

Stradivarius Violin Presents Problem

Tossy Spivakovsky's biggest problem while he is on tour is the care of his 1721 Stradivarius which he always carries personally. Porters can be trusted with the luggage containing his white tie and tails, but not with the priceless Strad.

New Fraternity Given Approval By Committee

Delta Sigma Lambda was officially chartered today as the University's fifty second social fraternity by the Senate Committee on Student Affairs.

The fraternity had its inception last spring when 14 members of the Pennsylvania State University DeMolay Club petitioned the committee for permission to organize as a social fraternity. Since then, the group's membership has grown to 20 and includes both DeMolay members and non-members.

The group was chartered as a local fraternity, and expects to apply for admission to Interfraternity Council in the future.

Delta Sigma Lambda was formerly a national DeMolay fraternity, but the national was dissolved in 1936. At that time, some of its 20 chapters were absorbed by Theta Chi. The University chapter is not connected with the former national group. The name was used because the chapter was begun by members of the DeMolay Club. The group occupies the old Omega Psi Phi house.

Kent Kiehl, fifth semester physics major, is president of the chapter.

Food Service—

(Continued from page one) the question session came when Stanley Juras, president of West Dorm Council, and Bruce Lieske, AIM treasurer, asked Profitt if food service was a profit making organization and if it had made a profit last year.

Profitt said it was not a profit organization and, he added that if the fact that food service is responsible for financing and keeping up all its buildings and equipment were considered, food service had barely been able to make ends meet last year.

Forensic—

The Forensics Council, composed of nine members of the men's and women's debate teams appointed by the All-University president, will hold a future meeting to plan further action of the Penn State debate team in taking its stand against the ban.

Cabinet Meeting Canceled

All-University Cabinet will not meet tonight. The next meeting of Cabinet will be Dec. 2.

Between tours, it is kept in the music room of his home in Wilton, Conn., where a thermostat keeps the temperature between 68 and 70 degrees.

Spivakovsky, Russian-born violinist, will open the Community Concert Series at 8:30 Monday night in Schwab auditorium.

To Play Beethoven For his first number, Spivakovsky will play three movements from Beethoven's Sonata in G major, Opus 30.

Three movements from Symphony Espagnole by Edouard Lalo will follow.

After the intermission, he will present "Prelude et Ronde des Princesses" (from "Firebird") by the contemporary Russian composer, Igor Stravinsky, followed by "Hopak" (Russian Folk Dance) by Moussorgsky, as arranged by Rachmaninoff.

The program will also include "Aus der Heimat" by Bedrich Smetana, and "Waltz and Celebration" by Copland.

Spivakovsky will conclude the program with "Introduction" and "Rondo Capriccioso" by Saint-Saens.

Born in Odessa, in southern Russia, Spivakovsky was taken to Berlin before he was two years old. There he studied violin under Arrigo Serato, and later under Willi Hess. He first appeared in public at the age of 10, and as "wunderkind" concertized throughout Europe, winning acclaim as a soloist with some of Europe's foremost orchestras.

Spivakovsky first attracted attention in America when he performed the Violin Concerto of Bela Bartok with the Cleveland and Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestras so successfully that Arthur Rodzinski, then at the helm of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony, invited him to appear with America's oldest orchestra in a performance of the work in the fall of 1943. This performance launched his concert career as solo recitalist and guest star with most of America's major orchestras.

Mil Ball Banquet Plans

Plans for the banquet which will precede the Military Ball Dec. 9 will be completed at a meeting of Scabbard and Blade at 7:30 tonight at Theta Xi. This will be the last meeting before the dance.

Mil Ball Tickets On Sale Today

Military Ball tickets, priced at $4, will be on sale today and will be available to students in the Reserve Officer Training Corps. The limit is one ticket per student.

Tickets may be obtained in the Army office in Carnegie Hall, the Air Force office in the Armory, and the Navy office in the Navy Ward Room.

NSA Increase Is Approved By Ed Council

Education Student Council voted Tuesday night to approve the proposed budget increase for the National Student Association. The proposal calls for raising the NSA appropriation from $600 to $700 for this year. Final approval must come from All-University Cabinet.

NSA coordinator Janice Holm asked for the increase because expenses of the delegates attending the NSA convention last summer left NSA with an operating budget of about $18,000.

The Agriculture Student Council several weeks ago voted against the proposed increase, saying it felt the money could better be used for student scholarships.

The Mineral Industries Student Council also voted against the increase, but according to President Charles Larson, will reconsider the entire NSA issue at its next meeting.

Judith Hance was chosen as the council's representative for the United Nations Seminar. The seminar, sponsored by the council, the political science department, and the University Christian Association, will be held in New York City, Dec. 2-5.

Nancy Scofield and Barbara Easter were appointed to investigate housing conditions for returning student teachers.

Student Announcers

Students interested in becoming announcers for WDFM, student radio station, can be auditioned Dec. 5.

Audition applications may be sent to 307 Sparks by noon, Dec. 1.

Silva on Elections

GOP Lost Support On McCarthy Issue

Had the United States Senate censured Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy before the elections, the Republican party would have gained votes, Dr. Ruth C. Silva, assistant professor of political science, asserted Tuesday night.

Speaking before the Young Republicans Club, Dr. Silva declared five candidates supported by McCarthy were defeated in the election while candidates who took a stand against him were elected.

McCarthy, she said, came out of the election with a "batting average of .000."

Dr. Silva, whose election predictions were published by the New York Times, said she considered it "amazing" the Republicans dropped only 17 seats in the House of Representatives. In a normal mid-term election, she explained, the majority party can expect to drop 40 seats in the House.

In only two elections has the party in power lost fewer seats, she pointed out.

There were 48 marginal House seats, and in 55 per cent of the districts the Congressional candidates had trailed behind President Dwight D. Eisenhower in the 1952 election.

Assuming the personal appeal of President Eisenhower accounted for Republican victories in these districts, she said, the GOP could have expected to lose 24 seats this fall.

The large number of upsets in the Senate have little significance, Dr. Silva said. The upsets came as a result of split-ticket voting, as, for example, in California, where a Republican Senator and a Democratic governor were elected.

The flexible farm program advocated by Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson was vindicated in the election, Dr. Silva asserted. Candidates in farm areas backing his program were, in general, elected and those against his program were defeated, she said.

Dr. Silva's conclusion about the election: the voters want a middle-of-the-road legislative policy.
