

'Ebony' Features Article on Arnelle

All-University President Jesse Arnelle is praised as the "greatest two-sport star" in the University's history in the March issue of Ebony magazine.

A story and 12 pictures of Arnelle are featured in the nationally circulated Negro magazine, somewhat similar in form to Life.

In describing Arnelle, the article says: "Matured far beyond his 21 years, Arnelle possesses Bunche-like talents in diplomacy, a perceptiveness usually characteristic of elder statesmen, and a wonderful sense of humor."

The caption under the basketball picture says Arnelle is the "greatest basketball player" in the University's history who "now sets new records each time he plays."

Arnelle is currently averaging about 27.6 points each game and twice earlier this season broke the University's one-game individual scoring record.

When he was graduated from high school, Arnelle was offered sports scholarships by more than 24 colleges, the article says. "But Jesse chose Penn State because of his respect for head football coach Charles (Rip) Engle and because, as he said, 'I fell in love with Penn State the moment I saw it.'" it states.

The article terms the University's campus beautiful and says, "Although one of the nation's big universities, Penn State is noted for its friendliness."

Credit for much of Arnelle's success is given to his father, a New Rochelle, N.Y. policeman and former Hampton Institute football star.

An anecdote on Arnelle's upbringing says "A man of unorthodox ideas on how to successfully rear boys, Mr. Arnelle sometimes made effective use of the law to keep his boys in line. Once, when Jesse was 10, he was locked in jail for hours by his father who wanted to impress on him 'what happens when boys do bad things'."

In addition to sports pictures, other pictures of Arnelle show him conferring with President Milton S. Eisenhower, meeting with student government leaders, socializing with other students on campus and in the Waring Hall lounge.

Ag Council Discusses Grade Plan

Agriculture Student Council discussed proposed changes in the University's grading system Monday night. Although there were no concrete proposals made and voted upon, it was the general consensus that the -2 grade should be removed.

Daniel Van Duyn, fifth semester agricultural engineering major, presented a sample problem comparing the present grading system with a 0 to 4 type system, and using 10 credits as an example. His calculations showed that there was no significant difference in the two systems.

George Williams, president, read a letter from William Gordon, professor of rural sociology, who participated in the pageant at the recent Farm Show in Harrisburg, congratulating the council for its part in the pageant.

Williams also announced that applicants for the position of editor of the Ag Hill Breeze will be interviewed at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 16 in 10 Agriculture. Applicants should be either fifth or sixth semester students in the College of Agriculture.

They must submit their names in the Penn State Farmer mail box in 10 Agriculture by 5 p.m. Feb. 16 in order to be eligible to be interviewed.

The interviewing committee will be composed of Manley Case, present editor, Dr. Roy C. Buck, adviser, and John Robinson, past editor.

On a suggestion from the president, the council decided to sponsor a softball league again this year.

Colder Weather To Arrive Today

The warm front which arrived yesterday will leave the campus late this afternoon, the University department of meteorology has forecast.

Following showers this afternoon, the "spring fever" temperatures are expected to leave, ushering in a cold front.

The high yesterday was 48, and temperatures today will range between 32 and 40 degrees.

Postoffice Expected To Open February 22

The campus post office, University Park, will probably be open for business in the Hetzel Union Building by Feb. 22, the University's birthdate, according to Borough Postmaster Robert J. Miller.

Miller indicated yesterday, that although it was impossible to say definitely that all would be ready by this date, the outlook was good. Only unforeseen difficulties would delay the opening beyond that date, he said.

On the assumption that the opening would go through as planned, University officials yesterday began preparations for a brief, but formal, ceremony in the lobby of the post office on the morning of Feb. 22. No formal program was announced.

This date will also mark the official opening of the HUB although it will not be ready for use until at least Mar. 15.

Sale of Envelopes

Diehl McKalip, chairman of the Student Centennial Committee, yesterday said his committee is planning to sell commemorative envelopes and stamps in advance of the opening date. This is an effort to broadcast the new post office address—University Park, Pa.—throughout the state and nation, he said.

The plans, which are still under consideration, call for the sale of stamps and envelopes at the Student Union desk in Old Main. Probably beginning Monday the envelopes will carry an imprint of Old Main in blue and a legend calling attention to the Centennial.

Envelopes Can Be Canceled

Miller said he would be glad to cancel the envelopes under the Feb. 22 date if the necessary equipment arrives in time.

Anticipating the arrival of the equipment, McKalip said plans have been made to provide a box at the Student Union Desk where students can deposit their stamped envelopes to receive the Feb. 22 cancellation mark. He

Leader Favors Use of Potential In State Schools

Governor George M. Leader, in addressing the Board of Trustees of the University at a luncheon between semesters in Harrisburg, said he favored greater use of the brain power of Pennsylvania's state aided colleges and universities.

Leader stated that he planned to use more and more of the intelligence which Penn State and other state aided institutions possess.

Dr. William L. Henning, who was granted a leave of absence from the University to accept the post of Secretary of Agriculture, and Professor Maurice K. Goddard, who was granted a leave of absence to serve as Secretary of Forests and Waters, attended the luncheon.

said the cancellation of these envelopes would be arranged by the student committee and sent out on the University's birthday.

'Not First Issues'

McKalip emphasized that this envelope should not be confused with envelopes utilized for first issues, since only stamps issued under an East Lansing, Mich., dateline on Saturday will be recognized as the first issue.

The University envelopes, he said, "will notify the world that Penn State now has its own post office, and that the mail intended for the University should be addressed 'University Park, Pa.'"

Tickets Available For Jazz Concert By Kaminsky Band

Tickets for the Max Kaminsky jazz concert to be held at 7:30 p.m. Feb. 16 in Schwab Auditorium will be available to members of the Jazz Club. The club will meet at 7:15 tonight in 405 Old Main.

The tickets, priced at $1 each, are also on sale at the Student Union Desk in Old Main and at the Harmony Shop.

The concert, sponsored by the Campus Chest and the Jazz Club, will feature Max Kaminsky and his "All Stars," a jazz band.

Cluck Torrence and his Quartet will be featured at the Jazz Club meeting. Members of the Quartet are Jerry Miller, piano; Francis Taylor, Bass; Skip Senenik, Drums; and Torrence, alto saxophone.

The Stan Kenton album of extended play records from Cornell can be purchased by members at the meeting for $2.50.
