

TV Courses--

There will also be assistants in the rooms where students are watching the televised demonstration who may relay questions to the instructor.

3. Will teaching by television be acceptable to the instructor?

It is planned to have the instructor in control of the class at all times, Dr. Carpenter said. Technicians and directors will be kept in the background whenever possible to eliminate as much distraction as possible.

4. What will it cost? Cost will be the important factor, Carpenter said. If cost is found to be excessive, teaching by television will not be practical for universities.

However, if cost can be kept to a minimum by the use of moderately priced equipment, this method of teaching might become wide-spread, Carpenter said.

Enrollment--

(Continued from page one) fields of study—education, engineering, commerce, liberal arts and agriculture—exceed by about 9.2 per cent similar freshmen of 1953. The largest gains this fall are made in freshmen in education and engineering curriculums.

Reflects Nation's Needs "This condition reflects the pressing needs of the nation," Dr. Walters said.

In all institutions there are 7.6 per cent more men taking full-time courses and 5.3 per cent more women.

Except for Vermont, where the decrease in five institutions is only 72 students, all states showed advances in full-time enrollments.
