

Stock Market Hit By Selling Wave

NEW YORK, Jan. 6 (AP)—Waves of selling engulfed the stock market today for the second day in a row, but a rally in late afternoon trimmed losses.

At the close, wider declines ranged from $3 to $5 a share in the higher-priced issues.

West Germany Awaits French Final Action

BONN, Germany, Jan. 6 (AP)—Should West Germany's Parliament wait for final action by the French before ratifying the Paris rearmament treaties?

Adenauer himself is in a hurry. He wants German ratification early next month of the pact, which would give the Federal Republic sovereignty and authorize the raising of German armed forces for NATO.

Some Bonn politicians, however, still have rueful memories of last year, when the West Germans ratified the European Defense Community only to see it rejected later by the French National Assembly.

They argue it would be better for the Germans to hang back this time and see what the French do. This view was reinforced by the difficulties French Premier Pierre Mendes-France had in getting grudging approval of the Paris treaties by the French Assembly in December.

Altoona Mayor Orders Lady Cops Into Slacks

ALTOONA, Pa., Jan. 6 (AP)—Mayor Walter H. Grove, tired of lady cops complaining of arthritis and other discomforts caused by standing on cold pavements, today ordered them to wear slacks. Mrs. Jane Berard, one of this town's 37 lady cops who guard school children, refused and resigned.

Luxury Liner Rescues Ten Off Bermuda

Jan. 6 (AP)—The gay luxury liner Queen of Bermuda backtracked 150 angry ocean miles today to take 10 hapless fishermen from their foundering craft in mid-Atlantic.

All told the actual rescue operation took about 90 minutes, but they were breathtaking ones both for the rescuers and those rescued.

Once, blown by wind and waves, the derelict Student Prince II passed hard by the Queen of Bermuda's bow. Those nearest the bow of the Queen said a possibly tragic collision was missed by only a few feet.

The ten who were saved, all from Newfoundland, comprised the Student Prince's entire complement.

They were exhausted by their ordeal, but only one had suffered injury.

The Student Prince, taking water badly, sent its first call for help about 11 o'clock last night.

Atheistic Propaganda

MOSCOW, Jan. 6 (AP)—The newspaper Soviet Culture disclosed today that Soviet culture ministries have stepped up their propaganda for atheism, but with due regard for the warning from Communist party chief N. S. Khrushchev to avoid unnecessary roughness against churchgoers.

4 Claim to Be 2000 Years Old

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Jan. 6 (AP)—Four Polish refugees claiming to be 2000 years old, including one who professed to be Jesus Christ, were ordered to undergo psychiatric examinations today when they appeared in City Court.

John Tschaplinski, 50, one of the four, was arrested by police Tuesday. They said he was garbed in a loin cloth made from a diaper and was wearing a crown of thorns which caused him to bleed from the head. Tschaplinski showed wounds in his hands and feet and claimed he was Jesus Christ.

Also taken into custody were Mieczyslaw Majewski, 38, and two women, Antonina Suszko and Dina Karanowicz, both about 30. Warrants were sworn out for their arrests after police received complaints of "something peculiar" going on at the tenement where all resided. They were booked on an alleged violation of a state law forbidding persons to claim to be a deity.

Dressed in black robes, with white cloaks covering their shoulders and Bibles in their hands, the four made their appearance before Judge Harry Ginsburg. Following the recommendations of the city attorney, Judge Ginsburg ordered the examinations and continued the case until Jan. 15, pending the outcome. Bail was set at $100 each.

Dag, Chou Hold First Meeting

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Jan. 6 (AP)—Dag Hammarskjold and Chou En-lai talked for 3½ hours in Peiping today about 11 American fliers jailed as spies and other UN personnel held by the Communists.

The UN said they will meet for a second round tomorrow.

The UN secretary general and the Premier-foreign minister of Red China went into their first formal conversation flanked by high, British-trained legal advisors. UN circles here speculated that the legal aspects of the issue revolving around the imprisoned fliers were paramount in this initial meeting.

Hammarskjold flew to Peiping in a dramatic effort to obtain the release of the American fliers and the repatriation of other UN personnel held by the Communists from the Korean War.

In UN Assembly debates on the issue, the United States and its Allies declared the fliers were military personnel, not spies, and should be treated as prisoners of war.

The Communist bloc replied that these men were shot down in China on an espionage mission and their convictions were in accord with Chinese law.

It Happens In the U.S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 6 (AP)—At 12:31 p.m. today the House doorkeeper, William N. "Fishbait" Miller, hurried down the center aisle of the house, paused and announced:

"The President of the United States."

And the general who had lost a political war smilingly advanced into the camp of the enemy to talk of the State of the Union.

Such are the wonders of U.S. politics that the Democrats, who were snarling at the Republicans two short months ago, applauded as loudly—well, almost as loudly—as the Republicans.

The President himself, who had warned of dire consequences if the Democrats took over the Congress, began with a graceful compliment to one of the leading Democrats, Speaker Sam Rayburn of Texas, celebrating his 73rd birthday today.

And Eisenhower went on to say how he and the Democratic controlled Congress would have to work with each other.

Everybody cheered politely. Probably it won't last long, but until something shatters the harmony, peace, it's wonderful.

Possibly next to the President the person who attracted the most attention was a moderately husky man with a built-in scowl who sat in the diplomatic section, Georgi N. Zaroubin, the Russian ambassador.

Zaroubin smiled pleasantly as he sat down, and he applauded when Eisenhower came in.

But from then on, his expression didn't appear to vary.

Even when Eisenhower was discussing the Soviet Communists, Zaroubin's expression didn't change from one of glum contemplation.

Eisenhower's speech wasn't the kind that causes a hearer to ruin his hands by beating them excessively. State of the Union Messages, which try to sum up literally almost everything in the world, rarely are.

But when he finished, with an apology for having talked so long, 53 minutes, Republicans, Democrats and most of the diplomats joined in the applause.

Many eyes were on the man with the scowl, Georgi Zaroubin didn't applaud.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

His territory: TWO CITY BLOCKS

James O'Hara, Stevens Institute of Technology (M.E. '51), is an installation foreman for the New York Telephone Company. His present assignment is two city blocks between 45th and 47th Streets in the middle of Manhattan.

"It doesn't measure very big horizontally," Jim says. "But vertically it makes up a lot of telephone business—7500 telephones to be exact. My eight-man crew does everything from installing a single telephone to working on complete dial intercom systems for some of the nation's biggest businesses."

"I've got to know about each of these jobs that my men do. My training with the telephone company took me through the installation, repair and testing of the various types of telephone equipment and service for which I am responsible. I even had a chance to do a little experimenting of my own and developed a new way of preventing oil seepage on automatic switching equipment. I understand it's being written up for use throughout the Bell System."

"That's what I like about telephone work. Even two city blocks are full of opportunity."

You'll find that most other college men with the telephone company are just as enthusiastic about their jobs. If you'd be interested in a similar opportunity with a Bell System Telephone Company—or with Sandia Corporation, Western Electric or Bell Telephone Laboratories, see your Placement Officer for full details.
