

Starr Named HEc Council Faculty Adviser

Muriel Starr, associate professor of home management, has been named Home Economics student council adviser for this year.

The council passed a constitutional amendment motion to enable it to set up a committee to nominate faculty advisers. Under the present system the adviser is selected by the faculty of the Home Economics College. The motion will be voted on in two subsequent meetings in order to become an amendment.

The council voted to use treasury funds to help support the Home Ec News and Views. The home economics scholar-

Ed Prof to Attend Work Conference

Margaret A. Neuber, associate professor of special education, will attend a work conference concerned with the preparation of teachers of exceptional children next week in Washington, D.C.

The University was represented at a similar conference held with the United States Office of Education and the National Society for Crippled Children and Adults in 1948.

The University and Hunter College, New York City, are the only institutions offering a sequence of courses for the preparation of certified teachers of exceptional children.

ship banquet will be held Nov. 11. Scholarship recipients, officers of home economics organizations, and faculty representatives will attend the banquet.

Prof to Talk To Slide Club

Members of the State College Color Slide Club will hear Winston R. Weisman, assistant professor of fine arts, speak on "Art Print Photography" at 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Mineral Science Auditorium.

Weisman will demonstrate copying techniques and how the 35 millimeter camera can be used to record and reproduce paintings and other material on color film in an illustrated talk.

Milton S. Osborne, head of the Department of Architecture and Architectural Engineering, will judge the monthly Color Slide competition. Members are to bring two color slides for the judging.

All interested persons may attend.

Rosary to Be Recited

Members of the Newman Club will lead the recitation of the rosary at 4 p.m. every day at Our Lady of Victory Church, Fairmount avenue and Frazier street.

The daily observance is followed by all churches of the Catholic faith during the month of October in honor of the Blessed Lady.

COME TO CHURCH

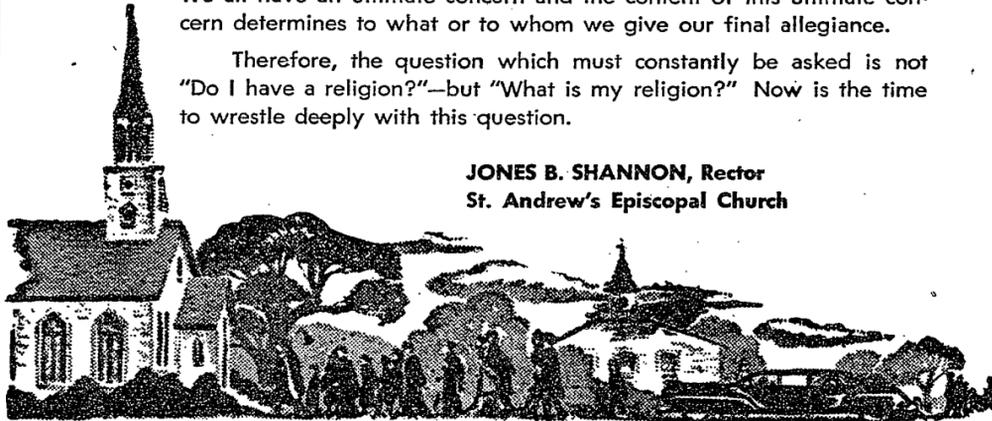

The Way They See It

What part does religion play in your life?

The answer to this question is that your religion, whatever it may be, gives meaning to every other aspect of your life. The basis for this statement is the fact that all of us worship something or someone. We all have an ultimate concern and the content of this ultimate concern determines to what or to whom we give our final allegiance.

Therefore, the question which must constantly be asked is not "Do I have a religion?"—but "What is my religion?" Now is the time to wrestle deeply with this question.
