

Scholarship Is Refused By Swedish Gymnast

The University has lost a top Swedish gymnast to the University of Iowa.

Steffan Carlsson, national Swedish junior gymnastic champion, has declined the scholarship voted to him by Interfraternity Council last November and has enrolled in the Big Ten school.

Storage Tank To Be Installed In Ag Hill Area

A new 750,000-gallon water storage tank will be installed at the University before the end of the year.

The tank, which will be similar to the storage tank located west of Beaver Field, will be erected on Ag Hill, near the parking area north of Patterson Hall.

The new storage tank is needed to supplement the University water supply and increase water storage facilities as the demand for water on the campus continues to increase.

The contract for the construction and erection of the tank has been let to the Pittsburgh-Des Moines Steel Co., Pittsburgh. Erection will be completed before the end of the year.

The new tank will be larger than the one located near Beaver Field. The present tank holds 500,000 gallons. Provisions will be made later for enclosing the steel supports of the new tank with brick casing.

Campus Mail Deliveries Slow

Mail addressed to students on campus has been slowed in its delivery, because of inadequate addresses, Allen C. St. Clair, director of purchases, said.

St. Clair's office has been handling the distribution of campus mail.

St. Clair said that letters addressed only by name and "University Park, Pa." must be separated by clerks and individually checked for the full address.

He urged those writing to persons on campus to include building numbers on their address so that student mail can be separated from faculty and staff correspondence and delivered promptly.

AIM Recommends 4 Student Penalties

The Association of Independent Men Judicial Board of Review last night recommended office and judicial probation for four second semester students to the dean of men's office. Two of the students received office probation and the other two received judicial probation.

The first two students up before the board admitted that they exploded firecrackers on the night of March 3 in the court at the side of Hamilton Hall. The students said that they had tired of studying and had decided to ignite the firecrackers and throw them out the window.

The students had denied any knowledge of the incident when questioned immediately after throwing the firecrackers, but the next morning they told the true story to the dorm counselors.

The students said they were unaware of the State and University regulations banning the use of firecrackers or any similar form of explosive.

One student said that while he was living in the Nittany dormitory area firecrackers were a common occurrence and that no students of his knowledge were ever reprimanded. He said this was one of the reasons why he thought throwing firecrackers wasn't a serious offense.

The board recommended office probation for the pair, which if approved, will put a record of this incident in the judicial records but no permanent record will be made. The rule further states that the accused will have to make visits to the dean of men's office at set intervals.

The other cases brought before the board pertained to students' drinking alcoholic beverages and then being boisterous in the dormitories. The two students accused were said to have apparently been drinking at a fraternity and to have entered Hamilton Hall to visit one of their friends when the dormitory counselor saw them. In his report the counselor stated that the students were not particularly noisy but were a disturbing influence on the floor. The board in discussing the matter found the statement rather ambiguous in setting forth the manner in which the students did cause a disturbing influence on the floor.

After further deliberation it was decided to recommend judicial probation for the students, which, if approved, would require the students to report to the AIM Judicial Board at certain times. No permanent record of the case will be filed.

Carlsson turned down the IFC scholarship because he would have had to wait at least a year before applying for admission to the University.

The reason for the delay was that Carlsson does not have a high school diploma, required by the University for admission.

According to R. E. Tschan, college examiner, it had been suggested to Carlsson that he attempt to obtain a diploma in a year and then apply for admission.

In Sweden, Carlsson had completed the equivalent of a ninth grade education, according to Tschan. If he intended to enter a Swedish university, he would have had to attend another three years of high school.

However, Tschan said the gymnastic champion might have been able to get a diploma from an American high school in a year because European standards of education are generally accepted to be higher than those in America.

When Carlsson appeared at the University with the Swedish National Gymnastic team in January he was interviewed by University officials and, according to John Carpenter, IFC president, was considering attending State College High School or a high school in Erie.

However, when the team appeared at Iowa University in February, Carlsson was told he could enroll at the conclusion of the tour. The tour ended March 4.

Gene Wettstone, gymnastics coach, had no comment to make yesterday.

Tschan said Carlsson could not have been admitted by examination, because University policy does not allow it.

The IFC scholarship would have covered room and board expenses. Carlsson had also been offered a presidential scholarship to cover the cost of tuition.
