Spotlighting Theta Phi Alpha

By JUDY HARKISON

The need for a Catholic organization on college campuses influenced Bishop Edwin D. Kelly, auxiliary bishop of Detroit, in organizing Theta Phi Alpha. The first chapter of the sorority was established at the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Mich., in 1912.

In September, 1929, the Rho chapter of Theta Phi Alpha was organized at the University. Symbols of the sorority are the sapphire jewel; gold, silver, and blue colors; and flower, and white rose.

The suite is located on first floor McElwain. Twenty-one women, including five pledges, are members.

Theta Phi Alpha will celebrate "Founders Day" April 30 with a banquet and present traditional awards to members. The pledge with the highest scholastic average will be honored and a scholarship will be presented to the junior sister making the most improvement since the previous semester. The outstanding pledge will be selected, and the pledge who has composed the winning "Founders Day" song will receive an award.

Each year the national organization presents the "Senior Service Award" to an outstanding sister of each chapter in the United States.

Theta Phi Alpha plays an active part in Newman Club, and sponsored a St. Patrick's Day party for the club in March. The members also conduct the daily infirmary food service.

As a group, they won the Mardi Gras cup for the past three years, and have taken first place in the Spring Week float division twice.

MISS MAUREEN GROTSKY

Okay, Joe?

Wearing a soft white drape and looking as sedate as possible, you'd never know that Maureen is actually a most vivacious young lady. However, a serious rendition of her is probably more lasting by far than her smiling pictures. Nineteen years old and from Chester, Maureen has no permanent attachments.

Finally after several years, we're doing a sorority composite without shoulder drapes. Tailored white blouses of a soft material with handsome collars and long sleeves are hard to beat. We just started Delta Zeta this morning. Check beautiful Dot Bourne.

On Friday night we photographed the bi-regional conclave of SAM at Autoport. This huge dinner affair was then climaxed by a dance. Couldn't get the name of the band but it was one of the best heard around here.

As many of you already know, our music is now played on a hi-fi tape recorder. Shortly we expect to have a music menu. That is, you select the music you'd like to hear during your sitting—to put you in the mood you'd like to be in. Check pledge class of Kappa Alpha Theta.

Sincerely,
b.c.
