

Fishburn to Direct 29th Annual 'Sing'

By JACKIE HUDGINS

Twenty-nine years ago Hummel Fishburn, head of the department of music, directed the first Christmas Carol sing on the steps in front of Old Main. He will again lead the traditional carol sing at 8 p.m. tomorrow.

The Chapel Choir, under the direction of Willa C. Taylor, professor of music, will repeat three numbers it sang at the Candlelight service Saturday night and Sunday morning. They are "Let All Mortal Flesh Keep Silence," French melody arranged by G. William Henninger; "Psallite," "Praetorius," and "Bring A Torch Jeanette Isabella," French carol. Brass Ensemble

A brass ensemble will open the program and the Rev. Luther H. Harshbarger, University Chaplain, will present the invocation and prayer.

Fishburn will direct the audience in singing "O Come All Ye Faithful," "O Little Town of Bethlehem," "Joy to the World," "Hark the Herald Angels Sing," "It Came Upon A Midnight Clear," and "The First Noel."

Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, will deliver a brief Christmas message.

35 Minute Program

This year's carol sing, co-sponsored by the Department of Music and the University Christian Association, will be about 35 minutes in length, Alexander Zerman, coordinator, said.

25th German Sing Will Be Tonight

George J. Wurfl, founder of the German Sing, will conduct its 25th annual program at 8 tonight in Schwab Auditorium.

Wurfl, professor emeritus of German, will read the story of the Nativity, as recorded by St. Luke, and will deliver in English his traditional talk.

Raymond Brown, assistant professor of music, will sing, and George Ceiga, assistant professor of music, will accompany the audience in traditional Christmas carols. The sing is open to the public.

Thirty-Five Attend Mortar Board Tea

Approximately thirty-five foreign students attended a tea held by Mortar Board, senior women's hat society, from 3:30 to 5 p.m. yesterday in Elm Cottage.

An informal discussion was held on campus views and problems in several countries. The students were contacted through the Cosmopolitan Club, a social club for American and foreign students.

WSGA Senate to Meet

The Women's Student Government Association Senate will meet at 6:30 tonight in the WSGA room in White Hall.

Independents Will Hold Joint Sing

Leonides and the Association of Independent men will meet for a joint carol sing in front of Old Main at 7 tonight, Judith Pendleton, Leonides social chairman, has announced. Refreshments will be served in Simmons lounge after the sing. In case of rain, Miss Pendleton said the sing will be canceled.

Loretta Hunter and Miss Pendleton represented Leonides at the National Independent Student Association executive council meeting which was held at Ohio State University Friday and Saturday. In a report of the meeting, Miss Hunter said the NISA week to be held at the University probably will coincide with the AIM-Leonides dance on March 11.

The national NISA convention will be held at Colorado A and M, Fort Collins, Colorado, April 11 to 15.

Martha Hardy and Norma Talario attended the National Student Association regional convention at Rosemont College Friday and Saturday. Miss Hardy gave a preliminary report at Monday night's meeting, but said a full report would be given later.

In a discussion concerning the Women's Recreation Association volleyball schedule, it was decided that Joan Packard, Leonides president, would consult with the WRA intramural chairman to see if anything could be done about Leonides being left out of the finals. Leonides representatives said they understood their team had been given a bye, however they were later told that they had been scheduled to play a game, and since they had not played, it was considered a forfeit.

Pacers Meet Tonight

Penn State Pacers will elect officers at 7 tonight in 211 Mechanical Engineering.

Plans Made For Home Ec Convocation

Plans for a home economics convocation to be held Feb. 9 were made by the Student-Faculty Board of the College of Home Economics at a meeting Thursday.

The purpose of the convocation, which will be sponsored by home economics student organizations in cooperation with the board, is to plan and acquaint home economics students with Spring Weekend activities.

The board also discussed the possibility of conducting a leadership course in the College of Home Economics similar to the one held last spring by the Agriculture Student Council.

Andrew Stavres, president of the Home Economics Student Council, and Mrs. Esther Shoup, instructor in home community relations, were appointed by board chairman Carol Jenks to investigate the agriculture council's system.

The board discussed holding a mixer during orientation week next fall for freshmen in the college in conjunction with the council. Representatives of the student organizations will help plan the mixer.

The problem of changes in addresses after publication of the student directory was discussed, and the possibility of printing a corrected list for home economics students was considered. No definite action was taken on the suggestion.

sion on these students, they said. The casual dress of students and faculty alike, the relaxation and recreation interspersed throughout the academic week—all these things the students found different from their home universities.

That is the American culture, they told the native Penn Staters. And when asked if they thought possibly it was a somewhat "rocky foundation for a culture, they protested. You are a young nation, they said. Your culture is all your own. It is a protest against severe formality and superficiality. Keep it. So be it.
