

Good Penn Conduct Sought by Arnelle

Letter and editorial on page four

All-University President Jesse Arnelle yesterday asked students to be considerate of the name and prestige of the University in their conduct this weekend in Philadelphia.

In a statement to the Daily Collegian, Arnelle said: "Needless to say, many students are excited and happy over the news concerning the half-holiday. Likewise the Student Government association is happy to have been of assistance in having this proposal materialize.

Blue Band To Perform At Penn

Eleven players on the football team are not any more excited about the big game tomorrow than 92 players in the Penn State Marching Blue Band.

Their Halloween routine, worked out by Hummel Fishburn, professor of music, will highlight the half-time intermission.

Before the game, the band members will enter from the end zone, playing the "National Emblem March," and form a large PENN facing the University of Pennsylvania cheering section. Without a pause they will swing into the "Penn State Victory Song" and turn around to form a large STATE. They will leave the stadium from the sidelines.

During halftime, the band will again come onto the field from the end zone after the traditional fanfare to the "Nittany Lion." Facing the Penn State cheering section it will spell out PSU and play the Penn State "Alma Mater." The band will go into the formation of crossed bones, while the announcer explains that Halloween season suggested the eerie routine.

In the crossed bones figure it will play "Dry Bones," and then form a jack-o-lantern.

As the band plays "Peter, Peter, Pumpkin Eater," the jack-o-lantern face will change from a frown to a grin. Then the group will form a jug and play "Little Brown Jug."

From the "Jug" formation members will form a cat. In the cat position, they will play and sing "I Tot I Saw a Puddy Cat," while the cat's tail moves up and down.

From this figure they will outline the traditional Halloween witch and play "Black Magic." Then they will march off the field in the witch formation playing "Happy Wanderer."

Thespians Initiate Twenty-three Students

Twenty-three students were recently initiated into Penn State Thespians, Frank Cressman, president, announced.

They are Sue Abell, John Beachley, Martha Colaianni, James Ellis, Charlotte Fink, Ruth Fitz, Louis Fryman, Seymour Goldstein, Edwin Grove, Judith Hartman, Robert Heitz, Lawrence Huntsman, Marvin Jackson, Aaron Kaye, George Keller, William Landis, Robert Martz, Caryl Newitt, Barbara Patton, Harvey Schneider, Dolores Spathis and Donald Ziegler.

"However, many of you can recall or have heard reference to the incidents which occurred in Philadelphia after the University of Pennsylvania game last year. Another episode of this nature would reflect very, very badly on the University and its prestige.

"Also, it would breach the faith the Council of Administration placed on the maturity of the students when it accepted the half-holiday proposal.

Student Cooperation Asked
"Through joint student government-administration cooperation the privilege of extending a half-holiday has been granted. Such cooperation on the part of the student body is needed for the success of Penn weekend.

"This weekend some seven million people will be watching the 'game of the week' over the National Broadcasting Company television network. And, as Coach Rip Engle said to the football squad, it will be the greatest opportunity that this University will have had to foster its prestige through the play of our football team and the participation of the alumni and student body.

Alums Will Help
"The football team will be giving its all, win or lose, to live up to the good reputation of the University, not only on the field, but also off the field. I am sure that the alumni will do their share, and now I am asking you, the student body, to be as considerate.

"This letter was not written to put a damper on the fun you should have this weekend, but to ask you to be considerate in the type of enthusiasm you display throughout the Penn holiday.

"If students demonstrate a sincere effort in executing the responsibilities that accord such privileges as this half-holiday, I am sure that the Student Government Association and the administration will be helpful in every way that it is possible, in extending such privileges in the future."

Chartering Altered, Amendment Held Cabinet OK Lacks Parties Must Get Two-Thirds Vote Senate Approval

By DON SHOEMAKER

An amendment which would have established a set procedure for substitutions on All-University Cabinet was defeated by cabinet last night because of the lack of a two-thirds vote necessary to amend the All-University Constitution.

The vote was 15 in favor of the amendment, six against, and three abstentions.

The amendment, proposed by Benjamin Sinclair, president of the Board of Dramatics and Forensics, would have provided that in the absence of a cabinet member, the constitution of the absent members organization would be the determining factor in filling the seat. If there is no provision in the organization's constitution, the vice president would be seated and thereafter seating would be granted according to the hierarchy established by the organization's constitution.

Amendment Provides
The amendment also provided that in the case of a vacancy in the All-University offices, those chairs should remain vacant.

The amendment which was defeated last night was the original amendment which Sinclair presented to cabinet two weeks ago. Cabinet voted last night to strike out the amendment proposed last week by John Speer, All-University vice president.

Speer's amendment would have provided that in case of a vacancy in the All-University offices, the chairman of Tribunal or Judicial in that order would sit on cabinet.

Judicial, Tribunal ex-officio
The amendment was voted back to its original form because it was felt that since the chairman of Tribunal and Judicial are already ex-officio members of cabinet, and therefore could not assume a seat for someone else.

Thomas Kidd, cabinet parliamentarian, pointed out that according to parliamentary law, an ex-officio member of a body is entitled to a vote in his own right by virtue of his office. Kidd pointed out that this is not followed at the University. "Penn State, by tradition, defines 'ex-officio' as without a vote," he said.

Leese Explains Vote
Watson Leese, president of the Liberal Arts Student Council, told Cabinet his council had voted against the amendment because it felt that members of a judicial body should not have a vote on legislation. He then moved to strike the second part of the amendment as altered by Speer.

By MIKE MILLER

All-University Cabinet last night decided it did not have power to charter political parties and recommended to the elections committee that they change the elections code to read that political parties will be chartered by the University Senate committee on student affairs.

The action was taken after more than an hour debate as to whether cabinet could charter political parties.

George L. Donovan, director of the Associated Student Activities, said Cabinet does not have power to charter campus groups. He said this power rests solely with the senate committee.

Kidd Quotes Constitution
Thomas Kidd, Cabinet parliamentarian, quoted the All-University constitution as giving cabinet power to "charter and remove charters" of campus groups.

Donovan, however, stated that was in violation of accepted practice on campus. He said campus political parties have always been given rooms in which to meet by the scheduling officer because the administration has felt they are part of student government.

He said groups are granted these rights only if they are chartered by the senate committee.

Kidd, Donovan Agree
Kidd agreed with Donovan, and suggested that cabinet should order political parties to seek a charter from the senate committee.

Gordon Pogal, Lion Party clique chairman, before presenting his constitution, asked cabinet why he had to present the constitution.

Kidd said the reading was required to see if the constitution was legal and conformed to the elections code.

Pogal asked why this was necessary since the elections committee is a cabinet-appointed committee and had already approved the constitution.

Ellsworth Smith, substituting for John Carpenter, Interfraternity Council president, said the reason cabinet was required to pass on the motion was to act as a check for anything the elections committee might have overlooked.

FMA Changes Are Outlined By Perkins

Assistant Dean of Men Harold W. Perkins outlined the Fraternity Marketing Association program and changes at FMA's monthly meeting held last night at Zeta Beta Tau.

Perkins said that last year FMA members had to order certain canned goods from specific vendors. He said this had been altered so that members of FMA could choose from any of the vendors.

Perkins said that orders for meat and canned goods are now being taken weekly and cited that orders were placed bi-monthly last year.

To become a member of FMA a fraternity must sign a contract to buy either all meat or all canned goods through the association. Clifford A. Nelson, an adviser to FMA, said that most fraternities should realize between $300 to $500 savings before the end of the school year.

Fraternities may submit names of members for a vacant seat on FMA's board of Trustees. Names must be submitted to Dean Perkins, 109 Old Main, by 5 p.m. Monday.

Sports Issue

The Daily Collegian will publish a four-page all-sports issue tomorrow. Issues will be distributed both on campus and at the football game in Philadelphia.

Post Office to Issue Centennial Stamp

A special Centennial postage stamp, commemorating the 100th anniversary of the University and Michigan State University, will be issued next year, Louis H. Bell, director of public information, said yesterday.

The stamp, officially announced by Postmaster General Arthur H. Summerfield Wednesday, will honor the first land grant colleges in the nation—Michigan State College, founded Feb. 12, 1855, and the University, founded Feb. 22, 1855, Bell said.

The design of the stamp is not yet definite, Bell said. Officials from the University and Michigan State combined ideas, planned a design for the stamp, and submitted the design to the Post Office department, he said. The artist in the Post Office department who must give the final approval on the design of the stamp told officials of the University that the stamp's design is not yet definite, Bell said.

The stamp will be first issued from the post office in East Lansing, Mich., on Feb. 12, Bell said. He said there will probably be a ceremony when it is issued.

Bell also stated that the stamp will probably be issued at the University Feb. 22. Plans for the event have not yet been made, he said. President Eisenhower will have to approve the plans.

The request for the Centennial stamp was first made last year by Sen. Edward Martin (R-Pa.) at the request of the Board of Trustees of the University during the session of Congress. The request, referred from Congress to the Post Office department, was turned down by the department.

The denial, sent to President Eisenhower by Summerfield, stated the request was turned down because the Post Office department does not issue commemorative stamps to honor universities.

He said there are too many colleges and universities to make the granting of these requests practical.

German Unity Statement Issued

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 (AP)—President Dwight D. Eisenhower joined West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer today in tying Germany's reunification hopes to a strong free Europe rather than Russia's proposal for four-power talks.

In a joint statement the two heads of government said they have "no doubt that the strengthening of free Europe which will result from the recent London and Paris agreements will aid our efforts to bring freedom and unity to all of the German people."

They found nothing new in the latest Soviet note, one of a series dangling before West Germans the lure of a conference of Russia, France, Britain and the United States that might end the division of their country. Eisenhower and his guest, Adenauer, agreed.

"It is our initial view that this does not seem to offer any new proposal on the part of the Soviet Union; it appears essentially as a reiteration of the positions taken by Molotov (Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov) at the conference in Berlin regarding Germany and European security."

Thus Adenauer received renewed support from the highest level of the U.S. government for his campaign to have the German Parliament put its trust in the Paris and London agreements on German sovereignty and rearmament.

These agreements, completed only five days ago, must stand their chances in all the parliaments concerned, including the West German. Russia, implacable foe of German rearmament, can be expected to redouble efforts to defeat them, perhaps by more insistence on four-power talks on German reunification, perhaps by more spectacular moves such as withdrawing troops from East Germany or proposing a peace treaty with neighboring Austria.

Today's statement was issued after Adenauer met for half an hour with Eisenhower and an additional hour and a half with Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.
