PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2 (AP)—Swept along by a lead that was nearing the 100,000-vote mark in Philadelphia, Democrat George M. Leader forged ahead by more than 110,000 votes in the race for the governorship of Pennsylvania with over one fourth of all the state's precincts counted.

In Lehigh County, with the vote total nearly complete, Leader was ahead by 28,465 to 25,733 in 100 of 108 precincts. In 1950, the GOP won in Lehigh 28,009 to 25,110.

Two Given Probation By Tribunal

Two students who Monday were each fined $100 and given 10 days jail sentences for their part in a hit-run automobile accident have been given disciplinary probation by Tribunal.

The group, which heard the cases last week, specified, however, that the students, one a first semester electrical engineering major, the other a third semester department of intermediate registration student, may petition to participate in extra-curricula activities next fall.

The other provisions of disciplinary probation—that the ruling be noted on the student's permanent records and that the student must report from time to time to the Dean of Men—will still apply in this case.

The two students pleaded guilty at the Tribunal hearing to the charge of conduct "detrimental to the good name of the University and unbecoming a student." They also admitted the specifications of the charge: driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages and leaving the scene of an accident.

Tribunal ruled that the students may ask the Dean of Men to allow them to participate in extra-curricula activities after the fall semester of 1955.

Kenworthy Lauds Students' Conduct

Students were commended on their conduct last weekend at Philadelphia in a statement yesterday by Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs.

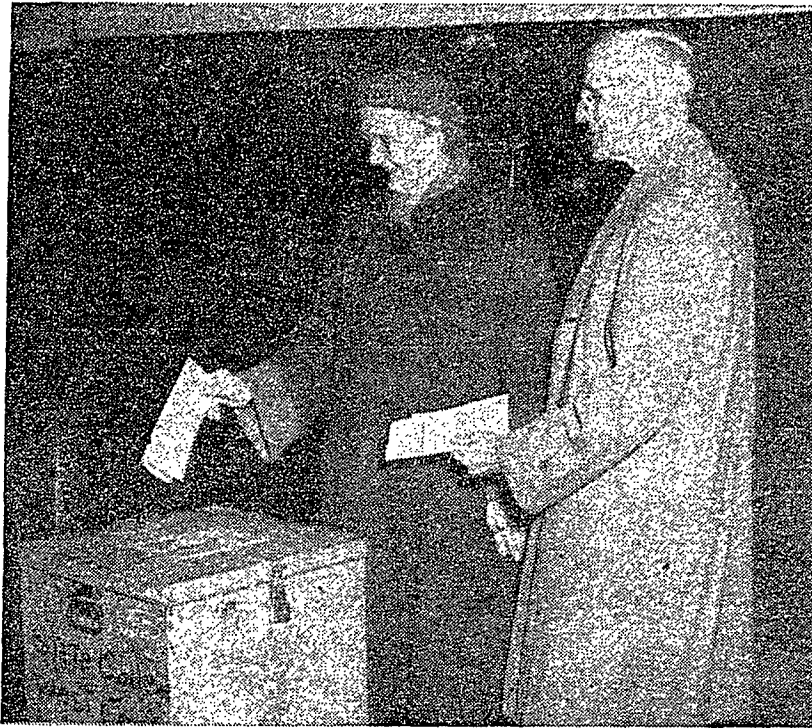

Kenworthy said that he had received no reports criticizing the conduct of University students and that reports he had received were good. He pointed out that this was a body which lived up to its responsibilities.

Kenworthy said he believed he had waited long enough after the weekend to make this statement since any complaints would have reached him by now. He said he had contacted several persons who reported that the conduct was nothing like last year's.

No damage to hotel property or comments on student conduct were reported in any of the Philadelphia newspapers. Last year papers carried front page stories on the damage done to hotels where University students stayed and criticisms of student conduct during the weekend.

BOROUGH RESIDENTS, Mr. and Mrs. Russell C. Pearce, 220 S. Allen street, cast their ballots yesterday in the elections which determined whether State College or Mt. Nittany would, in the future, be included on the borough's postmark. The majority of voters supported the traditional name, however, so the issue is closed—for a while.

Campus Post Office Almost Certain Now

By MIKE MILLER

The rejection of the name change yesterday by borough voters makes it almost a certainty that the University will open its own post office in the near future.

John L. McClucas, chairman of the committee of 50, said Monday that the University had received assurance from the postmaster general's office that it may open a post office on the campus.

The post office will carry a name to be selected by the University Board of Trustees and will be a sub-station to the borough post office.

The main purpose at the campus post office is to clear up the current misconceptions regarding the status of the University.

University Dateline

When the post office is set up news releases from the University will be datelined with the name of the campus post office.

This change in the dateline, it is hoped, will eliminate the confusion surrounding the State College dateline.

According to specifications outlined in the letter to the University from the Postmaster General, the University must provide approximately 600 square feet of office space and also heat, light, and water. The postal department will provide the necessary furniture and equipment.

The University received permission for a campus postal station in a letter from Postmaster General Arthur Summerfield, dated April 16.

Friends of State College

The Friends of State College claimed Monday that the postal department felt that "The establishment of a classified station or a branch at State College was not warranted."

The Friends of State College quoted N. R. Abrams, assistant postmaster general, as writing that in a letter dated Aug. 12.

McClucas released the letter from Summerfield Monday in refutation of the statement made by the Friends of State College.

2434 Reject Mt. Nittany As 70% Vote

By MIKE MILLER

Borough voters overwhelmingly rejected the proposed name change to Mt. Nittany yesterday, 2434 to 1475. The returns are unofficial.

Despite the all-day snow there was an exceptionally good turnout at the polls as 4056 out of 5621 registered voters cast their ballots.

Voting was heavy in all six of the borough precincts except the east precinct where only 365 out of 612 registered voters went to the polls.

In the other five precincts over 70 per cent of the registered voters expressed their feelings on the name change.

Dill Declines Comment

E. G. Dill, chairman of the Friends of State College, had no comment on the election results when contacted last night.

John H. Frizzell, member of the Committee of 50, said "the returns seem to speak for themselves." John M. McClucas, chairman of the Committee of 50, had left town after casting his ballot and was unavailable for comment.

The defeat of the proposed name of Mt. Nittany ends a controversy that has existed since the question was placed on the ballot last summer.

Committee Chose Name

The name was chosen by the Committee of 50 after 760 signatures—210 more than necessary—were obtained on a petition asking for the change.

The Friends of State College were then formed to oppose the change.

The Friends of State College stressed tradition, sentiment, and the inconvenience the change would cause residents as the main reasons the voters should defeat the name change.

Confusion Emphasized

The Committee of 50 emphasized the confusion surrounding the status of the University and the plans for the campus post office if the change was defeated as the reasons for the new name.
