Saxophone Player Wins Talent Show

By JACK WILLIAMS

Marvin Trimas, sixth semester industrial engineering major, took first honors last night in the All-University Talent Show in Schwab Auditorium.

Trimas, who played the saxophone and clarinet before a small audience, gave his renditions of "Over the Rainbow," "Twelfth Street Rag" and "Night Train."

Howard Rowlands, a bass-baritone, took second prize with his interpretation of "You'll Never Walk Alone." Rowland, a sixth semester arts and letters major, is soloist with the Men's Glee Club. He also sang "Old Man River."

Third prize was won by Zigmund Bogucki, an accordionist who played "Twelfth Street Rag," "Tiger Rag," and "Five Foot Two." Bogucki is a second semester chemistry major.

Other performers who competed for honors were song stylist Frances Spatafore, fourth semester arts and letters major, who placed second in last year's show; pantomimist James Brown, second semester arts and letters major; Nancy Heyman, dramatic soprano who is a second semester music major; Joan McKenzie, second semester arts and letters major; singer Carolyn O'Donnell, second semester arts and letters major; and Frank Fillipp, second semester architecture major.

Master of ceremonies for the show was Denny Howell, fourth semester student. Tom Monito and his orchestra played for the show. Barry Kaiser, last year's winner, also appeared.

This was the 15th annual Talent Show sponsored by the Penn State Club.

Trustees Accept Two Resignations

Resignations of two faculty members, Dr. Georg E. Knausenberger, associate professor of engineering research, and Mary K. Leonard, professor in home economics extension, were accepted at the Feb. 21 meeting of the Board of Trustees, President Milton S. Eisenhower announced today.

Dr. Knausenberger's resignation went into effect Jan. 31 and he will go into consulting for industry work. Miss Leonard's resignation will become effective April 30. She will go into commercial work.

Centennial

Pattee Library Has Historical 1855 Exhibit

The Pattee Library is housing a historical exhibit called "1855—The Year of the Founding". The theme of the display, however, is not the founding of Penn State or the Farmers' High School of Pennsylvania, as it was known then, but rather, concerns the world into which Penn State was born.

"It attempts to give the flavor of the period by showing exhibits of literature and art, agriculture and rural life, westward expansion, science and industry, education and religion, commerce and transportation," Ralph McComb, librarian of the Pattee Library, said.

The display, which is being shown on the main floor and second floor lobbies, illustrates various aspects of life in 1855 by using newspapers, magazines, and textbooks. Authentic examples of domestic and agricultural implements are set up on one table, including a spinning wheel, a handmade quilt, a cradle, and a wooden shovel which were loaned to the library by Dr. and Mrs. Stevenson W. Fletcher and the Pennsylvania State Museum in Harrisburg. Dr. Fletcher is dean emeritus of the School of Agriculture.

Other highlights of the exhibit include contemporary accounts of dramatizations of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" by Harriet Beecher Stowe, illustrations of Admiral Perry's voyage to Japan, the Crimean War, and westward and industrial expansion. A copy of Gody's Ladies' Book also is on display. Of special interest is a diorama portraying a sugar camp at sugaring-off time.

Spring Week Positions Filled

Eight Spring Week appointments have been made by Jesse Arnelle, All-University President. The appointments were announced at the All-University Cabinet meeting Thursday night.

Harry McBurney, fifth semester business administration major, has been appointed Spring Week publicity chairman. He will replace Diehl McKalip, eighth semester journalism major, who resigned.

The following were appointed to the Spring Week business committee. Susan Brown, sixth semester journalism major; John Albrecht, sixth semester aeronautical engineer; Patricia Mostrog, sixth semester education major; David Richards, fourth semester engineering science major; James Tate, sixth semester arts and letters major; and Robert Urban, sixth semester business administration major.

Parties to Name Spring Candidates

The political movement will gather steam tomorrow night as preliminary nominations are held for the spring elections. Naming candidates for the All-University, senior, and junior offices will be the main order of business.

Matriculation cards will be stamped at the clique meetings by members of the Elections Committee. A student must have his card stamped at least once before he can vote at a final clique meeting.

Nominations will be open next week, after which final balloting for the parties' complete slates will take place.

Fraternity or Independent?
The question of whether the senior class president will be a fraternity or independent man has not been decided. Previously, the elections committee meeting with the clique chairmen of the three parties had decided that the senior class president would be an independent man. But, at the request of the parties, the question was re-opened. At present, no decision has been made.

The All-University president will be a fraternity man, as will the junior class president. The vice presidents of the all-university and junior class will be independents.

Lion Party
Lion party will meet at 7 p.m. tomorrow in 110 Electrical Engineering. Elections will be held to fill the remaining clique positions of sophomore vice-clique chairman for men, and sophomore class secretary. Freshman class vice-clique chairman for men and women, and the senior class vice-clique chairman for women will also be elected.

Lion party will hold a steering committee meeting at 2 p.m. tomorrow in 217 Willard.

Campus Party
Campus party will hold their nominations for spring election candidates at 7:30 in 10 Sparks. Campus party elected all 20 class clique officers at last week's meeting. John McMeekin, Campus party clique chairman, also appointed 11 committee members. McMeekin will appoint five more students this week.

Campus party will hold their steering committee meeting at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow in 108 Willard.

State Party
State party will meet at 7 p.m. tomorrow in 121 Sparks to elect class clique officers. Rae DelleDonne, State party clique chairman, said the nomination of candidates may be on the agenda, if time permits.

Electing an All-University secretariat to replace Janet McKee, who resigned before last week's meeting to join the Campus party, will be the first order of business.

Nominations and elections will be held for offices of the junior and senior class cliques. Nominations were open last week, but only two students were nominated.

Nine students, one from each college, will be elected by the clique to sit on the student representative council. The State Party Council will meet at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow in 107 Willard.

Sunny, Clear Skies Predicted for Today

Murray Writes Book

Dr. Robert K. Murray, assistant professor of history, is author of the book, "Red Scare: A Study in National Hysteria, 1919-20," published by the University of Minnesota Press.

Chapel to Hold Joint Service

A joint Jewish-Christian Chapel service has been planned for 10:55 a.m. tomorrow by the University Chapel.

Both the Hillel choir and the Chapel choir will participate in the service.

The Jewish service will precede the Christian service with Rabbi Benjamin M. Kahn, director of the Hillel Foundation and Jewish chaplain to the University reciting the meditation for the Jewish service.

The Rev. Luther H. Harshbarger, University chaplain, will present the meditations for the Christian service.

Tutoring for Engineers

Eta Kappa Nu, electrical engineering honorary society, will hold free tutoring sessions for freshmen and sophomore engineering majors at 7 p.m. Wednesdays in 100 Electrical Engineering.

House Passes Tax Cut

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (AP)—House Democrats defied President Dwight D. Eisenhower today and passed their bill to cut income taxes $20 a person beginning next Jan. 1.

The bill, stirring up one of the closest and warmest political scraps in years, now goes to the Senate where its future is doubtful at best. If it should pass that chamber, it faces a possible veto by Eisenhower.

In the crucial vote in the House, Democrats nailed the income tax cut into a package tax bill by a roll call of 210-205. The margin of five votes—forged in the last few seconds of the tense voting—defeated a Republican motion to knock the income tax cut out of the measure.

At the end of the regular poll of House members, unofficial tallies showed the two sides were exactly even. Both Democratic and Republican leaders scurried frantically for last-second votes.

There were some hurried switches, and Democrats brought in a few more latecomers. Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.), who had pushed through the tax cut over Eisenhower's strong opposition, announced the final score to a hushed House. Democrats erupted in wild applause and backslapping.

Then the House passed the package bill, 242-175, but that was anti-climax.

The bill also includes Eisenhower's request to continue present corporation income and excise tax rates for one more year. The corporation rate is scheduled to drop from 52 to 47 per cent on April 1. On the same date excises are due to drop on automobiles, liquor, gasoline, cigarettes, beer, wine, trucks and auto parts.

There was no opposition to these tax extensions, which will save the Treasury almost three billion dollars a year. The income tax cut would reduce federal revenues about $2,200,000,000 over a full year.

The bill provides a $20 tax cut for each individual taxpayer and each dependent. For example, the cut would amount to $100 for a family of five. Blind persons or persons over 65 who already get an extra tax exemption would get a cut of $40 each.

About five million taxpayers with low incomes or large families would be relieved of any federal income tax bill at all.
