

Career Day Panelists Picked

Two leaders in industrial management and an economic analyst will take part in Career Day panel discussions sponsored by the College of Business Administration on Nov. 4.

The men are Charles D. Reeder, economic analyst for the Armstrong Cork Co., Lancaster; William C. Decker, president of the Corning Glass Works, Corning, N.Y.; and George D. Lobingier, manager of Westinghouse Electrical Corp., East Pittsburgh.

Loneragan—

According to Lonergan, a firm in the stocking industry offered a lot of stockings to the union members at a wholesale price. Lonergan said union members paid a price for the stockings which gave the union a ten percent profit. He said the money was redeposited in the account of Local 67. He added that the money had been entered in the books simply as "dues and fees."

Hellz also reported that payments of $135 to certain officers of the union during September over and above their regular compensation were never properly accounted for.

He said that $100 had been given to George Dixon, former president of Local 67 and now president of Local 417.

Dixon said the $100 was voted to him by the executive board for service and work he had done. He reported several trips to Harrisburg and Bellefonte.

At Friday's meeting, Dixon returned the $100 as a donation to Local 417. "I am returning it to you because it is your money, and does not belong to Local 67," he said.

Dairy Prof—

(Continued from page one) ment, became alarmed when Hall did not appear for a 9 o'clock class this morning. He phoned the Hall home several times, but no one answered. He finally called Mrs. Dean Williams who lives in Pleasant Gap. She, in turn, called Mrs. Neil McNall, a next door neighbor of the Halls.

Mrs. McNall found a bedroom window of the one-story house open, and saw Mrs. Hall lying on the floor. She summoned neighbors for help.

Hall was found in the bathroom and the son was found in another bedroom.

Williams said last night that one of the Hall's two other sons is on his way to State College. He is stationed with the Army at Fort Jackson, S.C. Williams said that efforts are being made to locate the other son, who is stationed with the Air Force at Loring Air Force Base, Limestone, Me. At last report he was on leave visiting his wife in Texas.

Local Center Offers Commercial Courses

Classes will meet each Tuesday and Thursday night for approximately 15 weeks. Typing is scheduled from 6:30 to 9 p.m. and shorthand from 8 to 9:30 p.m.

Women's Debate Team

Six members of the women's varsity debate team will take part in a practice debate at 7 tonight in 2 Sparks. The topic will be the national intercollegiate debate topic for the year, "Resolved: That the United States should extend diplomatic recognition to the Communist government of China."

Reeder will take part in the panel on economics in 218 Willard; Decker and Lobingier will speak in the panel on management in 121 Sparks.

Other panels will be on marketing, accounting, finance and insurance, labor management and trade, and transportation.

An evening session will have Ralph J. Bunche of the United Nations as speaker. Bunche will speak at 8 p.m. in Schwab Auditorium.

Reeder was graduated from Ohio State University in 1945, Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration in 1947 and received a doctor of philosophy degree in 1951 from Ohio State.

Decker is a Penn State alum, graduating in 1922. He was awarded his masters at Harvard Business School and an honorary doctor of law from Alfred University. He joined the Corning Glass works in 1930 and became manager of the industrial sales department. In 1934 he was transferred to the treasury department and became treasurer in 1936, a position he held until 1939 when he became controller and assistant to the president.

Reeder was elected president of the Corning Glass works in 1946. He is a member of the finance committee of the Committee for Economic Development, the University Club of New York, and the Electrical Manufacturers Club. He was elected a director of the Empire State Chamber of Commerce Inc. in 1953.

Lobingier was graduated from Lafayette in 1926 and received his masters from Penn State in 1936. He started with Westinghouse Electric Corp. in 1945 and is now manager of the educational department and directs the company's recruitment program of college graduates and the continued educational programs for the company.

Lobingier has served with the Penn State General Extension program and been in the investment banking and brokerage business in Pittsburgh and New York.

Experiment Rids Millheim Of Starlings

Thousands of starlings, chased out of Millheim last summer, were driven from the town again this summer as a part of an experiment at the University.

According to Dr. Hubert W. Frings, professor of zoology at the University, the starlings "scared out of town" during the third week of August have not returned during the past two months and have now probably migrated to warmer climates.

Millheim was chosen as a site for the starling tests last summer because it was within easy driving distance of State College, was small enough that it could be covered with the equipment available, and the terrain made it possible to easily observe the movement of the birds. Since the community had a starling problem for many years, the residents were extremely cooperative in working on the project.

The experiments last year were conducted between Aug. 31 and Sept. 2 and the birds did not return after this treatment. Last July, however, the starlings again began to assemble on the town, and on Aug. 17 Joseph F. Jumber, a graduate student who worked with Dr. Frings, again applied the treatment, once more removing the birds.

As a result of the research conducted in Millheim, State College, and elsewhere, a machine known as the "Bird-E-Vict" has been developed and patented. It is now produced and distributed by Mohawk Business Machines Corporation, Brooklyn, N.Y., and during the past year many communities have used the device to fight their starling problem.

Professor to Address MI Colloquium Today

E. Willard Miller, professor of geography, will speak at the second of a series of Mineral Industries Colloquiums at 4:15 p.m. today in the Mineral Industries Auditorium in Mineral Industries.

Miller will speak on "An Analysis of the Southern Anthracite Region—A Problem Mineral Area."

Future Mineral Industries Colloquiums will be held Nov. 5 and 19, Dec. 3 and 17.

Court Holds 2 For Hit-Run

Two students have been held for action by County Court after they were involved in a hit-run accident Friday night at Locust Lane and E. Fairmount avenue.

The driver, Glein Hoffman, third semester student, was found guilty Saturday by Guy O. Mills, justice of the peace for failing to stop at the scene of the accident, and was ordered to pay a fine of $25 plus costs. Hoffman failed to stop after the car he was driving hit a parked car.

William Bradstock, first semester electrical engineering major, was ordered to appear in court on charges of permitting Hoffman to drive his car while intoxicated, and Hoffman was ordered held on charges of driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

Both were freed on $200 bail.

Oliver to Discuss Geneva Conclave

Robert Oliver, head of the department of speech, will address the International Relations Club meeting at 7:30 tonight in the main lounge of McElwain. Dr. Oliver's topic will be "Highlights of the Geneva Conference."

Oliver attended the Geneva Conference last summer as an adviser to the delegation from the Republic of South Korea. He will bring a first-hand report of the meeting with him.

A question and answer period will follow Oliver's talk.

4 Colleges Enact Ban On Debates

Student debate on recognition of Communist China has been banned by four Nebraska state-supported teachers colleges, the United Press has reported.

"Resolved: That the United States should extend diplomatic recognition to the Communist government of China" is the national intercollegiate debate topic for the school year. The choice of the Speech Association of America, the topic will be used in most intercollegiate debates and tournaments throughout the nation.

University of Omaha
After the colleges at Kearney, Wayne, Peru, and Chardon announced the ban, the president of the University of Omaha said his school would take similar action.

Herbert L. Cushing, president of Kearney College, said he opposed debaters spending "half their time arguing the Communist side."

In debate, the affirmative speakers must show reasons why it is necessary, desirable and practical for the U.S. to recognize the Communist regime.

Defends Topic
Glen Mills, associate professor of public speaking and director of forensics at Northwestern University, said, "It is a ridiculous assumption to feel that students will be hurt by examining the affirmative side of the question."

"To prevent a student from reading about Red China is to hold a naive hope that people can be saved through ignorance . . . The more the kids learn about Communists the more they will be against them," Mills said.
