

Local 417 Re-elects President

Kenneth Dixon was unopposed for election to the presidency of Local 417 Building Service Employees International, at a meeting held Friday night.

Dixon has been president of the local since it was chartered early this fall. Previously, he had been president of Local 67 State, County, and Municipal Employees.

When over 300 members of Local 67 voted to disaffiliate this fall and were chartered as Local 417 Dixon and the other officers were appointed by the international to continue serving until such a time as elections could be held.

Other officers unopposed for election include: Riggs Mingle, vice president; George Smith, secretary; Thomas Hartwick, treasurer; and William Benson, chief steward.

Other officers elected were assistant chief steward, Mary Mayes, and three trustees: John Keeler for a three-year term; Tressie Tate for a two-year term, and Eudelle Ward for a one-year term. Claude Young was elected a fourth member of the grievance committee.

In accepting the presidency, Dixon called on union members for support during the coming year.

"The road for the coming year is not going to be easy. There are many things to be accomplished. Union recognition is only the first step," he said.

Robert P. Lonergan, international representative, spoke on the three-man grievance panel now meeting to air labor difficulties between employees and the University.

Post Features ROTC Grad, Schwanger

First Lt. John L. Schwanger, a 1950 graduate of the University who received his commission through the Air Force Reserve Officers Training Corps program, is featured in an article in the Jan. 8 issue of The Saturday Evening Post.

The article, "They Call This Routine," was written by Colonel J. Bryan III, of the U.S. Air Force, and is concerned with "Project High Flight," the name of the operation for delivering jet aircraft to North Atlantic Treaty Organization air forces from the United States.

The author describes his experiences and impressions as a passenger during one of these flights on which Lt. Schwanger was the flight leader.

Project High Flight has delivered more than 1000 jet fighters and training aircraft to various NATO countries since March, 1953.

By the time Lt. Schwanger completes specialized flight training, such as training in various types of jet airplanes, the government will have invested about $120,000 in his training, according to the article.

Town Meeting--

Delegates at large to the Association of Independent Men would be elected by a majority vote of TIM every spring, following the election of officers, under the constitution's elections code.

Formerly, the election of members of Town Council was by wards. Off-campus areas were divided into 28 wards, each entitled to one representative.

Delegates at large to AIM were previously elected by council in the fall. One delegate was selected for every 500 men represented by the council. The delegates have seats on the AIM Board of Governors as members at large.

The council in the past has had difficulties in getting a full representation of town independents. Last year, for example, the first election was declared illegal and only one man voted in the second election.

The new constitution is designed to alleviate this problem.

Donald Weidner, council president, was chairman of the group which wrote the new constitution.

Debate centered around the provision in the new constitution restricting voting to only town independents who had attended two meetings. A compromise was reached in the decision to suspend this rule for the first two meetings of the fall semester.

Thespians to Hold Tryouts for Musical

Tryouts for parts in the musical "Finian's Rainbow," which Thespians will present on March 31 and April 1 and 2, will be held in 405 Old Main from 7 to 9 p.m. on Feb. 6, 7, and 8.

Negro students are needed for roles in the production. Technical crew members, singers, dancers, pianists, and musicians are sought.

Richard Hamer, seventh semester petroleum and natural gas engineering major, was elected president of Thespians at a meeting Sunday night. He succeeds Frank Cressman, eighth semester mechanical engineering major, who is being graduated this semester.

Louis Fryman, fourth semester business administration major, was elected to succeed Hamer as member-at-large. Shingles were distributed at the meeting.

Party Heads--

Miss DelleDonne declined comment on the content of her constitution, saying she would prefer to wait until a final recommendation has come from the Student Affairs committee.

Ross B. Lehman, chairman of the subcommittee on organization control said he could make no statement until a report had been made to the Student Affairs Committee.

Equipment--

(Continued from page one) a closed circuit system. The television picture will not be transmitted over the air but will be sent directly from camera to receiver over a coaxial cable.

Classes will be televised from two rooms: psychology classes from 10 Sparks and chemistry classes from 119 Osmond. About 50 students will attend class in the room from which the television is being transmitted. Another 150 students will watch the instruction on television receivers in three other rooms. A third group will attend regular classes without the use of television.

Two cameras will be used in each of the rooms from which the television is being transmitted. Two television receivers will be used in the rooms where students are receiving the instruction.

Over 300 Inspect Ice Skating Rink

Over 300 townspeople, faculty members, administration members, and representatives from All-University Cabinet inspected the new ice skating rink Sunday evening.

The reception was highlighted by figure skating routines presented by several members of the Penn State Outing Club.

The crowd inspected the rink, its equipment, and the clubhouse.
