A PSYCHOLOGY 2 instructor, Dr. John F. Hall, associate professor of psychology, poses for the television cameras in 10 Sparks, as part of the study aimed at solving future enrollment problems. The television picture is transmitted to rooms across the hall where other students watch on receivers. Two sections of chemistry 2 are also being taught by television. The study is being financed by a $43,000 grant from the Ford Foundation.

Profs, as Well as Students, Troubled by Grading System

By DOTTIE BENNETT

Students who are pondering ways and means to raise their average, and complaining about the grading system may be surprised to know that several professors have found the present system a source of concern too.

Neil A. McNall, associate professor of American history, when asked his opinion of the grading system, said, "It would be nice if we could dispense with the grading system completely" but since we can't he said he saw no valid reason for a change.

Dr. McNall said there would be a lot of problems involved in recording and computing grades if a percentage system were used. He added that most professors now use the percentage system until they give out the final grade, and that if a student's grade is very high in a certain bracket, there is a disposition on the part of the professor to boost it to a higher numerical grade, giving the student the benefit of the doubt.

All-University Cabinet will discuss a change in the grading system proposed by Rudolph Lutter, a committee of one, appointed by Lutter to study the University's grading system.

The cabinet meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Thursday in the board room on the second floor of Old Main. The meeting, like all cabinet meetings, is open to the public.

Earl B. Stavely, assistant dean of the College of Engineering and Architecture, said "Our experience is that the -2 grade has introduced a lot of difficulties in our effort to administer a program of a remedial nature when a student wants to transfer from one department or curriculum to another."

He pointed out that the College of Engineering and Architecture offers many four and five credit courses, and when a student receives a -2 in one of them his average is ruined, and he has real difficulty in working out something in a different college or in the division of intermediate registration.

Dr. Stavely said he would not say that the system should be changed, as he is not on the committee studying the problems involved in the effect a change would have.

He added that any change must involve a great deal of consideration as there are so many different things involved. He said at present it is impossible to say what would be the best system.

He said that in some cases it is now mathematically impossible for a student with a low average to get out of trouble, and said if a student gets in the wrong curriculum or gets a bad start, some-

Exchange Dinners Will Celebrate 'Centennial Day'

The University Student Centennial Committee announced last night that student exchange dinners will be held on Feb. 22, the night of the Birthday Party.

While 650 guests are eating their $4 dinners in the banquet room of the Hetzel Union Building, some coeds from the dormitories will be eating dinner in the West Dormitories and fraternities. An equal number of fraternity men will take the girls' places in the dining halls.

Both independent and sorority women will participate in the exchange program. At Monday lunch, checkers in the dining halls will ask coeds whether they are interested in "going out for dinner on the 22nd."

Monday night, the list of names of the girls in Simmons, McElwain, and Atherton interested in going out for dinner will be apportioned impartially between all of the fraternities. The freshman

Complete figures on the number of books sold this semester are not yet available.

Warm Weather Crowds Infirmary

The two-day taste of spring-like weather brought disastrous results in the form of colds, gripe and upset stomachs to University students. The infirmary was filled to capacity both days.

But yesterday, with typical February weather back on campus, the infirmary had settled down to a normal routine with seven beds to spare.

Red Radio Discloses Shake-up Of Judges on Supreme Court

LONDON, Feb. 11 (AP)—A shift in the make-up of the Soviet Supreme Court was disclosed by Moscow radio today. Six judges were removed and seven others elected to the bench.

There appeared to be no obvious connection between the court changes and the recent shake-up in the Soviet government. None of the dismissed judges was known to be prominent in political affairs.

However, observers here noted that Marshal Klementi Voroshilov, chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet Parliament, signed the decree on Feb. 7, a day before Marshal Nikolai Bulganin succeeded Georgi Malenkov as premier.

Among the newly named judges was Colonel of Justice V. V. Borisoglebsky. He was one of three judges who condemned to death former Minister of State Security Victor Abakumov in a mystery-shrouded case announced only last Dec. 24. Some specialists on Soviet affairs held the view this trial was a blow directed against Malenkov.

The new appointments affected only a small number of the total members of the Soviet Supreme Court, which consists of more than 70 justices and 35 assistants called people's assessors. The court supervises the application of Soviet law by supreme courts of the individual republics of the U.S.S.R. as well as handling work in its own chambers as the chief legal tribunal.

The outgoing judges were identified as I. V. Detistov, L. D. Dmitriyev, I. M. Zaryanov, P. T. Klopov, I. O. Matulevich and P. P. Pavelenko. Newly elected members were V. V. Borisoglebsky, V. I. G. Vorobyev, I. A. Ashin, A. A. Dolotsov, P. A. Likhachev, B. S. Stepanov and B. S. Tsyrlinsky.

The dismissals and new appointments do not indicate any prospective purge trials. When the Soviet Union holds top-level treason trials, special courts are appointed which in part bypass the Supreme Court.

Lion, Third Party To Meet Sunday

Third Party Saperstein Lists Heads Quits Party

By DOTTIE STONE

The Campus party, third political party, will hold its first clique meeting at 7.30 p.m. Sunday night in 10 Sparks. John McMeekin, an organizer of the party, released a list of the party's board members last night.

Some of the names submitted are Dick Rigling, David Eber, McMeekin, Samuel Kahn, Larry Nace, James Hand, Carol Swing, Steven Jordan, Dick Winn, and Harry Oxman.

Will Elect Officers

The party will ratify its constitution, elect all-university clique officers, and outline the party purposes at its Sunday night meeting.

The party is open to all students, regardless of their past political affiliation. McMeekin encouraged students to come out Sunday night.

"Because Campus party was founded for cleaner student politics, we need the support of the student body to make our campaign a success," McMeekin said.

Five Clique Officers

Officers to be elected will be the five all-university clique officers of chairman, vice-chairman, recording and executive secretary, and treasurer. At the second clique meeting, nominations will be made for the 20 class clique officers. Five officers will be elected from each class, and voting will take place the following week.

Five all-university clique officers, 20 class clique officers, together with 15 appointed members will form the party's steering committee. The appointed members will be chairmen of the various committees.

The party has submitted its constitution for approval to the Senate Committee on Student Affairs subcommittee on organization and control. After approval the constitution will go to the Senate Committee of Student Affairs. The party cannot go into elections without a charter approved by the University Senate.

WD Council to Elect New President Monday

West Dorm Council will meet at 7 p.m. Monday in McKee Lounge to nominate and elect a new council president to replace retiring president Stanley Juras, sixth semester engineering science major.

By ROG BEIDLER

Carl Saperstein, Lion party clique chairman, resigned his post last night to join the newly formed Campus party.

In vacating his post, Saperstein said that he was joining the Campus party because he felt it offers any student a square deal in politics. He also stated that he does not intend to run for any office in the Campus party.

"I do not believe the Lion party offers its members a voice in the party," he said.

Saperstein is the second Lion party clique officer to resign this week. Gordon Pogal, clique chairman, announced Monday that he would resign at the meeting tomorrow night.

Lion party will hold elections for three clique offices at its meeting at 7 p.m. tomorrow in Schwab Auditorium. Clique chairman, vice-clique chairman, and clique secretary will be elected.

Vanessa Johnson, party secretary, will also vacate her position. She was appointed by Pogal when the former secretary resigned.

Pogal announced his decision Monday and said that since the campus political system has undergone a complete reorganization during the past semester, he would resign because he felt this reorganization should extend into the administration of the political parties.

He also stated that he felt a new clique chairman would be advantageous to the party at this time.

Pogal said that he will first present the new party constitution at the meeting and then hold elections for the three officers.

The meeting will be open to all students.

IFC to Hear Rushing Code Amendments

Interfraternity Council will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in 219 Electrical Engineering to consider several additions and changes to the IFC rushing code.

The four major revisions are: 1. Rushes may be house guests only during Orientation Week. Under the old code a fraternity could invite an upperclassman to live in the house under conditions stipulated by the house. There was no time limit stipulated.

2. If a house fails to appear before the Board of Control when it is called, it is considered a plea of guilty and the house forfeits its right to appeal.

3. In order to appeal a decision of the board, a house must present a petition signed by 51 percent of the member houses. When this is done, the board reviews the case. A further appeal may be made on the floor of IFC. A decision may be reversed by a 2/3 vote. Under the old code, a house appealed directly to IFC.

4. Setting a time limit of two weeks for receiving the pledge slips and $2 fee which a house must submit to IFC for each pledge. No pledge can be recognized until this fee has been received.
