SATURDAY MORNING QUARTERBACK

FORTH WORTH, Texas—A Penn State weapon that became its nemesis, turns up again today when Rip Engle's Nittany Lions do battle with Texas Christian here at scenic Amon Carter Stadium in the heart of bustling Fort Worth.

We're speaking of the split-T optional play—that little offensive gem that worked so well for Penn State in three games and then was thrown at them by West Virginia last week.

When Abe Martin took over the coaching job at TCU last year, the first thing he did was to throw out an established spread formation and install his own variation of the T-formation. It brought the Frogs out of the air and onto the ground and after a dismal first-season, it's finally paying off.

Of course Martin has the horses. With four fine backs working behind a big, well-balanced line, he's brought home three victories for fellow Texans, who incidentally, hate to lose to anybody but Texans.

It all adds up to a wide-open battle this afternoon when the Lions go after their fourth win of the season. Both teams boast a good line, a threatening passing game, and break-away runners who can go all the way when you're least expecting it.

Penn State fell off the unbeaten road last week, but isn't alone there, in this, the most hectic of football seasons.

The Lions are hurt physically, but want to win this one and are determined that they will do just that. With tough Frank Reich filling in for injured Dan Balthaser at center, Rip Engle still has an intact line that will cause a lot of trouble before this game is over today.

Hustling Bill Straub will be missed at fullback again, but Frank Della Penna might be a real surprise. He looked extremely good in the closing minutes of the Virginia game.

Then, of course, there's Lenny Moore. There isn't a better back in the nation right now. He has all the requirements—speed, grace, instinct, defensive prowess, and a will that can't be caged. He could be the stopper for the Lions today.

The biggest job for the Lions will be in stopping a TCU ground attack that has been devastating at times. Behind the running and superb field generalship of quarterback Ronnie Clinkscales, the Frogs have become a potent offensive machine here in the southwest. They're riding high on the crest of two consecutive wins (Southern California and Texas A&M) and have been improving with each contest.

It's going to be a tough one for the Lions and they have to put out 100 per cent all the way, but we think they can make it.

We'll take Penn State by one touchdown. It could be the thriller of the year.

Lion Frosh Seek Win Over Pitt

Seeking its first grid win over Pittsburgh in five years, Penn State's freshman football team meets the always strong Panthers on the latter's gridiron at 10 a.m. today.

The Lions previously beat the Naval Academy plebes and have set their sights on making the Panthers their second victim.

Although lacking first team All-State High School selectees, Coach Earl Bruce will send fourth a hefty line and a fast backfield. The line, anchored by 220-pounder Willard Smith, will average 200 pounds. The backfield will average 180 pounds.

State Linemen
Along with Smith, other linemen who will see plenty of action include Benny Malesky, a 190 pounder from Hurst High School, Mount Pleasant; Bob Debski, a Pittsburgh product; and Joe Casarin, Jessup.

At the end positions, Bruce will select among Les Walter, Hershey; Paul North, Baden; Jack Farls, Freedom; and Romeo Panozzo, Providence, R.I.

The Lions' passing, which was a bright spot in the Navy game, will be directed by another Pittsburgh product, Al Jacks. Jacks' passing arm and fancy footwork make him Bruce's first choice in the quarterback slot.

Extra Point Kicker
Emil Caprara, Turtle Creek, will see action at fullback. It was Caprara's extra point boot after State's lone touchdown that defeated Navy, 7-6.

Running in the halfback positions in State's Wing T offense will be Ron Markiewicz, Brad-dock, and Francis Paolone, New Castle.

The Lions left by bus yesterday afternoon for Pittsburgh and will return immediately following the game.

Don Swegan, Penn State's newly-appointed freshman basketball coach, was voted Wooster College's outstanding athlete as a senior.

Undefeated Colgate Will Test Booters

By ROY WILLIAMS

Two three-game winning streaks will be tested when Colgate meets Penn State at 2 p.m. today on the soccer field adjacent to the football stands. Both teams will enter the game with 3-0 records.

Colgate has posted wins over Rochester, 4-2, Hamilton University, 2-1, and Rennselaer Polytechnic Institute, 1-0.

Three juniors have been the hard nucleus of Colgate's scoring power. The Red Raiders' one-two punch in registering three wins has been handled by Dick Lagermacini—who holds the scoring honors at his center forward slot—and Ev Lewis who has been setting up many of Colgate's scores.

Coach Mark Randall, now in his ninth season, believes that if his Braves win this road game they stand a good chance of going undefeated.

But Randall's hopes will have to depend on a Colgate defense that can bottle up Penn State's powerful offensive play. In its first three wins the Nittany squad has been pushing close to ten goals into the nets each game to boast one of the highest scoring teams in the East.

Colgate on the other hand has been eking out victories by one and two points. The Raiders' win over R.P.I. was a one-point affair coming in a double overtime. Last fall Colgate and Penn State battled in an overtime contest at Hamilton, N.Y., for two extra periods until the Lions finally scored to edge the Braves, 1-0.

Pigskin Coin Flips...

Out On a Limb

The Daily Collegian's gridiron guessing classic goes into its fifth week today, and the number one question seems to be—will the coaches get back into the running?

Before taking his gridders "deep into the heart of Texas" in quest of win number four, head Lion coach Rip Engle nominated assistant Tor Toretti to go "out on a limb" in an attempt to bring the Nittany mentors back into the running.

Scribe Roy Williams currently is setting the pace for the quartet of swamies with his .733 average. His 12-3 performance of last week brought his total to 44-16 to put him in the driver's seat.

Assistant sports writer, Herm Weiskopf, is Williams' closest competitor, predicting correctly on a even two-thirds of the games thus far to sport a .666 slate.

The number three man in the contest, ironically enough, is Dick McDowell, number one man around the Collegian sports desk. Going into the fifth edition of the weekly selections, he owns a .650 average.

The word has been going around that the sports editor is settling for nothing less than a perfect day—15 correct picks or nothing. We'll see...

Last, but (in keeping with the saying) not least, are the coaches. Joe Paterno, J. T. White, Jim O'Hara, and Earl Bruce have combined thus far to come out on top on 37 of the 60 contests to date. The average Toretti hopes to improve stands at .616.

Three 1-0 Victories Highlight IM's

By DAVE BRONSTEIN

Three consecutive one-point victories, along with rough and tumble touch football, highlighted intramural action under the Beaver Field lights last night. And in the final game Phi Gamma Delta scored a decisive two-touchdown win.

Alpha Chi Sigma topped a stubborn Delta Upsilon nine, 1-0; Jesters outfought the Red Dogs, 1-0; Mustangs eked a win over North Star, 1-0; and Phi Gamma Delta defeated Alpha Gamma Rho, 12-0.

Delta Upsilon found Alpha Chi Sigma an immovable object in its hopes for a football title. The two teams had to go into overtime before the outcome was decided.

Punting Battle

The first half exhibited nothing of the outstanding nature as the teams locked themselves in a punting battle. Bill Greenawalt, who averaged 50 yards on four kicks for Alpha Chi Sigma, and Frank Briador, Delta Upsilon, did the punting that kept each opponent from making a threat.

With nine minutes remaining in the second half, Alpha Chi Sigma recorded the game's initial first down. Bill Moyer did some fancy dancing, jiggering and dodging on a 60-yard run to tie the game in first downs.

In overtime, Alpha Chi Sigma drew first blood on an eight-yard pass play from Greenawalt to Bob Bishop. DU picked six of the yards back on a pass from Dave Adams to Moyer.

Both teams completed passes on their second round in overtime.

After the third and final series of plays, Alpha Chi Sigma was five yards in DU territory. This was enough for the winners to be credited with a 1-0 victory.

Move Into 3d Round

The Jesters moved into the third round of independent competition by defeating the Red Dogs, 1-0.

Through the passing of Dick Uhlman and the catching of Al Barth, the Jesters took an early lead in first downs. With six seconds remaining and on fourth down the Red Dogs gained a first-and-ten on a pass to Topper Kuebler.

The final record showed the Jesters, two first downs, the Red Dogs, one. The Jesters won the decision, also without a score.

Jerry Shaheen entered late in the game but in time to lead the Mustangs over the North Stars,

1-0. A pass play going from Carol Hynson to B. P. Wein to Jim Moore gave the Mustangs the necessary first down for victory—once again without a score.

Phi Gamma Delta, lead by Dan Wilder, topped Alpha Gamma Rho, 12-0. Wilder and Bill Clark each scored for the winners.

Monday's schedule follows: 6:30, McKee Barfers vs. Irwin Hall; 7:15, McKee Ducees vs. Royals; 8:00, Lambda Chi Alpha vs. Delta Tau Delta; 8:40, Cougars vs. Phantoms; 9:15, Tau Kappa Epsilon vs. Chi Phi.

Shows Improvement

Ron Younker, Penn State wing-back, is currently enjoying what his coach, Rip Engle, describes as his best year on the gridiron. Younker credits his improvement to the competition provided by a sophomore newcomer, Billy Kane.
