

Lions Are 20 Point Favorites

Forty Million to View Nittanies In Quest of Win Number Four

By DICK McDOWELL

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Still smarting from the wounds of two straight defeats, Penn State moves into Franklin Field here today to battle Pennsylvania's winless Quakers in television's game of the week.

The Lions—20-point favorites in this one—will be going after their fourth win of the season while Sebo's Red and Blue eleven is searching for its first victory.

Over 40 million fans, including an expected 45,000 here at the huge stadium, will watch these two teams battle in the 43rd game of a long and colorful rivalry.

Game time is 2 p.m.

Rip Engle's gridders, burning mad after dropping two straight games to West Virginia and Texas Christian, will be out to avenge a 13-7 defeat handed them by the Quakers in last year's game.

Have Lost Nine

But there are some who believe that the Quakers are far from dead. The downtrodden Ivy Leaguers have lost nine games in a row now, including five last season. But they have shown occasional spurts of life in losing causes against Duke, William & Mary, Princeton, George Washington, and Navy.

Statistically the Lions have the edge. They outweigh Penn on the line—210 to 205—and match them in the backfield. And of course, they get an edge when seasonal records are compared.

Lineup Changes

However, recurring injuries in the Penn State camp may force a change in the expected Penn State lineup. Ron Younker, who injured his shoulder against TCU, may be forced to sit this one out, and Bill Straub still hasn't recovered from a leg ailment that has kept him under wraps for two weeks. Should the pair of backs be unable to start, that would bring in sophomore halfback Billy Kane, and fullback Frank Della Penna. Otherwise the Lion starting lineup will probably remain unchanged.

Moore Biggest Threat

As usual hope will be resting heavily on the explosive ball totting of halfback Lenny Moore, probably the best back in the east and a hot contender for All-American honors this year. Moore needs just 28 yards today to break his own best total of 601, set last year.

Sebo, the former Michigan State aid, will be making some lineup changes himself this week, but not because of injuries. Slumping halfback Walt Hynoski has been benched in an effort to shake the Quakers out of their losing habits. Bob Lebegood will move into the lineup at halfback.

Hyland Leads Penn

Sebo's biggest hopes lie in the person of Neil Hyland, a sophomore halfback who has kept the Penn "multiple" offense from falling to pieces completely this season. He has over 200 yards rushing in five games.

The Lions arrived here last night by train after a light workout at Beaver Field yesterday afternoon. The 38-man squad is staying at the Warwick hotel.

This grid series began back in 1890 and since then Penn has won 25 of the 42 games played, while the Lions have come up with 13 victories. Four games end in ties.

Two undefeated records will be laid on the line and tested when Army tangles with Penn State's soccer squad at noon today. The Black Knights from the banks of the Hudson sport a 4-0-1 record, compared to the Nittany Lions' 4-0 card.

Penn State Coach Ken Hosterman will stick with the same lineup which has paced the Lions in crushing four opponents—Bucknell, 14-1; Maryland, 5-1; Syracuse, 9-2; and Colgate, 6-0. The Lions also hold a win over Sampson Air Force Base, dropping the military squad, 18-2.

The front line for Penn State will be molded by five lettermen, all of whom have scored at least one goal this season.

Center forward Dick Packer, a junior, leads the offensive parade of scoring with 13 goals; Captain Jack Pinezich, outside left, is second with eight. Dick Matacia, inside left, has five goals. Mert Springer and Joe Mijares—both playing the right side of the line—have two each. Substitute lineman Tom Nute, a sophomore, has three tallies.

Penn State's powerful scoring attack has stacked up 34 goals in four games—an average of better than eight goals a game. The Sampson Air Force score has not been tallied in any of the above statistics.

On the defense Penn State has been equally as strong, allowing only four goals. Two of these goals, however, were scored when play-calling tactics by the Lions' defensive net ran afoul.

Defense Outstanding

Fullbacks Paul Dierks, a four-year man on the Lions' soccer squad, and Galen Robbins, a letterman, have coupled their defensive talents with junior goalie George Geczy to handcuff the opponents' scoring drive when they penetrate Lion territory.

Dierks, Robbins, and Geczy combined their efforts against Colgate—the first team that actually put the pressure on the Lions for most of the game—by knotting each of the Raider's attempts to score.

But three other men have been instrumental in not only the Lions' defensive strength, but also the scoring barrage. Halfbacks Ihor Stelynk and Gerry Gillispie—both lettermen—and sophomore Steve Flamporis, who is the only regular who is not a letterman, have plagued the opponents' with a two-way effectiveness.

Army Wins 4

A ten-man Penn State cross-country team will tangle with one of the finest squads in the nation today when it battles the Pitt Panthers in Pittsburgh.

Chick Werner's Lions will be definite underdogs when the two teams resume their rivalry after a two-year layoff. The Panthers have won 14 straight regular-season meets and are rated as the No. 1 threat for the IC4A championships.

Jim Pastorius, Penn State junior who makes his home in Pittsburgh, will captain the Nittany hill-and-dalers against Carl Olson's squad.

Sowell Paces Pitt

Pitt, paced by sensational Arnie Sowell, has come a long way in the past few seasons. When the Lions and the Panthers last met in 1952 the Blue and White harriers were riding on the crest of a long series of wins over Pitt. Penn State perennially possesses one of the best teams in the nation, but now the tables have turned, with the Panthers holding the upper hand.

Werner will have a rough time matching Olson's top six harriers. Sowell, Captain Alan Gunderson, Thornton Smith, Jim Moore, John Schubert, and Bob Cherry form the Panthers' top half dozen hill-and-dalers.

Three Seniors to Run

Three seniors, three juniors, and four sophomores will be competing for the Lions. Seniors Gene McKelvey, Ted Garrett, and John Chillrud could give the Panthers a rough time.

Pastorius, Doug Moorhead, and Bruce Austin are the juniors who will be running today. Although he started the season as just another runner, Pastorius has im- (Continued on page four)

9 Win in IM Basketball

Nine more victories were posted last night at Rec Hall as IM basketball opened its second night of action.

In the first game the Iron Men beat the 69ers 18-6 behind some late period scoring. The Green Smokers routed the 29 raiders in the second game 31-18, on the strength of some excellent Smoker shooting. In the closest match of the night the Trompers edged out the McKee Barfers in 28-27.

In another thriller, McKee's Monsters dumped the Gnats 33-28.

In a low scoring game Dorm 44 edged by Dorm 27 14-13.

The Cyclones lived up to their name as they breezed by the Cavemen 43-12 in a game filled with spectacular shooting. The Chug-Lugs handed the Jordan Hotshots a 32-24 defeat.

In probably the most exciting contest of the night the Eagles swept by Dorm 11 31-28, traveling one extra period to get the win.

In the final contest Irvin Buffaloes routed the 4-F's, 50-29.
