

U.S. Atom Plan Details Given

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 5 (AP)—The United States gave the UN today a detailed plan for implementing President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace program. It proposed: 1. sharing materials and know-how through bilateral agreements, 2. a 1955 scientific conference and 3. formation of an international atomic energy agency.

The Soviet Union was told "the door is still open" for Russian cooperation.

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., U.S. chief delegate, spelled out for the General Assembly's political committee the details of the proposals laid down to the Assembly by the President last Dec. 8 and by Secretary of State John Foster Dulles Sept. 23.

He announced that the United States was now "prepared to start discussions with other countries for the conclusion of bilateral agreements" to supply them with atomic information, technical aid and fissionable materials for building half-million-dollar atomic research piles.

He said it also—with other unspecified countries—would sponsor an Assembly resolution to put the UN into "international cooperation in developing the use of the atom for peace" as quickly as possible.

A U.S. spokesman said tonight that seven UN countries controlling atomic piles or uranium, in a two-hour afternoon conference, had reached "virtual agreement" on such a resolution.

He said that, while some of the seven had to get instructions back from their governments, the resolution probably would be ready to circulate to the committee over the weekend. The countries are the United States, Australia, Belgium, Britain, Canada, France and South Africa.

Andrei Y. Vishinsky, Soviet deputy foreign minister, listened intently, following his copies of the speeches and sometimes taking notes. He gave no indication of when he would speak.

Confidence Vote Asked By Premier

PARIS, Nov. 5 (AP)—In a surprise move to ram his program through at record speed, Premier Pierre Mendes-France asked the National Assembly today for a vote of confidence on his handling of the French budget.

The spending has been set at about 9.5 billion dollars with a deficit of about $908 million.

He seemed likely to get the backing he wants when the Assembly meets again next Tuesday. The demand meant Mendes-France would quit if the majority votes against him. Should he and his Cabinet be thrown out, they could force the deputies to face the country in a new election.

Also at stake is the hurryup schedule he has set for Assembly approval of the treaties to bring West Germany into the alliance against communism. He wants that for mid-December. At the end of the year comes the theoretical deadline for the budget. There are other grave matters like the revolt in Algeria and the leaks from the National Defense Council to be debated first.

Tightening the schedule even further, Mendes-France will be gone on a trip to America between Nov. 13 and 24. Little can be done in his absence.

The Cabinet gave Mendes-France power to ask for votes of confidence on most of the main controversial issues before the country, and to do it as often as he finds necessary.

FPC Approves Dixon-Yates Power Contract

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5 (AP)—The Federal Power Commission revealed today that it approved the controversial Dixon-Yates power contract despite opposition from at least two of its staff officials.

Chairman Jerome K. Kuykendall told a congressional committee the commission approved the still unsigned contract by a 4-1 vote, after rejecting one staff official's list of 10 major objections. Commissioner Claude L. Draper voted against approval, he said.

This was the third directly involved government agency in which opposition has been reported officially to the plan for private interests to erect a $107-million plant to service additional power to the Tennessee Valley Authority. The power would replace some TVA electricity used by the Atomic Energy Commission.

Rep. W. Sterling Cole (R-NY), the committee chairman, told a public hearing that Congress is powerless to stop the contract from going into effect.

Sen. Albert B. Gore (D-Tenn) predicted, however, that the Democratic-controlled Congress convening in January would take steps to kill the contract.
