2-Day Snow Brings Total To 5½ Inches

Five and one-half inches of snow fell during a sporadic snowfall, the first of the season, that lasted from early Monday night to mid-afternoon yesterday, the University Weather Station reported.

Two and one-half inches fell during the past two days, which, added to the three inches that dropped Monday night, brought the total to the present depth.

Yesterday's snow was kept from being as great as anticipated by the mercury which hovered around the freezing mark, causing some rain and thus melting snow already on the ground.

Today will be partly cloudy and cold, a weather station spokesman said. Temperatures are expected to be slightly lower than yesterday, probably in the mid-40's. Temperatures were predicted in the mid-20's for last night and tonight.

Tomorrow will also be partly cloudy and a little warmer.

Directory Sale Begins Monday

The 1954-55 Student Directory will go on sale Monday for 50 cents at the recorders office in the basement of Willard, at the Book Exchange, and at borough book stores.

The directory will be made up of 208 pages, listing approximately 12,100 students on campus and at Mont Alto.

One of the new features in the directory this year is a guide containing University statistics and history. There will also be a telephone number guide inside the back cover listing offices students might want to call, such as offices of the deans and the chaplain.

A list of transportation facilities and a list of residence hall counselors and resident fraternity housemothers will also be included.

A Farmer's High School seal and a University seal will decorate the cover carrying out the idea of a Centennial theme.

Penn State Radio Guild To Meet Tonight

The 1954-55 Penn State Radio Guild will plan its fall program at 7:30 tonight in 312 Sparks.

The Radio Guild, which is designed to fill the needs of those who cannot make radio their major activity, includes all phases of radio work. The meeting is open to all students.

David Schofield, sixth semester student, baritone, won third prize with his rendition of Rodgers' "With a Song in My Heart" and Jerome Kern's "All the Things You Are."

35 Students Fined $121 By Court

Thirty-five student traffic violators were fined a total of $121 by Traffic Court at its last two sessions.

Eight students were either dismissed or suspended by court. Suspension means that if the student incurs another violation, it will automatically be held against him and he must pay the court the fine for both violations.

At Tuesday night's session, court found eight students guilty of first violations, involving fines of $1 apiece. Four second violators were fined $3 apiece.

Three students, guilty of third violations, were fined $5 apiece and placed on Traffic Court probation. This involves complying with all traffic regulations and penalty for a fourth violation is a $10 fine and suspension of campus driving privileges for 60 days.

One student was found guilty of a fourth violation.

A student guilty of a fifth violation will have his car sent home for 16 weeks.

Parking in the Pattee Library, service drives will not be permitted at any time during class hours, Mark Weiner, court chairman, said.

Weiner asked students to call the Campus Patrol office before parking for emergency purposes in an area not allocated to them. Otherwise, he said, emergency parking in such areas will not be tolerated for any reason by Campus Patrol.

Weiner said it is the student's responsibility to re-attach a loose sticker on his car or replace a lost one through the Campus Patrol office. Failure to do this may result in a fine, he said.

Beginning next week, Traffic Court will hold sessions at 7 p.m. Monday instead of Tuesday in 205 Old Main, Weiner announced.

Off-Year Record Vote Gives Democrats Control of House

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3 (AP)—Democrats clinched command of the House today and Republicans fought furiously to save control of the Senate in an election of baffling cross currents that kept the Senate outcome in doubt.

Teeter-totter races at opposite ends of the country, in New Jersey and Oregon, held the key to the Senate outcome. The GOP led in both by shaky margins—by little more than 200 votes in New Jersey.

For the Democrats, the election certainly brought forth nothing like the tremendous tide of victory they had scented.

And while the shift definitely was to the party out of power, in keeping with tradition in non-presidential elections it represented no clear-cut defeat for the Eisenhower administration's program and policies.

The great political verdict of 1954 did reject Eisenhower's strong, repeated bids for a completely Republican Congress with which to work in his next two years in the White House.

And out of an election that produced a record off-year vote of upwards of 45 million, the Republicans at best could claim no better than a 48-48 Senate tie, counting Independent Wayne Morse with 47 Democrats. That would bestow upon Vice President Nixon power to break a deadlock and throw control to the GOP.

Furthermore, Democrats still had a chance, by nosing out in either undecided race, to take undisputed control of the Senate, with Morse's promised support.

In governorship races, 34 of them across the nation, the Democrats crunched out more impressive victories than in the congress-sional battle. Without yielding one of their own, they kept alive the trend that started with the election of a Democratic governor in Maine in September.

Tuesday's results added scalps of seven more Republican governors to the Democratic collection. The Maine trend kept in going straight down the Atlantic seaboard, Connecticut, mighty New York, Pennsylvania.

It appeared again in Minnesota, and in the West in Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona.

Admittedly "astonished and surprised" at some of the results from Tuesday's balloting, President Eisenhower told a news conference that "no, I don't" see any disapproval of administration policies in loss of the House. Nor, he said, did he detect any repudiation of the program of his administration.

Blood Forms Due Tomorrow

Pledge forms for the blood drive Nov. 10 and 11 should be turned in by tomorrow, Betty Buchanan, chairman of the drive, said last night.

However, students who have pledge forms and must secure a minor's release form from their parents may turn them in by Monday or Tuesday.

Approximately 150 forms had been received by yesterday, Miss Buchanan reported. The quota for the drive is 300 pints.

Walk-ins will be accepted during the two-day drive.

Pledge forms are still available at the Student Union desks in Old Main and Waring Hall. The forms should be filled in and placed in the containers provided for them at the two student union desks, in the TUB, and in women's residence halls.

No Cabinet Tonight

All-University Cabinet will not meet tonight.
