

Gridders Do It Again, 13-0

Move over Captain Hamilton, Rip Engle knows a little about "shock troop" football himself. The Grey Eagle exponent of the two-team shuttle system since the limited substitution rule returned used it to beat the team most publicized for it Saturday, when his Lions closed their 1954 season with a 13-0 win against Pitt.

It was Engle's No. 2 unit that broke the scoring ice in the rain and mud before 47,266 at Pitt Stadium after several Penn State scoring threats failed. The Lion concussion crew drove 55 yards for the Lions' first touchdown in the second quarter Saturday, to start Penn State on its way to the third win against the Panthers in three years, and seventh win this season.

Hoffman Was Instigator
Quarterback Bobby Hoffman was the instigator with an 19-yard touchdown pass to end Jack Sherry; then the "regulars" took over and added the insurance score in the third quarter. That one came on Don Bailey's dive from the three.

Underdogs for the first time in four games, the Lions utilized an implastic line, a diversified offensive attack, and a very valuable decoy to upset the Pitts, who never presented a serious threat throughout the water-soaked contest.

Moore Held to 68 Yards
The decoy was halfback Lenny Moore. The Ghost was held to only 68-yards in 16 carries, but contributed two key pass interceptions, and was the big gainer in the second touchdown drive, which covered 56 yards. The Reading Flash accounted for 42 of those, including a 26-yard sprint that moved the Lions to within striking distance of the Pitt goal.

His 68-yard total Saturday brought his seasonal output to 1082 and shattered a 42-year old total offensive mark formerly held by E. E. (Shorty) Miller. It was the first game this season, however, that the Flash failed to score. So he ends his junior year with 13 touchdowns—tying another Penn State record. He shares that one with three others.

Used as Decoy
Moore was probably Pitt's biggest mistake. While the Panthers doubled up on the Flash, Ron Younker, Bill Kane, and Buddy Rowell plugged for valuable yardage on the ground and Lion quarterbacks Bailey and Hoffman connected at key moments through the air. The pair completed only four aeri-als (although two more were called back), but they came at the right times and in the right places.

Meanwhile, Pitt, which got a slight edge in the statistics, couldn't open the Nittany forward wall when it counted. The Jungle Cats did plenty of running deep in their own territory but when they got within reach of Penn State real estate, it was a different story.

Line Outstanding
Engle's granite line—playing probably its best game since the Illinois opener—wasn't to be denied. The Lion forward wall kept Pitt outside the Penn State 20-yard line for the entire game, and only on two occasions did Hamilton's team get that far.

The Lions, on the other hand, were inside the Pitt 20 five times and made good on two of those occasions.

Vishinsky's Death Terminates Career Of Soviet Orator

NEW YORK, Nov. 22 (AP)—Andrei Y. Vishinsky died of a heart attack today while preparing for one of the most important debates in his career as the Soviet Union's leading orator. His blistering voice and brilliant mind had lifted him from the role of obscure bureaucrat to world fame in the East-West cold war.

Vishinsky was 70. He died at 9:30 a.m. today, the Soviet delegation to the UN announced at its headquarters in Park Avenue here. He had collapsed earlier, after attending a dinner given last night by the French delegation.

Foreign Minister

He was the Soviet Union's first deputy foreign minister, with permanent assignment as chief delegate to the UN. He had spent some of his last working hours getting ready for a renewal of the debate on the atom-for-peace plan with which President Eisenhower challenged the Soviet Union to prove its peaceful intentions to the world. The debate was postponed, as were all other UN sessions except a meeting of tribute to the colleague known as the "no" man of the UN.

Russian Doctor

The Soviet delegation said Vishinsky was attended by a Russian physician—in common with the Soviet custom of shunning Western contacts except when necessary.

Vishinsky had been a spectacular (Continued on page three)

Prof Discusses Sudden Death Of Vishinsky

Vyacheslav M. Molotov undoubtedly is not unhappy over Andrei Vishinsky's death since he regarded him as Stalin's personal spy in the Foreign Office, Dr. Vernon V. Aspaturian, assistant professor of political science, said yesterday.

Dr. Aspaturian is a specialist in Russian and Far Eastern affairs and the United Nations. In his statement to the Collegian, Dr. Aspaturian said:

"Vishinsky will probably be replaced by one of the implacable robots produced by the Stalin era like Jakob Malik or Andrei Gromyko.

"I suppose one ought to be (Continued on page two)

Pitt Conduct Good; 'Hostages' Returned

The University has received no word of misconduct on the part of students at Pittsburgh over the weekend, but in the Smoky City, heads were still being scratched over the chaos created by the two captives who weren't really captives after all.

Thousands of Penn State students jammed Pitt Stadium to see the Lions win over Pitt by a score of 13-0 and retain the "Li'l Coal Scuttle" for the third straight year.

And the two "captives" enjoyed themselves.

Edward Fleming and Anthony Lusanti, the two members of Phi Kappa Alpha who played hostage over the weekend, returned to campus Sunday reporting that they were tired but had a good time. To hear them tell it, it wasn't bad at all.

Fleming said they arrived in Pittsburgh about 5:30 Friday

Senate to Act On Social Pro For Sigma Pi

Three fraternities were fined a total of $100 for rushing and pledging violations and one of them was recommended for four weeks social probation by the Interfraternity Council Board of Control last night.

The action was announced by Ellsworth Smith, chairman of the board of control.

The fraternities involved were Sigma Pi, Theta Xi, and Phi Kappa.

The board imposed a fine of $50 on Sigma Pi and recommended four weeks social probation for the fraternity to the Senate Committee on Student Affairs.

If approved by the Senate committee, Sigma Pi's social probation will begin Jan. 3 and end at the close of the current semester.

Sigma Pi was charged with inviting a man lacking the proper average to live in their house. The student in question does not have a 1.0 All-University average or a 1.0 average in the semester preceding his entrance into the house as required by IFC rules.

Smith said the fraternity presidents agreed to strict enforcement of this rule at their workshop meeting.

Any suggestions?

Search on for Post Office Name

The University began accepting suggestions for names for a post office sub-station on campus yesterday.

On Friday, the University asked townspeople, faculty and administration members, and representatives of the Alumni Association and the student body to suggest names for a post office beginning Friday.

This was announced by C. S. Wyand, assistant secretary of the Board of Trustees.

Wyand explained that the executive committee of the board had announced Oct. 23 that if the establishment of a campus post office should become desirable, the University would seek advice and suggestions in selecting a suitable name.

Suggestions will be solicited in four ways:

1. Through a suggestion form in The Centre Daily Times.
2. Through a letter sent to faculty and staff.
3. Through a letter sent to members of the Alumni Council.
4. Through All-University Cabinet.

The suggestion form appeared in yesterday's Centre Daily Times and will appear for the last time in today's paper.

Suggestions will be considered only if the form is signed.

The same will be true of the forms sent to the faculty, staff, Cabinet and members of the Alumni Council.

All replies received by 5 p.m. tomorrow will be considered.

Suggestions are being taken at this time in order that name suggestions will be available for consideration by the trustees at the next executive committee meeting of the board Dec. 3.

The final decision on whether the campus sub-station will be established and by what name it would be known must be made by the Board of Trustees, Wyand said.

The need for a campus post office grew out of the defeat of the proposed name change for State College. The University wished to discontinue the existing confusion over the name of the University and the name of the borough. The first move to get rid of this confusion was to attempt to change the name of the town, but after this failed, a campus post office was the suggested alternative.

As yet, a location for the post office has not been announced.
