Chaplain Appointed By Prexy

The Rev. John S. Duley, director of the Westminster Foundation of the Presbyterian Church, has been appointed Presbyterian chaplain to the University, effective Feb. 1.

President Milton S. Eisenhower, in announcing the appointment, explained that the appointment of chaplains to the University is designed to relate more closely the work of the churches with the religious program on the University campus.

In his new position, the Reverend Duley will work in close cooperation with the University Christian Association and with the office of the University chaplain.

The Reverend Duley completed his undergraduate work at Ohio State University in the School of Social Administration, and his graduate work at Union Theological Seminary in New York, N.Y., where he received his degree in 1949.

The Reverend Duley has served as director of the Westminster Foundation and assistant pastor of the Presbyterian Church since February, 1953.

Before coming to State College, he was director of the Inter-Church Student Council and pastor to the Baptist, Congregational, Methodist, and Presbyterian students at Western Michigan College and Kalamazoo College in Kalamazoo, Mich.

European Study Plan Is Offered

Graduate and undergraduate students have been offered the opportunity of a year's study in Denmark, Norway, Sweden, or Finland through the expanded program of the Scandinavian Seminar for Cultural Studies for the 1955-56 academic year.

In previous years the program only offered study in the folk schools or residential colleges of Denmark.

Cost of the entire nine months program, including room, board, and tuition, is $800 plus travel. Two $400 scholarships are available for students interested in studying abroad.

Seminar members carry out research in their particular field during their study. Each student is assigned an adviser and a February field trip is used for independent research or visiting institutions in any or all of the Scandinavian countries.

Seminar members also learn a Scandinavian language while in the country of their choice. They will live with several families during the first few months and participate in a series of group seminars. During the five months at a folk school, students will follow the same curriculum as Scandinavian students.

For application blanks or further information, students may write to the American-Scandinavian Council for Adult Education, 127 E. 73 st., New York 21, N.Y.

Dior Makes Grade With Younger Set

By MARCIE MacDONALD

Collegian Society Editor

Some American designers are capitalizing on what may have been a cool reception in this country to Christian Dior's new H-line by producing pint-sized versions of his creations for children.

Although some flat-look designs have won some praise by American women, this new look certainly is more becoming on the average four-year-old than the average forty-year-old. Friend Christian just had the right idea for the wrong age group.

Spring fashions are appearing in all the magazines now, despite the fact that about half the nation is sloshing through snow and sleet. And spring, of course, has always been synonymous with new hats.

McCall's February issue shows a hat collection that, for a change, doesn't stress one-and-only-one new silhouette. So for a change most of us can wear what's becoming to us and still be fashionable about it.

Take your choice—there are berets, pixie caps, sailors, modified floppy picture hats, and cloches. And as far as color goes, you can practically mix your own.

Last year's princess dress has won a permanent place in the American woman's wardrobe, from sub-teen to misses sizes. New versions shown, include front and back princess panels with gathered sides, and softened, draped neckline effects flowing into princess lines. Three cheers for this.

Just as a sideline, we recently talked to a Scotch boy attending prep school in Maryland about what men's styles are like in Scotland. He explained that kilts are more or less a dress uniform sort of thing, worn with dinner jackets for formal occasions. For the most part, he said, Scots wear about the same type of clothes as American men.

So it would appear we have copied the kilt but changed its time and place considerably.

The middy blouse your mother wore in gym classes (with long black stockings and black knee-length bloomers) is on the agenda again for 1955 sportswear and suit dresses. You can have it in imported wool or straight from your midshipman boyfriend's seabag.

As far as the new suits go, and they'll probably go everywhere, longer, straighter jackets are the by-word. In hotter weather, long, straight overblouses will pick up where the suits leave off. These look fine on the tall, willowy type, but for most people this makes them look like they're walking on their knees.

The shirt dress has blossomed out for spring and summer in silk, satin, and wonderful orlon and dacron mixtures, with pencil or billowy skirts, as you like it.

Meanwhile, girls, back at the Penn State ranch, bundle up in your knee socks, gorm coats and stadium boots. There's a lot of winter left in the almanac, and State College will get its lion's share, you can be sure.

The Rev. Jesse Trotter will be speaker at the Chapel services at 10:55 a.m. tomorrow in Schwab auditorium.

The Reverend Trotter, professor of Christian apologetics at Virginia Theological Seminary, Alexandria, Va., will speak on the topic "The Purpose of Theology."

The anthem, "Hear My Prayer, O Lord" (Mundy) will be sung by the Chapel Choir. George E. Ceiga, University organist, will play "Andante Religioso" (Liszt) for the prelude and "Allegro Moderato in C" (Merkel) for the postlude.

Born in Chattanooga, Tenn., the Reverend Trotter was graduated from Amherst College and held a two-year fellowship at Doshisha University, Kyoto, Japan from 1931 to 1933. He received his bachelor of divinity and master of sacred theology degrees at Virginia Theological Seminary.

From 1937 to 1939, he served as assistant minister of Trinity Church in Boston and was chaplain of Amherst College and rector of Grace Church in Amherst from 1940 to 1946. Since 1946 the Reverend Trotter has served on the faculty of Virginia Theological Seminary. He served as president of the Church Society for College Work of the Episcopal Church from 1948 to 1954.
