been dedicated to members of the Horticulture department, Howard Angstadt, show manager, said the Horticulture Club, sponsors of the event, voted to dedicate the 41st annual show to Trainer "for his outstanding work on the Penn State campus."

The complete front of a modern home provides the setting for the show's theme, "Today's Garden Design." Varieties of vegetables, fruits and flowers will be used to landscape the Stock Pavilion. Growing turf grass, living trees, and ornamental flowers will be used for the modernistic setting. temporary president of the Young Democratic Club.

'Who's Who'--

Dickie McKalip, president of the Board of Publications, asked Homan about the publishers, original purposes of the publication, and the cost to students included.

Hat Society Council President Robert Smoot speaking from the floor, said the cost was $12.50 for each student, paid by the students themselves. He specified, however, that students nominated were not obligated to return their applications.

Smoot said that each student included received a copy, while, as best as he could recall, copies were supposedly sent to college administrators.

He added, however, that he had never seen one at the University. There is not a copy of the booklet in Patee Library.

The consensus at this point in debate seemed to be that the publication had been started strictly as a money-making venture and that the cost was excessive.

When the motion was tabled, Homan was instructed to write to the publisher for more detailed information about the purposes of the book.

He was also asked to contact Simes regarding the feelings of the National Association of School Personnel Administrations on the book. At the previous cabinet meeting, Simes said that the book was disapproved of by that group.

However, in a subsequent interview with a reporter for the Daily Collegian, Simes said that he was not sure if the disapproval was official action or merely the feelings of many of the members, including himself. He said he would contact the national secretary for discussion records on the book.

Although the deadline for naming candidates to the book is Oct. 24, Homan said he believed that the publisher would give the University an extension in order that the answers might be received and action taken.

In the past, 30 seniors were named to the book annually.

Homecoming Display Deadline Is Noon

The deadline for registration of displays in the Interfraternity Council homecoming display contest has been extended to noon today. John Carpenter, president of IFC, announced last night.

Entrants must be registered at the Student Union desk in Old Main in order for fraternities to qualify, he said.

Judging of the contest will take place between 9 and 10 p.m., Carpenter said.

Thespians—

After the crowning of Joan MacKenzie as Homecoming Queen, the show got off to a rousing start with Alec Beliasov and Harriet Barlow singing "I Wouldn't Want To Be On A Lonely Isle With You." Later Beliasov, in his usual humorous role, also excels in "Uruguay," another song number.

"So You Want To Be A Housemother," the next skit, with its forced humor and exaggeration, was one of the lower quality parts of the show.

Professional Height

The musical, however, reached a professional height with Mike McKay, a newcomer to Thespians, singing "I Remember Carol." With the fine voice of McKay doing the excellent lyrics of the song, it is unfortunate that a longer skit couldn't have been worked out.

"Heaven Only Knows," closing the first act, could easily have closed the show if it hadn't been for the characterization done by Patricia Mansfield. As an Irish washerwoman s' jumped and sang around the stage to the delight of the audience, but while not singing "Heaven Only Knows," she almost spoiled her voice by an exaggeration that soon stopped being laughable.

She was fortunate to escape the false, forced humor that ruined other skits as "Osmand Lab Confidential" with Philip Wein pushing his ventriloquist merriment into the audience's face and making them swallow it.

"Caine Mutiny" Parody

This was also the fault of "P.S.U.S.N.R.O.T.C. Court Martial," a parody on "The Caine Mutiny Court Martial" with a bit of Joe McCarthy thrown in seemingly for laughs.

If one can go to "Funny Side Up," constantly keeping in mind that it is a student-written production, he might consider it in a favorable light, but if one did not know this, he couldn't help but be dissatisfied with the show.

IFC Workshops Open Tuesday

The Interfraternity Council Workshops will be held Tuesday through Thursday, Alexander Zerban, workshop chairman, said yesterday.

The workshops will begin Tuesday evening with group discussions to be held at the houses of the group discussions leaders. House officers should attend the meeting which corresponds to their office.

Meetings will begin with the evening meal in the fraternity houses at 5:45 p.m.

Wednesday evening has been left open for further discussion if so desired by the groups, Zerban said.

The workshop banquet will be held Thursday at 5:45 p.m. at the Nittany Lion Inn. Speaker at the banquet will be Fred Turner, dean of students at the University of Illinois. Brief reports by workshop discussion leaders will also be given. Two representatives from each house are to attend.

Fraternities are asked to pay the cost of the banquet, $5 each house, to Allen Schneirov, Phi Epsilon Pi, immediately, Zerban said.

The workshop meetings, leaders, and location are: presidents' group, Earl Seeley, chairman, at Tau Kappa Epsilon; rushing chairmen, Vernon Sones, chairman, at Acacia; social chairman, Joseph Barnett, chairman, at Phi Delta Theta.

Scholastic chairmen, Robert Cribbin chairman, at Sigma Pi; public relations chairmen, Carl Saperstein, chairman, at Sigma Alpha Mu; treasurers, William Reid, chairman, Theta Chi.

Alumni relations chairmen, Thomas Brasher, chairman, at Phi Kappa Sigma; pledge masters, Alec Beliasov, chairman, at Phi Kappa Psi; house managers, Jack Beiler, chairman, at Alpha Tau Omega.

When the workshop discussions are completed, a workshop booklet, containing the recommendations and reports of each group, will be compiled. The booklets will be distributed to each fraternity house.

Amendments--

Favro quotes Arnelle as telling the Daily Collegian on March 24, "I feel cabinet should have time to look over appointments."

The amendment was similar to one defeated by All-University Cabinet last year.

Sinclair said his amendment was proposed to prevent "people who have no right to be here" from sitting on cabinet.

Sinclair said his amendment would stop this practice "once and for all."

According to the All-University Constitution, amendments must be read and discussed at three consecutive meetings, and can be passed after the third reading with a three-fourth vote of All-University Cabinet.

Thus, no action—other than reading the amendments—was taken last night.

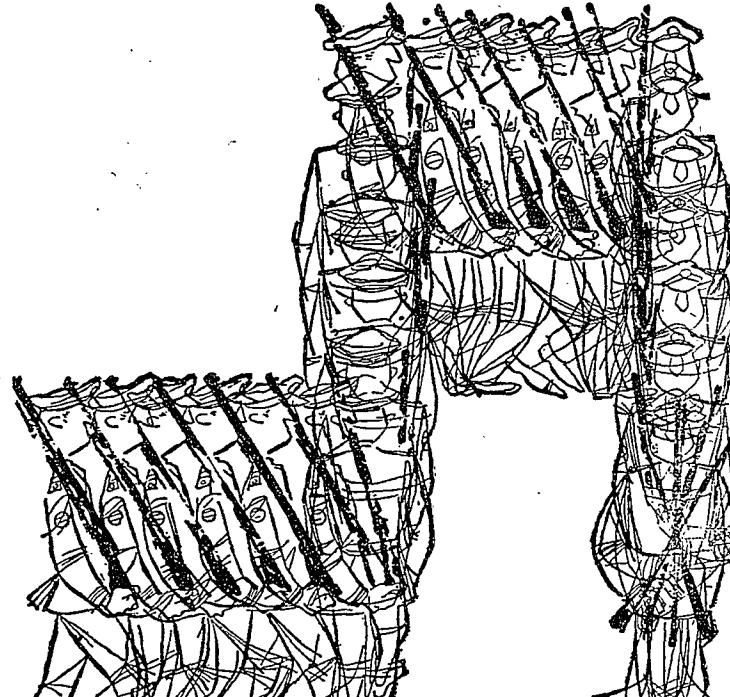

Cabinet--

Cabinet also adopted a resolution directing the judicial committee to instruct hostesses in the women's dormitories to to how to avoid discrepancies in the blackmark system.

Fulbright Deadline

Pre-doctoral scholarship applications for study abroad under the Fulbright Act during the academic year, 1955-56, must be filed before Nov. 1 in 243 Sparks.
