

Candidates

Seely said he wanted to go over the constitution with his junior executive board, if time was available before Cabinet meeting tonight.

Lutter said he felt it should be given careful consideration as the constitution was so detailed. Leasure said he felt the changes were very minute and hoped it will have as wide an acceptance as the old one.

Leasure said he had never attended a Cabinet meeting, although he had learned about its procedure through the Agriculture Student Council. Lutter said he had been an observer at all Cabinet meetings and had presented the grading system report. Seely, who became junior class president in February, has been a voting member of Cabinet since that time.

All three claimed they had made no commitments requiring them to appoint people to committee positions if they became All-University President.

When asked how he would make appointments, Leasure said he would personally look into each person's record, not give the job to a committee. Both Lutter and Seely said they would appoint people on the basis of qualifications and ask help from Intercollegiate Council Board, which is an interviewing group set up by Cabinet.

Opinions were varied on the value of National Student Association. NSA is being discussed by Cabinet members at present.

Seely felt that the University's problems are so far apart from smaller schools, that unless we could get into a region with schools of our size, NSA is of little use.

Lutter felt the value comes from the informal discussion at regional conferences, and he urged that the matter should be given careful consideration. Leasure said he was not familiar with NSA, but felt that something could be gained from such an organization.

Cabinet to Discuss New Constitution

The revised All-University Constitution will be the only matter of discussion at the All-University Cabinet meeting at 7 tonight in the Board Room, second floor Old Main.

Under the proposed constitution, a Supreme Court will be established to hear appeals concerning the constitutionality of legislation passed by cabinet. It would also hear cases involving violations of the All-University Elections Code.

The court would be composed of senior members of Tribunal and senior members of Judicial. It would not hear discipline cases from Tribunal or Judicial. These appeals are made to University Senate discipline subcommittee.

The revised constitution will be discussed at the next few Cabinet meetings, Robert Homan, All-University Secretary-Treasurer, said last night.

Livestock Drawing For Animal Show Set for Tonight

Drawing of livestock for the annual Little International Show will be held at 7:30 tonight in 206 Agriculture, according to William Kelly, show manager.

The animal husbandry department will make available 50 beef cattle, 36 sheep, 18 horses, and 18 hogs for the show, which will be held April 30.

Instructions for showing the animals will be given by Robert Hartley in charge of beef cattle, assisted by John Coble with Herefords; Donald Hutzler, Angus; and James Harding, shorthorns.

John Tait is manager for sheep handling; Alfred Celecki, horses; and Vernon Hazlett, swine.

held at the same time in 316 Sparks.

The main program will begin with a radio broadcast at 9:30 tonight over WMAJ and WDFM. There will be one representative from each college. A round-robin interview on the subject each college is most proud of will open the program. The delegates then will be quizzed on college colors, songs, symbols, statistics, and distinctions.

The Congress itself will get underway at a general session at 9 a.m. tomorrow at the State College Hotel. Committees will meet throughout the day.

At 5:30 p.m. a dinner will be held at the hotel after which speeches by the "Gavel Girl" candidates will be given. The winner will receive a silver gavel. Dr. Joseph O'Brien, professor of speech, will be toastmaster.

An assembly session on foreign policy will be conducted at 7:30 p.m. tomorrow in 10 Sparks. The topic: "What changes, if any, should be made in the foreign policy of the United States in relation to Asia?"

The final meeting will be held Saturday morning in 121 Sparks, with the topic: "Should the government subsidize the higher education of the gifted child?" At the close of the meeting, four parliamentary speakers will be chosen for making the most effective presentations from the floor.

Freshman Queen Entries Are Due

Tomorrow is the deadline for submitting nominations for the Freshman Centennial Dance queen. The dance will be held March 26 in the Hetzel Union Building.

Each men's unit may sponsor one candidate, who may be any freshman woman. The name and picture of the candidate must be submitted by the unit president at the Student Union desk in Old Main.

needed. Some really good paintings for the HUB would certainly be an asset to the University."

Allene Rawlins, eighth semester arts and letters major: "I suggest television sets for the dorms."

David Boyer, eighth semester business administration major: "I guess I'd say furnishings for the new student union building."

Suzanne Strom, eighth semester home economics major: "I think furnishings for the HUB or the new chapel, or more books for the library would be appropriate. Or possibly an ambulance for the infirmary."

Charles Bryson, eighth semester arts and letters major: "I think a stained glass window for the new chapel would be good."

Mary Loubris, eighth semester arts and letters major: "I'm in favor of a donation for an arena theater."

Michael Brunner, eighth semester industrial engineering major: "Some sort of fund to set aside for enlarging the infirmary or dispensary facilities."

Joan Clarey, eighth semester arts and letters major: "I would suggest giving the stained glass window behind the altar in the new chapel."

Richard Favro, eighth semester business administration major: "At College avenue and Shortlidge road there is no arch or memorial of any kind. This is the only main entrance to the University which is unadorned. Perhaps we should keep this in mind while considering a class gift." Glenn Bush, eighth semester metallurgy major: "I think it should be something the majority of the students could use—possibly something for the chapel." Patricia Ellis, eighth semester arts and letters major: "I thought about some paintings for the HUB or an ambulance."

Marianne Herold, eighth semester home economics major: "I think furnishings for the All-Faith Chapel would be suitable for a memorial." Suggestion boxes for students' ideas are located in the lounges of McElwain, Simmons, Atherton, Grange, Women's Building, Waring Hall, and in the Temporary Union Building, and Student Union desk in Old Main.

ODE TO CORRASABLE BOND

A big feather in our Eaton cap

On the left is the Eaton Paper factory, or a reasonable facsimile of same

By an artist of the Italian School, Olivetti or some such name.

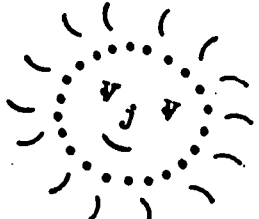

This big, busy plant is the birthplace of Eaton's CORRASABLE;

The typewriter paper that exploded the theory that nothing is irreplaceable.

And if you're using another brand of paper, Basil (or Hazel)

It's time you gave your affection for it an "agonizing reappraisal".

You'll agree that most typewriter papers, when erased, look like a child's conception of a monsoon.

But CORRASABLE erasures show 'bout like a June moon at noon.

Errors flick off with a pencil eraser, there's no evidence of your faux pas,

Makes typewriter papers that smudge seem more than a little below par.

And while omnia Gallia may be divisa in partes tres, CORRASABLE comes in FOUR weights, in your favorite place.

So don't go to pieces over typing your thesis!

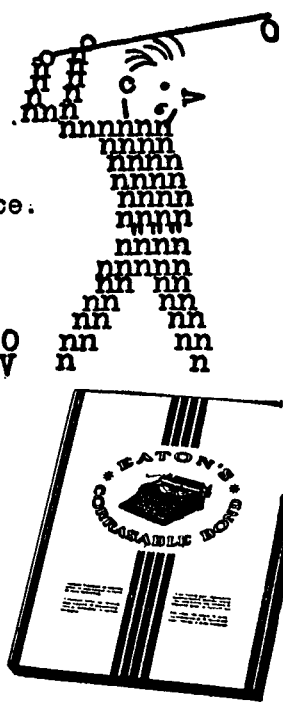

Get CORRASABLE, the typewriter paper that pleases.

P. S. Comes in 100-sheet packets and 500-sheet reams.

When you want it erasable—Ask for Eaton's Corrāsable
