

Tickets on Sale For Talent Show

Tickets are now on sale for $1 at the Student Union desk in Old Main for tonight's All-University talent show, to be presented in Schwab Auditorium.

Ten students will be competing for honors in the show which is sponsored by the Penn State Club. The program will be both instrumental and vocal.

Frances Spatafore, fourth semester arts and letters major, will open the program. Miss Spatafore will sing "I Love Paris" and "Come Back to Sorrento."

Songs of yesterday and today will be done by pantomimist James Brown, second semester arts and letters major. He will pantomime records of Al Jolson and Johnny Ray.

Dramatic Soprano
Nancy Heyman, dramatic soprano, will sing "My Hero" and "The Desert Song." Miss Heyman is a second semester music major.

Joan MacKenzie, second semester arts and letters major and last year's Homecoming Queen, will give her interpretation of a blues number, "The Man That Got Away."

Carolyn O'Donnell, second semester arts and letters major, will sing two numbers, "Sunny Side of the Street" and "Stormy Weather."

Baritone to Sing
Frank Fillipp, second semester architectural major, will also sing several selections. Fillipp is a baritone.

Sigmund Bogucki, second semester chemistry major, will give several selections on the accordion. Robert Jones, eighth semester music education major, will play the piano, and Marvin Thomas, sixth semester student, will give several renditions on the saxophone.

Howard Rowlands, sixth semester arts and letters major, will sing several numbers. Rowlands in a bass-baritone.

Kennedy Named 'Indie Week' Head

James Kennedy, eighth semester chemistry major, has been appointed chairman of the Independent Week committee. Robert Dennis, president of the Association of Independent Men, has announced.

Dennis appointed James McDowell, seventh semester mechanical engineering major, to chair the AIM Spring Week committee.

The AIM Board of Governors voted Wednesday night to appropriate $350 for the freshman handbook to be given to incoming freshmen next year. The total cost of the handbook will be approximately $650, but the dean of men's office and the department of housing will pay $300.

Air Society Will Hold Conclave

The Arnold Air Society will host delegates from 20 colleges and universities tomorrow through Sunday at an Area C district conclave at the University.

Reserve Lt. Col. Dean H. McKinley, assistant dean of the College of Business, and Lt. Col. Carroll L. Buhman, acting professor of air science, will open a series of weekend meetings with talks at 8:45 a.m. Saturday in 205 Old Main.

Delegates from North Carolina, Virginia, Maryland, and Pennsylvania will attend the conclave to formulate area policies to be presented at the national conclave in Washington during Easter vacation.

This is the first time the conclave will be held on the University campus although the local squadron is headquarters for the area.

Members of Angel Flight, women's auxiliary corps, will greet the delegates at the Armory Friday, and provide stenographic and other services for the members during the conclave.

Area Commander David Hiestand announced the schedule of weekend events for conclave delegates. It includes a stag dinner tomorrow night at Alpha Chi Sigma, a luncheon at noon Saturday at the State College Hotel, and a tentative tour of the campus and Hetzel Union Building at 3 p.m. Saturday.

Also included, in addition to opening speeches Saturday morning, will be an en masse attendance of the delegates, the local squadron, and the Angel Flight at Chapel Sunday morning.

Hat Societies Will Be Guides

Guides will be provided by the hat societies for the official opening of the Hetzel Union Building, March 15, Hat Society Council decided Wednesday night.

During the individual society reports Nancy Scofield, president of Scrolls, announced that the group will take a carload of articles such as magazines, cards, and games to the State Mental Hospital in Hollidaysburg on Sunday.

Mortar Board is making a study of resident counseling for freshman women students Joyce Shusman, president, reported. The society is investigating the judicial, morale, and scholastic records of freshman women to determine whether such a program is needed at the University. To further the study, the group has written other colleges and universities for information.
