Jobs Available In New York For Seniors

Seniors will have the opportunity to apply for positions in New York State government once again this year as jobs with starting salaries as high as $4096 will be filled through the state's annual college series of examinations to be held Jan. 15.

More than 400 positions offering careers in government will go to students successful on the tests. Top among the positions offered, both as to salary and opportunity for development and promotion, are public administration internships. There are 30 of these paying $4096 for 12 months combining training and work experience with transfer at the year's end to regular government positions.

The examination for professional and technical assistants offers 13 different options: engineering or architecture, biology, chemistry, physics, geology, economics, administration, mathematics, statistics, journalism, law, library science, and psychology.

Several types of positions making up the largest block of jobs open will be filled by successful candidates in an examination for accounting assistant. Other exams will qualify those who pass for trainee positions in preparation for jobs as employment interviewer and unemployment insurance claims examiner, two positions open this year for the first time.

Applications for all positions will be accepted until Dec. 17. The Jan. 15 examination will be held at 50 or more centers, some on New York state campuses and some outside the state.

The Women's Student Government Association House of Representatives last night was told that Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, and Samuel K. Hostetter, comptroller, will meet with Miss Baker when she returns from vacation in December.

The conference was requested by a WSGA committee composed of Patricia Ellis, president of WSGA; Kay Kingsley, house chairman; and Anne Bebbe, house vice chairman.

Four women were suggested as appointees to the All-University Foods Committee. They are Elizabeth Kraabel, McElwain Hall; Jane Cameron, Simmons; Margaret Belling, Atherton; and Harriet Scholes, Thompson. Miss Bebbe, who presided last night, said one woman would be suggested from each dormitory which has dining room facilities.

The WSGA clothing drive will continue until Dec. 5. Alletta Manbeck, committee chairman, announced. Miss Manbeck asked that girls who have clothing at home which they wish to contribute to the drive bring it back after Thanksgiving vacation.

Boxes to collect the clothes have been placed in each dormitory living unit, and the clothes will be given to the Friends' Society to be distributed among countries all over the world instead of only one country as was done last year.
