

On An Island With You?

April 'College Week' Planned in Bermuda

Want a week packed with sun and fun and all the fancy trimmings? Well, stop the day-dreaming. The Penn State Travel Bureau collaborating with Pan American Airlines is trying to make dreams come true, as cheaply as possible.

The event in mind is the eighth annual "College Week" taking place in Bermuda. This is the first time the Bermuda holiday has been offered to Penn State students. Previous to this year students from many other eastern colleges and universities and also some from the mid-west have participated in the annual excursion.

Leave April 7

The students will leave New York for the Bermuda Islands April 7 by Pan American Airlines and will stay until April 12. They will then return to New York.

Arrangements have been made for 45 students. Male students and coeds will stay at separate hotels. The coeds will be under the chaperonage of Miss Audrey McIntyre, a graduate student and co-supervisor of the trip. The male students will be conducted by Paul Egley, fifth semester meteorology major. Egley is also a supervisor of the event.

$190 Cost

The cost for women is $190. Included are air transportation, transfer to and from the airport, hotel bills, and a modified American plan—two meals a day.

The fee for male students will be $150. It covers the same items as the coeds' cost except the food plan. The men will eat under the European plan which includes only one meal a day.

Sailing Planned

A wealth of activities has been scheduled for the trip. There will be sailing, fishing, swimming, cycling, picnics, and dancing. Golf and tennis, being immensely popular in Bermuda, can be played at any time. This will also be Rugby Week (the British equivalent for football) in Bermuda, and United States university teams will compete against Bermuda, Canadian, and British service teams.

In accordance with the trip, the State College Travel Bureau will show a film about Bermuda at been an overwhelming success. The touring aggregation of 26 left Stockholm Jan. 4 and traveled across the Atlantic by the Scandinavian Airline System.

According to Olle Kihlmark, secretary of the Swedish Gymnastic Federation, most of the Swedes speak English, and some rather fluently. Many of the traveling personnel have relatives in various parts of the United States, particularly in Minnesota, New York, and Illinois.

During an interview Dec. 1 concerning the tour, Kihlmark said: "The Swedes want to learn about the American people above everything else. All of them have had an opportunity to travel much of Europe and they want to meet the people who have been able to create a standard of living much above the ordinary European one. I think we are all most interested in people, but of course, it will be thrilling to see New York, the largest city in the world, Niagara Falls, Washington D.C., Texas, Florida, and so many other places we have read a lot about."

"We want to meet the American cowboy and the true American Indian. One more thing, we are interested in the way of living of the students at American universities. I presume it is rather different from ours."

The two National teams of 21 gymnasts were chosen from a

Mu Phi music sorority chose her as "The Mu Phi of the Year" and as winner of a Kathryn Turney Long Scholarship she studied at the Metropolitan Opera School under the direction of Max Rudolf.

The climax to Miss Smith's prize-winning streak came in Salt Lake City where she sang for the annual convention of the National Federation of Music Clubs and was selected from a large number of contestants as the winner of the 1951 vocal award. The prize was a choice between $1000 in cash and a New York recital in Tower Hall. Miss Smith chose the recital.
