2 Fraternities Are Warned By IFC Board

Two fraternities were given reprimands last night for allowing freshman men to become intoxicated while guests of their houses, Interfraternity Council Board of Control chairman Ellsworth Smith said last night.

The reprimands were issued by the IFC Board of Control. No further action against the houses was taken. Smith declined to reveal the names of the two fraternities.

Two freshmen who had been drinking at Theta Kappa Phi and one who had been drinking at Alpha Sigma Phi were given dean of men's office judicial probation last night by the Association of Independent Men's Judicial Board of Review.

Smith said the problem of freshmen getting drunk at fraternity houses is "increasing every week."

The reprimand issued last night by the Board carries no penalty, and is just a warning to the fraternities.

He urged three steps to ease the problem:

1. Fraternities post at least two men on door duty during weekends.

2. House officers assume the responsibility to see that no one become intoxicated in their houses.

3. Fraternities be especially careful during this weekend because it is a big weekend.

The only way for fraternities to solve the problem, Smith said, was for each house to assume the responsibility about its own guests.

Rubinstein Gives Plan For Writing

By DOTTIE BENNETT

Craft is the only thing that can be taught about creative writing, Leonard Rubenstein, instructor in English composition, told the Belle Lettres Club members Monday night.

Rubenstein is the author of the novel, "The Battle Done," which depicts the crude world of a prisoner-of-war camp during World War II. His idea for the book was drawn from experiences he had while working as an officer in such a camp.

Writing fiction creates experience, Rubenstein said, and therefore, the author's job is not to tell a story. A person undergoes experience by establishing a relationship with certain stimuli; so, if the author portrays a pattern of symptoms that is true and valid, the reader will be able to make the correct diagnosis of the experience, Rubenstein added.

It is not the author's job to state, but rather to render truism in fiction, Rubenstein said.

Rubenstein said form in writing is imposed by the mind, and is not inherent. A person cannot be broadminded about his method of writing while writing, he said, but must maintain a strict discipline over himself.

Rubenstein said that writers must know why the experience about which they are writing had the effect that it did upon them. To discover the reason for this effect, he said, requires a painful self-investigation in which the writer must be completely honest with himself.

Rubenstein concluded, "A writer must have overwhelming arrogance. He must have confidence that his vision is striking and worthwhile."

Group Considers Borough Library

A committee composed of representatives of various Borough organizations are considering the establishment of a State College public library to meet the need of family readers.

The Borough school board went on record as favoring such a library at its September meeting. The board said that it could not promise any financial support at this time.

Ralph W. McComb, University librarian, said in an article for the Centre Daily Times the Pattee Library does not have many of the books that a public library should have.

The University selects its books on the basis of the requirements of the faculty and the institution's teaching program, he said.

Theta Kappa Phi while the other first semester student had been drinking at Alpha Sigma Phi last Saturday.

The three, along with the third semester student, who had been drinking with friends at a rooming house, returned to their dormitory, Hamilton Hall, later that night and created disturbances on their floors.

Judicial probation involves the keeping of a record of the offenses in the Judicial Board's files. The board may also require the students to attend any of its meetings, at the board's discretion, for an indefinite period of time.

The board also stipulated that it strongly disagreed with and is against the serving of drinks to minors in fraternities. The board said that it felt the enforcement of this rule had become too lax.

Two of the students who had been drinking together at Theta Kappa Phi later returned to their rooms on the second floor of Hamilton Hall where one of them became sick in his room.

This student admitted that his roommate was so upset following this incident that he refused to remain any longer in the room that night.

The remaining first semester student who had been drinking at Alpha Sigma Phi became sick in the hallway of second floor of Hamilton Hall as he was returning to his room on that floor.

The third semester student, on returning to his room, was twice found sleeping in the hallway of the fourth floor of Hamilton. The student, who was cited on creating a scene, admitted to the board that he hadn't been able to remember a thing following his arrival at the dormitory.

Four first semester students, who had received recommendations of disciplinary probation by the board for being involved in a water and shaving cream battle on the first floor of McKee Hall, appeared before the board with a letter of apology.

Following the board's recommendations, the Senate subcommittee on student affairs, after hearing appeals by the students, revoked the board's decision and gave them office probation.

The students appeared before the board and read a letter apologizing for their behavior before the board while their case was being heard.

Out-of-Staters Only:

Entrance Tests Set for 1955

By NANCY SHOWALTER

Out-of-state students who wish to enter the University in the fall of 1955 will have to take college board examinations, according to C. O. Williams, dean of admissions and registrar.

Until this time was decided, non-resident students were chosen on the basis of high school records if they were in the upper two-fifths of their class. If they weren't in the upper two fifths, they could take an entrance exam set up by the University.

Board Gives Tests

The College Entrance Examination Board is a long-standing organization which constructs and administers these tests.

The University was voted in as a member in October.

The purpose of the College Board Examinations is to give admissions officers a common basis on which to judge applicants.

10 Per Cent of Total

Since only 10 per cent of the total University enrollment can be out-of-state students, and many of the applicants are unable to enter, officials felt the College Board's tests were badly needed, Williams said.

Most of the organization members are privately owned institutions, and few state universities belong.

The examinations consist of two tests. One is a scholastic aptitude test, and the other is an achievement test.

Scholastic Aptitude

Only the scholastic aptitude test results will be required by the University, and students may take it in December, January, March, May, and August.

Williams said that officials suggest that students take the aptitude tests in December or January so that they will receive an early answer from the University.

Non-resident students who have applied for admittance to the University next fall are already receiving notifications of the examinations through the mail.

When Williams was asked whether students from the state would have to take the exams in the near future, he said that this has not been considered by University officials yet.
