

Lions Crush Holy Cross For 5th Win

By DICK McDOWELL
Lenny Moore and Ron Younker, two foot-loose half-backs who have done a lot of traveling with a football, barely worked up a lather Saturday afternoon, but the fluid pair still managed to score four of six Penn State touchdowns and cover 232 yards as Penn State waltzed nonchalantly to a 39-7 win against a very outclassed Holy Cross team.

Moore, now on the doorstep of the all-America circle, played only 25 minutes but carried for 126 yards in nine tries to bring his season rushing total up to 343 yards, a new Penn State rushing record. He broke a 42-year-old mark previously held by E. E. "Shorty" Miller.

The Reading Flash scored from 56 and 16 yards out, and in the third period provided the death sting to a team that, for the first few minutes of the game, looked like it might make a battle of it.

But the Crusaders, limping from injuries, sustained in five losing ball games, just couldn't contain the overpowering Lions.

Rip Engle could have doubled the score had he wished, but he chose to let his reserves play and for the most of the second half he used his third and fourth teams against the Crusaders. In all, the Lions drove for 507 yards—405 on the ground and 102 in the air. And, defensively Engle's rugged line held the Crusaders to a 32 yards on the ground. In the air, however, quarterbacks John Stephens and Tom Roberts completed 21 of 47 passes for 211 yards.

WD Voting Today For AIM Offices

Voting for two Association of Independent Men representatives at large from a field of seven candidates will take place from 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. today in the main lobby of Waring Hall, Stanley Juras, president of West Dorm Council, has announced.

Candidates for the offices are Ronald Diesterich, Arthur Higgins, John McCabe, Spencer Tuchinsky, Roscoe Kauffman, Frederic Keck, and George McKenzie.

All male undergraduate residents of the West Dorm area are eligible to vote but must present their meal tickets to do so.

U.S. Asks Apology For Downed Plane

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8 (AP)—The United States demanded reparations from Russia today for the shooting down of an American photo-mapping bomber. The Reds countered with charges that the U.S. plane had violated Russian territory and opened fire.

As on earlier occasions of this sort, the American and Russian versions were exactly opposite. The U.S. Air Force claimed the shooting was all done by the Russians, with the American bomber not replying, and stressed that the scene was over Japanese territory. It said the American plane was never within 15 miles of Soviet territory.

A note which said "the United States strongly protests," and wants "moral and material reparations," and apology, disciplining of the Red airmen responsible and money to pay for the destroyed plane and to compensate the family of the lone airman lost—was handed to the Soviet Foreign Office by Ambassador

Charles E. Bohlen. However, the tack taken by the Russians in their countering note was one of absolute innocence. Moscow said its fighter planes intercepted the American ship to ask it to leave Soviet territory but "the American aircraft opened fire on them."

"In view of this unprovoked action of the American intruder," the Russian note said, the Soviet aircraft were compelled to retaliate the fire, after which the American aircraft left the air space of the Soviet Union and flew off in a southerly direction.

One airman, 2nd Lt. Sigfredo Angulo of Los Angeles, was drowned in the Saturday shooting when he became ensnared in his parachute, and 10 others parachuted to safety.

President Eisenhower broke into a speech at Boston to take note of the incident. The President told the National Conference of Catholic Women that free world strength was growing in the Pacific despite such incidents.

Senate to Get Exam Policy

Group to Consider Plan For Comprehensive Tests

Recommendations which would require all students to take comprehensive examinations in several areas of general education before being graduated will face a special meeting of the University Senate today.

Senate will be asked to approve this general educational program, but will not deal with the actual details of the exams, Adrian O. Morse, University Provost, said last night.

Approval of the forms of the exams has not been determined yet.

The report originally came before Senate on Oct. 7, but was referred to today's special meeting.

The objective of the plan, according to the report, is to determine by means of comprehensive exams as administered and evaluated by an examining board, the competency of each baccalaureate degree student in several areas of general education.

The report will be submitted by the Senate Committee on Educational Policy's subcommittee on general education.

To determine the competency of each entering freshman or transfer student, the subcommittee recommended that they, as well as all students, be given exams in the following three areas of objectives.

The first of the objectives would be "to foster effective listening and speaking, and to develop reading and writing skills as aids to organized productive reasoning."

Recommendations to meet this objective would be to administer the appropriate exams in the sixth semester and prescribe remedial courses and necessary subsequent exams according to needs demonstrated by results in the examination.

The second objective is "to develop skill in elementary computation and the ability to think quantitatively as aids to organized, productive reasoning."

The subcommittee recommended that an exam be given in the third semester and it prescribed a remedial course and necessary subsequent exams if needed.

Political Campaign Enters Final Stage

State and Lion Party candidates for freshman and sophomore class officers move in to the stretch-drive of their campaigns this week, with elections set for Thursday.

Since last Monday, candidates of both parties have been stumping fraternities and independent living units in an effort to get out the vote.

Campaigning will continue until 5 p.m. Wednesday. No campaigning will be permitted after that time, except that posters not exceeding three by four inches may be displayed at the polls if they have been approved by the elections committee. These posters must have only the name of the clique, and the name and picture of each candidate for office.

Polling Places

Voting will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. at three polling places—the second floor lounge of Old Main, the lounge of Waring Hall, and Nittany dorm 20.

Students must present their matriculation cards at the polls when they vote. Third and fourth semester students are eligible to vote for sophomore class officers and first and second semester students are eligible to vote for freshman class officers. Any student found voting more than once, or voting for another person will be subject to disciplinary action.

State Candidates

Arthur Schravessande, first semester mechanical engineering major is State Party's candidate for freshman class president, while Clinton Law, third semester business administration major will run for sophomore class presidency.

Opposing them on the Lion ticket are Richard Moon, first semester arts and letters major, who is running for freshman class president, and Samuel Walcott, third semester arts and letters major, who is the candidate for sophomore class president.

Other State Party freshman candidates include John Spangler, first semester aeronautical engineering major, vice president;

Ag Party Ticket Sale Underway

Tickets are on sale for the annual Ag Hill Party to be held by the College of Agriculture from 5:30 p.m. to midnight Saturday at Recreation Hall. Students may purchase tickets for $1 at the Student Union desk in Old Main or from club representatives before Friday.

Dinner will be served cafeteria style from 6:15 p.m. to 6:45 p.m. About ten door prizes and 300 game prizes will be given during the evening. These prizes will include ice cream, potted plants, and other agricultural products.

Scholarships totalling $7535 will be awarded to 60 students by the donors or their representatives. A quartet including William R. Davey, instructor in dairy science, will entertain. Three hours of square dancing will conclude the party.

John Sink, fifth semester animal husbandry major, was chosen master of ceremonies at tryouts Tuesday. Daryl Heasley, seventh semester agricultural education major, is general party chairman, and Fred Seipt, fifth semester dairy science major, is in charge of committees.

Only agriculture students may attend and dress is informal.

Mercury Soars To 59 Degrees

A large high pressure area, along with southerly winds coming up from the Gulf of Mexico, pushed the mercury up to the 59-degree mark yesterday. Penn State students were able to walk the campus with open coats and jackets for the first time in over a week.

Today will be even warmer with a high of 65 predicted by the University weather station. Some cloudiness and haziness are also forecasted by the weather station.

Blood Drive Will Accept Walk-Ins

Walk-ins will be accepted during the two-day blood drive tomorrow and Thursday, Betty Buchanan, chairman of the drive, announced yesterday.

The Johnstown Bloodmobile will be at the Temporary Union Building from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. during the drive.

Miss Buchanan said that any student may give blood at any time, but that walk-ins were preferred from 10:45 a.m. to noon, and 2:15 to 3 p.m. tomorrow, and from 10:40 a.m. to noon Thursday because these hours were not as fully scheduled.

One hundred ninety-one pledge forms have been received, Miss Buchanan said yesterday. The goal for the drive is 300 pints.

Alpha Phi Omega, men's service honorary, will set up the equipment for the drive. Four hostesses will be present each hour to help with registration and serve light refreshments to the donors.

Students who filled out pledge forms have been notified by mail of the hour they will donate.

The State College Chapter of the American Red Cross sponsors the blood drive once each semester. Last October 290 pints were collected during the two-day drive. Blood donated by the students is used for civilian emergencies as well as for the armed forces.

Fadiman Will Speak At Forum Tonight

Clifton Fadiman, critic, and radio and television personality, will be the first of the speakers presented by the State College Community Forum series in Schwab Auditorium at 8 tonight.

Season tickets selling at $4.40 for the series will be available at the Student Union desk in Old Main and at Griggs Pharmacy on College avenue until 5 p.m. Single admission tickets at $1.50 will go on sale at 7 p.m. at the Student Union desk. There are no reserved seats. The doors of the auditorium will open at 7:30 p.m.

For almost ten years Fadiman has been making a collection of what he calls "read-aloudables," which are selections varying from a sentence to a long short story that he believes suitable for platform reading.

Fadiman, who is a native of New York and a graduate of Columbia University, contributed to magazines and newspapers for nearly 25 years. In 1927, at the age of 23, he became assistant editor of the Simon and Schuster publishing house. Two years later he became editor-in-chief.

In 1933 he started reviewing books for the New Yorker magazine and continued to do so for ten years. Two years ago he began a column "Party of One" in Holiday magazine, which consists of essays on all subjects. A book of these essays is scheduled for publication in the spring.

Other books which he has edited include "Reading I've Liked," and

"The Short Stories of Henry James."

At present he is a member of the board of judges of the Book-of-the-Month-Club, and reviews many books for the club.

In the field of radio and television Fadiman was long active as a master of ceremonies of the former radio program "Information Please," and more recently of the television show "This is Show Business." The latest program upon which he regularly appears is called "Conversation."

Following the program a coffee hour for persons who wish to meet Fadiman will be held at the State College Hotel.

The community forum series will also present Agnes Moorehead with Robert Gist in a program directed by Charles Laughlin in December; Charles Romulo, Philippine secretary of foreign affairs, in January; and Dr. James M. Hepbrun, criminologist, in February.
