

Indie Dance To Be Held In HUB

The Spring Dance tonight sponsored by the Association of Independent Men and Leonides will be a "first time" affair.

It will be the first big dance to be held in the Hetzel Union Building. Johnny Nicolosi and his band will be playing from 8:30 p.m. until midnight. The theme of the dance will be St. Patrick's Day.

It will also be the first time AIM and Leonides have sponsored a spring dance.

This is National Independent Student Association Week. The dance will climax the first local celebration of NISA week.

The week began Mar. 11 with an informal record dance in Waring Hall. Last Saturday Al Wyand and his band played for another informal dance in Waring Hall.

Independent Chapel was held last Sunday. The board of governors of AIM attended the service en masse, while Robert Dennis, AIM president and Joan Packard, Leonides president, took part in the service.

The first day of voting for the Independent Sweetheart was Monday. The contest winner will be crowned during intermission of the dance tonight.

The men of the West Dormitory area and the women living in Thompson participated in an exchange dinner Wednesday evening.

Exhibits of independent activities have been displayed in the Pattee Library and in Waring Hall since March 11.

Pictures and committee reports will be submitted in a contest sponsored by the University of Tennessee for all schools participating in NISA week celebrations. The winner will be awarded a trophy at the NISA convention April 11 to 14 at Colorado A & M.

Japan. This critics point to as Roosevelt's biggest failure. It was revealed in the minutes that Roosevelt was informed while at the conference about the potential power of the atomic bomb. However, it is true Roosevelt had no possible gauge whatsoever to calculate the effect the bomb would have five months later upon Japanese morale. It also must be remembered that the decisive fighting on Okinawa was not complete at this time.

Still, Russia received the Kurile Islands, the southern half of Sakhalin Island, a warm water port in Manchuria, and railway concessions in Manchuria without a strong fight from Roosevelt. These latter two objectives had been goals of Russia since the Siberian frontier was closed in the latter part of the last century.

Probably the biggest factor is that Roosevelt wasn't entirely sure of what was U.S. foreign policy towards the Far East, and this despite a prepared policy

Alumni to Tour HUB

The Centre County Penn State Alumni Club will tour the Hetzel Union Building Tuesday night following its meeting in the HUB. Dr. Gerald B. M. Stein, club president, announced yesterday.

book he carried to the conference. In 1955, ten years later, the direction of U.S. Far Eastern policy has not been to any great extent, better defined. When you're fighting in terrain you don't know anything about, you're always at a disadvantage. (And senators like William F. Knowland don't aid in finding the direction, either.)

Americans are going to study for years to come the minutes of this report. This conference may have been decisive in the U.S. battle for Asia. But, it proves the ineptitude of the U.S. policy towards Asia at the present time. And there's no place to turn.
