

Moorehead Set For 2nd Forum

Agnes Moorehead, three time nominee for the 'Oscar' of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, will appear in the second State College Community Forum presentation in Schwab Auditorium at 8 p.m. Monday.

Season tickets will remain on sale at the Student Union desk in Old Main and at Griggs Pharmacy on College avenue until 5 p.m. Monday. Single admission tickets, priced at $1.50, will go on sale at 6 p.m.

Miss Moorehead will be introduced by Robert Wray of the department of public education in Harrisburg. Dr. Wray was Miss Moorehead's classmate at Muskingum College in New Concord, Ohio, and directed some of the plays in which she appeared. He later took his advanced degrees at the University.

Miss Moorehead will appear in "That Fabulous Redhead," a series of portrayals and readings compiled from her more memorable dramatic performances. The title of the presentation is taken from the color of the actress' hair.

Performance Includes

Included in the performance are interpretations of such diversified sources as Ring Lardner, James Thurber, Marcel Proust, Shakespearean passages, famous letters, Bible passages, and anecdotes from Miss Moorehead's career. "Sorry, Wrong Number," the emotional dramatic sketch written for Miss Moorehead by Lucille Fletcher, will climax the evening.

Also appearing in the two hour show is actor Robert Gist. Charles Laughton, well known actor-director, with whom Miss Moorehead appeared in the First Drama Quartette presentation "Don Juan in Hell," is the director.

Although Miss Moorehead has become best known for her so-called character roles, in which she usually plays villainous, drab women, her three Academy Award nominations have come from sophisticated parts in "The Magnificent Ambersons," "Mrs. Parkington," and "Johnny Belinda." Her first real fame as an actress came from a single performance—the first "Suspense" presentation of "Sorry, Wrong Number."

Portrayals Vary

Miss Moorehead feels that she gained valuable experience which has helped her to portray characters as a 107 year old woman in "The Last Moment," through the March of Time radio show in which she was required to imitate living queens, presidents' wives, empresses, and axe murderers.

Miss Moorehead is one of the Ticket Sale For Forum Below Average

Ticket sales for the State College Community Forum series are running below average, Samuel Crabtree Jr., chairman of the ticket committee said yesterday.

At present only 450 season tickets have been sold, in comparison with the average of 750 which are usually sold. Crabtree said that 50 single admission tickets were sold for the Clifton Fadiman lecture in November.

Crabtree said that no plans have been made for the future series, but said the lack of sales seems to indicate there is no great need for a community forum of this type.

Season tickets for the remainder of the season are on sale at the Student Union desk in Old Main and at Griggs Pharmacy on College avenue. They are priced at $3.30 each. Single admission tickets for Agnes Moorehead's performance will go on sale at 6 p.m. Monday.

No Tuna As Yet—Phi Sigs Hungry, Kitchen Empty

The cupboards of the Phi Sigma Sigma kitchen are bare.

The sisters have a peculiar hurt, hungry look these days. The reason is simple. Their free supply of Chicken-of-the-Sea Tuna Fish hasn't arrived.

National Tuna Week was celebrated a month ago. The coeds decided the Chicken-of-the-Sea Tuna Fish company might be glad of this opportunity to "establish their product in the eyes of several of the future homemakers of America," to quote the letter the sisters sent to the company.

The advertising director of the company agreed. The sorority would be receiving a case of Tuna in the near future, he said. But the cupboards are bare!

Encampment Report Given OK

All-University Cabinet Thursday night accepted eight recommendations from Allan Schneirov, chairman of the Student Encampment Committee, for conducting this year's encampment.

The recommendations as approved by Cabinet included:

1. The maximum number to attend be kept at 120.
2. The number of workshops be kept at a maximum of eight.
3. One person be in charge of the secretariat, with one or two assistants.

Schneirov's original report recommended that since resolutions are not to be drawn up in workshops this year, the number be increased from eight to 12. He said since there will be less work to do in the workshops, the extra time could be used to cover more workshop areas.

Benjamin Sinclair, president of the Board of Dramatics and Forensics, moved to amend the number to eight. He said he felt that the number of workshops should remain the same so that the extra time could be used for discussion in the plenary sessions.

Cabinet twice defeated an amendment proposed by All-University Secretary-Treasurer Robert Homan, that a full-time secretary be assigned to each workshop group.

In past years, a secretary has been appointed from the workshop membership. Homan said he felt this method was inadequate since the person who was appointed to act as secretary could not take notes and participate effectively in the discussion.

Those who opposed the amendment said the presence of a full-time secretary in the meeting would keep one person from attending as a member of the discussion group. It was pointed out that no more than 120 people can attend the encampment since the facilities will accommodate no more.

After the amendment was defeated the first time, Earl Seely, junior class president, moved to reconsider the question. It was again defeated.

Other recommendations included in the report were (1) that the encampment be scheduled from Wednesday noon to Saturday noon as it was this year, (2) that next year's encampment committee include two faculty members, two from the administration, and four students, (3) that the Invitations Committee begin selecting those to be invited, (4) that a resource group be appointed by the encampment committee to discuss possible workshop topics and prepare background material and (5) that a recreation chairman be appointed.

Housemother Set-Up Pleases Delta Chi

By MIKE MILLER

It appears that housemothers are here to stay.

It was only last spring that the Interfraternity Council was waging a strong campaign against the installation of housemothers in University fraternities as administration officials desired.

Today only five fraternities are without housemothers and 12 fraternities employ full-time resident housemothers.

Both John Carpenter, IFC president, and Dean of Men Frank J. Simes have expressed satisfaction with the housemother setup.

One of the strongest indications of the merits of full-time resident housemothers is evidenced in the action taken this summer by Delta Chi fraternity when it built a two-room addition to its house for its housemother, Mrs. Brownie Lee Bailes. The fraternity has also entrusted Mrs. Bailes with many duties in addition to chaperoning responsibilities.

Under the Delta Chi setup, Mrs. Bailes is known as the house director, an idea pioneered by the national organization of the fraternity.

As the house director she is responsible for the planning of menus for the meals, supervising the ordering of food, and overseeing the work of the cook, kitchen help, waiters, and maid.

Mrs. Bailes also works in conjunction with the fraternity officers and the alumni finance board in seeing that all of the house-keeping functions are properly performed.

Mrs. Bailes is well qualified for her duties having raised three

Nittany Council Votes to Outlaw Line-Cutting

Nittany Council voted last night to outlaw line-cutting in the dining halls.

In view of recent disturbances, the council, by unanimous vote, set down line-cutting in the books as a definite misdemeanor and provided that the names of offenders would be taken and sent to the dean of men's office.

Final plans were set for the Christmas Ball, a dance to be sponsored by Nittany Council from nine to one Saturday night in the Temporary Union Building. There will be refreshments and no admission will be charged.

Also in line with the Christmas season, a committee of seven members from the Nittany area was set up to judge Christmas decorations in the area.

This committee is to function separately from the similar committee which the Association of Independent Men sponsors annually for the entire campus. Prizes of $10 and $5 will be awarded by the Nittany committee.

In order to facilitate the work of the council, it voted to apply for the installation of a telephone in Dorm 20 for the use of Nittany Council.

William Johnson, council president, reported that the matter of covering the heating pipes in the dorms with asbestos is now up to the decision of the Housing Department.

The council also established a new Projects Committee whose job it will be to recommend or suggest any improvements which can be made for the good of the Nittany area.

Two Clubs Will Hold Square Dance Tonight

The 4-H Club and the Clover Club will sponsor the "Harvest Hoedown" to be held from 8:30 p.m. to midnight tonight in the Temporary Union Building.

Ross Lytle's orchestra will play for the square dance.

Tickets are 50 cents and are on sale at the Student Union desk.
