

Entrance Exams Proposed No Action Taken On Recommendation

A recommendation to require high school students in the lower three-fifths of their high school classes to take entrance examinations was presented to the University Senate yesterday.

No action was taken on the recommendation which was part of a report on the selection of freshmen for admission to the University. The report was presented by the freshman selections subcommittee of the Senate Committee on Educational Policy.

in a two-room suite, were responsible for supervising an entire floor. Now, however, each counselor lives in a single room near the group for which he alone is responsible.

The problem with the former system, Simes explained, was that the divided responsibility would often lead one counselor to assume the other was responsible for a misconduct outbreak.

The living rooms of the suites formerly used by counselors now are used as study rooms and the bedrooms are used as single rooms for students.

Pollock Counseling

The residence hall counselor system in the Pollock area also was improved this year, the dean said. With the exception of one Pollock dorm used exclusively for graduate students, there now is a resident counselor in each Pollock dorm.

In the Nittany area, however, there is only one counselor for every two dormitories, he said. This situation, he said, is necessary because of the unequal size of units in the various dormitory areas. In Pollock, each counselor is responsible for the 60 men in his dorm. In the West Dorms, the ratio is one counselor for from 60 to 80 men.

Nittany Dorm Houses 40

Each dorm in Nittany houses about 40 men, so that doubling up is necessary to give each counselor an approximately equal load.

Better counselor orientation this year is another factor affecting the discipline situation. Simes said that the counselor training program this year was developed to the point where counselors were "made cognizant of their duties and responsibilities."

AIM Handles Discipline

Whereas in the past the dean of men's office handled a large proportion of student disciplinary cases, this year the office refers the cases to the Association of Independent Men's Judicial Board of Review as soon as they are reported.

The board hears the cases and recommends penalties. When the cases involve disci-

Constitutional Revisions Approved

The Lion party constitutional revisions committee has approved a new constitution which will be presented to the party's steering committee for approval Sunday afternoon, according to Carl Saperstein, Lion party vice-clique chairman.

Saperstein is also a member of the revisions committee.

Saperstein would not comment on the content of the constitution, except to say that "substantial changes" have been made.

The revisions committee approved the constitution at a meeting Tuesday night, Saperstein said.

Gordon Pogal, Lion party clique chairman, could not be reached for comment last night.

At the time the Senate subcommittee on organization control ordered the parties to revise their constitutions, it was reported that eight specific revisions were recommended.

The parties have until Jan. 13—Thursday—to present their revised constitutions to the subcommittee. If the constitutions are found acceptable at that time, the subcommittee will report to the Senate Committee on Student Affairs which must charter the political parties.

The Senate move to charter the parties came last month after All-University Cabinet decided it did not have the power to do so.

A review of the constitutions by Cabinet was asked in the permanent elections code adopted early this fall.

of parties. He said since Cabinet decided that the University Senate subcommittee on organization control had the power to charter the parties, the articles in the Elections Code giving Cabinet that power would have to be changed.

The first article changed had said that upon the adoption of a new constitution, the group must file a copy of the constitution with All-University Cabinet. This was changed to read "the group must submit a copy of the constitution to the University Senate subcommittee on organization control."

The second amended article, concerning the recognition of political parties, will now read "Any political party must be chartered by the University Senate Sub-committee on Organization Control."

Cabinet approved both amendments at Famous' request.

AIM Judicial Asks Probations for Six

The Association of Independent Men's Judicial Board of Review last night recommended to the dean of men's office penalties of office and board probation for six students involved in either the buying or consuming of drinks in University dormitories.

Nine other students, all first semester freshmen from Jordan

Hall, received recommendations of judicial probation by the board for being involved in some "horseplay" on one of the dormitory floors.

Three of the students received official probation recommendations for drinking beer in Pollock Dormitory 1. It was brought out at the board's session that a fifth semester student, admitting to being over 21, had bought the beer and had taken it into the dormitory where two of them, first and third semester students, were discovered drinking.

Original Instigator

The fifth semester student later claimed that he was the original instigator of the incident. The board also recommended that this student receive, along with office probation, a further penalty of board probation until the end of the spring semester.

Board probation involves the requiring of the student to attend all meetings of Judicial Board for that period of time.

Office probation requires students to report to the dean of men's office at certain set intervals for informal discussions.

Three other students, all first semester, received recommendations of office probation for bringing beer into their dormitory, Nittany 28. One of the three who claimed he hadn't yet drunk anything before being discovered by his counselor was penalized for his hand in having bought the drinks.

Nine freshmen from the second, third and fourth floors of Jordan Hall were given recommendations of judicial probation by the board for gathering together during a "study break" between 10:30 and 11 p.m., December 13, with intent of "horseplay."

Speak Before Board

Speaking before the board, the students said that they had been planning to jam the door of two students of the fourth floor by inserting a pencil between the door and the molding and attaching a wire from the door to another neighboring one.

Before any proceedings had begun, one of the residence hall counselors, attracted by the noise, arrived, so they demonstrated the technique of jamming a door to him, rather than performing the act.

At this point the group was broken up by the emergence of another student and his roommate from one of the rooms under discussion. This student broke up the gathering with a knife, ripping the sweater and shirt of one and slightly nicking another.

The Discipline Committee of the Senate Committee of Student Affairs was reported to have requested the student to withdraw from the University.

Thursam Named Head Of Poultry Club

Charles Thursam, fifth semester, poultry husbandry major, was elected president of the Poultry Club last evening.

Other officers elected were: Thomas Zeigler, vice president; Aaron Denlinger, secretary; and David Mellor, treasurer. All are fifth semester poultry husbandry majors.

June Grads Have ROTC Time Option

Advanced Army Reserve Officers Training Corps students who will be graduated in June may not be called into active service for two years, Col. Lucien E. Bolduc, professor of military science and tactics, announced yesterday.

Graduates will be commissioned between May 1 and Sept. 30 although some of them may not be called to active duty until June 30, 1957. However, some will enter active duty as early as July 1.

Engineering and signal corps graduates probably will be called first. Capt. W. M. Haller, assistant professor of military science and tactics, said, because vacancies now exist in training schools.

All advanced Army ROTC graduates are required to attend school for a three-month training period prior to assuming their duties on a military post, he said.

The quota for the particular training school determines the number of commissioned officers called for service.

Graduates in artillery, infantry and armor corps also probably will receive early calls to duty, Captain Haller said.

June graduates will be asked to state the month and year they would like their active duty to begin. Individual preferences will be considered, Bolduc said, so far as quotas for each branch permit.

Under existing directives Army graduates of the Advanced ROTC program still will be required to serve two years. The effect of the newly announced policy is merely to delay entry into active duty.

Party Reports—

"This would be hitting the party directly instead of the individual," he said.

Under another proposal, made by Henry Simm, committee member, parties would be given a monetary penalty if they were found to be guilty of a violation, but if an individual was found guilty of a violation votes would be docked.

A penalty system will be worked out at a later meeting, Famous said.

The committee also discussed the possibility of issuing clique registration cards to clique members instead of keeping a record by a list. This would greatly simplify the registration procedure, Famous said.

Temperature Decline

The mercury will drop to approximately 35 degrees today, five degrees lower than yesterday's high of 40, the University weather station reported.
