

House Discusses Rule Enforcement Question

By CAROLE GIBSON

Discussion of questionnaires to be distributed among women students concerning the enforcement of Women Student Government rules was discussed by the WSGA House of Representatives last night.

The enforcement plan, as suggested by the WSGA would be built around a hall chairman whose duty it would be to turn in suggestions for penalties to the WSGA Judicial committee.

The chairmen would be self-appointed and would be interviewed for their position by a WSGA screening committee.

Qualifications would be a 1.5 All-University average and no major judicial record.

The length of time the hall chairman would serve in all has not been suggested, and is one of the questions asked on the questionnaire.

The place of the hostesses and checkers has not been suggested should the system be adopted and would have to be worked out.

The hostesses will receive a similar questionnaire on the subject asking whether they would like to serve under an advisory capacity should such a system be adopted and if they feel they have enough competent girls in their units to assume the positions of hall chairmen.

In reply to the suggestion that an honor system be adopted instead of the proposed plan, Kay Kingsley, speaker of the House, explained that the plan under discussion was suggested as a compromise between the present method of operation and the honor system. The majority of WSGA members seem to feel that the honor system would be too drastic a change from the present method of enforcing WSGA rules, she explained.

The questionnaires will be distributed between a representative number of women students.

Co-chairmen of the elections committee, Anne Beebe and Diane Edelman, suggested that elections for the positions in the festival be held in each unit sometime next week.

Seniors will elect three finalists from the nominees elected in the primaries. From the finalists they will elect one girl to be the May Queen. The two runners-up will be the senior attendants.

Juniors and sophomores will elect two finalists for their prospective classes which will be the attendants for their classes.

Like seniors, the freshman women will narrow the nominees to three finalists. From these finalists they will choose the freshman maid of honor. The runners-up will serve as attendants for the freshman class.

In any dormitory unit where there are less than ten members of any class a representative may not be put up for nomination to take part in the May Day ceremonies.

Nominees will be required to have a five by seven inch picture to be displayed in one of the store windows of State College.

ZTA to Begin Book Drive

Zeta Tau Alpha is sponsoring a collection of used books to be donated to the Centre County Library and Bookmobile.

The collection will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. Feb. 19 at the Alpha Fire Co.

The purpose of the drive is to increase the number of children's books available in the county library, according to Mary Loubric, chairman of the collection committee.

Books available for fourth through eighth grade readers are especially needed. Mrs. Carl Iverson of the county library has told the book collection committee.

Adult books, especially those published within the last 10 years, and magazines published during 1953, 1954, and 1955 are also needed, she said.

Members of the committee are Miss Loubric, Nancy Seiler, Bessie Zazanis, Dorothy Hirst, Veronica Harris, and Nancy Graumann.

Al Wyland's orchestra will be featured at the dance. Tickets will be $1.75 per couple.
