

Tribunal Hears Gas Theft Plan

Two students were tried by Tribunal last night in connection with a self-confessed plan to take gasoline from several forestry trucks parked between the Forestry building and the Stock Judging Pavilions.

The courts decisions, according to Tribunal policy, cannot be released until they have gone through the Dean of Men's office and the students have been contacted by that office.

Solicitations Banned at Registration

Student organizations may no longer solicit memberships or promote their programs outside Recreation Hall during registration except by special permission from the Senate Committee on Student Affairs, the committee has announced.

The action was taken to do away with the distribution of pamphlets and papers by organizations outside Rec Hall, Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs and secretary of the committee, said.

In the past, student organizations handed out material to students as they left registration without permission because there was no policy governing the action. Kenworthy said that a few organizations have asked the committee's permission in the past so the group has set up a policy to govern the matter in the future.

Much of the material handed out during registration is thrown away by students and the walks in front of Rec Hall have been littered with paper. The ruling will curb this as the number of soliciting organizations can be restricted by the committee.

Organizations wishing to hand out information must apply for permission from the Committee on Student Affairs, Kenworthy said.

Government Class To Hear Butcher

Butcher will also conduct a seminar on "Municipal Reform" for interested faculty members and graduate students from 4 to 5:30 p.m. today in 204 Willard.

Romulo Says--

(Continued from page one) said, first laid the strategy for the world conquest objective of Russia when he wrote "The Road to London and Paris is through Peiping and Calcutta." In other words, to achieve their objective, Asia must be conquered first, and with the fall of China this was begun.

He pointed out that the great problem facing the Chinese Communists now is that of obtaining food for the masses, so they are concentrating on Indochina, which is known as the rice bowl of the world. If the rice from Indochina can be used to feed the people of China, he said, there will be no danger of dissatisfaction, which might lead to an explosion.

He said that America is misunderstood and misrepresented in Asia mainly because the United States does not advertise itself well. The Philippines, he said, have learned to know that promises made by the United States are kept, and have become loyal supporters of the United States.

All Asia asks, he says, is that the United States use its influence as a world leader to see that the pattern set in the Philippines is followed by our allies, and that the United States continue to make its ideas coincide with its actions.

'Personalities' Sign Petition For Whiskers

"Santa Claus" signed the petition on the West Dormitory bulletin board under the heading "We want beards." Along with Santa's signature were the names of a few other well-known personalities and about 200 students, many of them in the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps.

Freshmen standing around the bulletin board examining the slightly worn four-page petition said they did not really care about the ROTC regulation against beards. Two of the first semester men, dressed in different shades of blue, said they shaved only once a week and couldn't have a beard even if there were no restrictions. The names of many of the Army, Air Force, and Navy ROTC instructors appeared on the list. Sitting Bull, Liberace, and John Paul Jones also signed the petition.

Wilmer E. Kenworthy, director of student affairs, said he had nothing really to say about beard growing, but that he would go along with the statement made by C. S. Wyand, chairman of the University Centennial Committee. Wyand said beard growing would not be an official activity of the University Centennial Committee.

The Student Centennial Committee will consider the beards project, chairman Diehl McKalip, said.

Phys Ed Group Sets Workshop

The first annual workshop for the College of Physical Education and Athletics will be held from noon to 5 p.m. tomorrow in the lobby of the Nittany Lion Inn.

The first part of the program will consist of two speeches—one by Ernest B. McCoy, dean of the college, on "Where We Are—Where We're Going," and one by Dr. John D. Lawther, assistant dean, on "Our College—Our Graduates."

The remainder of the program will consist of workshops on health education, recreation education, and physical education. Klas Thorsson, director of the Central Gymnastic Institute, will speak at the physical education workshop.

Graduates and undergraduates of the College of Physical Education may attend the workshop.

AIM Board Sets Attendance Ruling

Any member of the Association of Independent Men's Board of Governors who is absent from two board meetings without a legal excuse will be dropped from the board, AIM President Robert Dennis told the group Wednesday night.

The announcement came about after, for the second consecutive time, the start of the meeting had to be delayed for about three-quarters of an hour until a quorum could be obtained. Dennis said that the attendance ruling was included in the present AIM constitution but that it had not been enforced this year "because of its vagueness."

He said that any board member who could not attend a meeting should provide an alternate and give the alternate a written note of certification.

When a member is dropped from the board because of his attendance record, the council he represents will lose a seat on the board. The seat will not be re-elected until the council elects another representative to replace the offending member, he said.

Important Meeting
He stressed the importance of full attendance at the next meeting, Feb. 9, at which time a new AIM secretary will be elected. To be elected a candidate must receive a majority vote of the membership of the entire board.

Both the Department of Housing and the dean of men's office are expected to help share the cost of the proposed AIM freshman handbook. Bruce Lieske, chairman of the handbook committee, reported.

Tuesday Joint Meeting
Lieske said more specific plans and the percentages to be paid by each would be known after a joint meeting Tuesday.

Donald Shoemaker, fifth semester journalism major, has been appointed tentative handbook editor, Lieske said, but no definite staff appointments will be made until plans for the book are more complete.

Leonard Richard, chairman of the AIM firesides committee, asked for volunteers to work on his committee to arrange the informal religious discussion within dormitory units.

AIM Farewell Party
James McDowell, AIM vice president, reported that the AIM farewell party for the Temporary Union Building has been tentatively scheduled for Feb. 22 at the TUB.

The date was changed to give more students a chance to take an active part in the Centennial celebration that night.

350 Invited To Visit New Rink

Approximately 350 persons, including townspeople, faculty and administration members, and representatives of All-University Cabinet, have received invitations to a reception and inspection of the ice skating rink from 7 to 10 p.m. Sunday.

Ernest B. McCoy, dean of the College of Physical Education and Athletics, said the open house was arranged to allow faculty members and townspeople a chance to see the new ice skating facilities and use them if they so desire.

McCoy explained that members of Cabinet were invited to represent the student body during the open house. Students, he said, have a chance to use the rink every day, but the people invited have few such opportunities.

Members of the Penn State Outing Club will act as hosts and guides, meeting guests and conducting them through the building. Several of the club's better figure skaters will give demonstrations and instructions in figure skating.

Sunday night was chosen for the open house to reduce the conflict with skating hours. Since it will require the hours normally used for public skating, Dean McCoy said there would be only one skating session Sunday, from 1 to 4 p.m.

YMCA Directors To Meet Tonight

The mid-winter conference of the Pennsylvania Young Men's Christian Association Directors Society will be held this evening through Sunday morning at the Nittany Lion Inn.

Starting at 10 a.m. tomorrow a trampoline demonstration will be held followed by a volleyball game between two all-star groups.

Program director C. W. Stoddart Jr., extension director of the College of Physical Education and Athletics, said the Saturday morning session will be open without charge to the public.

Ag Council Passes Fund Proposal

Agriculture Student Council Wednesday night, unanimously passed a proposal reorganizing standing funds.

The Agriculture Activities Fund, containing about $1400, has been untouched for several years and the council wished to be able to use it. The administration had not permitted it to borrow any of it, but under the regulations of the new system, council will have limited access to this fund.

Since 1953 students in all colleges have been paying 25 cents per semester for a consolidated activities fee. Prior to this time agriculture students had been paying the same fee to their college. The fund is composed of this money.

The proposal provides that council be able to withdraw and spend money at any time "when such expenditures are for the general benefit of all undergraduate students in the College of Agriculture." It also allows borrowing from the fund for other purposes if repayment is guaranteed within the same school year.

The second condition would include student clubs borrowing as long as they could give a written guarantee of repayment. These loans must have the general approval of the council and the Agriculture activities committee.

The resolution requires that the fund must have as its balance not less than $1000 at the end of any school year.

George Williams, president of the council, said that they might have $300 more in their budget next year. If the General Assembly passes the proposal before it now, making a department of journalism in the College of Agriculture, the council will no longer have to finance the agriculture publications.

The Ag Activities Committee composed of faculty and students wrote the reorganization proposal. Members of the committee are Dr. Russell B. Dickerson, associate dean and director of resident instruction; Dr. Roy C. Buck, assistant professor of rural sociology; Dr. James W. Shigley, assistant professor of agriculture and biological chemistry; Glen R. Kean, assistant professor of animal husbandry; Williams; and John Sink, fifth semester animal husbandry major and treasurer of the council.

The resolution also includes making the Ag Hill Party Fund a standing fund of $300 and that any excess of this will go to the Ag Student Activities Fund. All profits from Ag Hill Parties will go into the same fund unless they are needed to adjust the level of the Ag Hill Party Fund.

Williams announced that there will be a competition for the position of editor of the Ag Hill Breeze for next semester and possibly the fall semester of next year. The present staff is composed of first and second semester students who Harrington Case, editor, doesn't feel are qualified for the position. A committee composed of Dr. Buck, advisor of the paper, Case, and John Robinson, past editor, will interview students interested in the job at the beginning of next semester.
