Home Ec Weekend To Begin Friday

The sixth annual Spring Weekend sponsored by the College of Home Economics will be held Friday and Saturday.

The theme of this year's program is "New Ways in Family Living: Home Economics Yesterday, Today, and Tomorrow."

Approximately 3000 visitors are expected for the program, which will begin at 9 a.m. Friday and continue through Saturday afternoon.

Dr. Ethel J. Alpenfels, anthropologist and professor of education at New York University, will be the main speaker for the weekend. She will talk on "The American Family in a Changing World" at 4 p.m. Friday in Schwab Auditorium.

Registration in Living Center. Registration will be held in the living center of the Home Economics Building. Complete programs will be given out at the registration table.

The annual alumni dinner will be held at the Autoport at 6:45 p.m. Friday. The annual business meeting will be held from 9 to 10 a.m. Saturday in 14 Home Economics. Alumni headquarters will be in 109 Home Economics.

Lunch and dinner will be served in the Home Economics cafeteria from 11:45 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. Friday. Lunch only will be served in the cafeteria on Saturday.

Demonstrations Planned. Demonstrations and exhibits by high school students, University students, and home economics staff members will be given during the weekend. These include displays on art, clothing, accessories, textiles, homemaking, sewing, crafts, and hotels.

Tours of the home management houses and women's residence halls will be given visitors. Several movies will be shown in Home Economics South Building. A fashion show at 3 p.m. Saturday in Schwab Auditorium will close the Spring Weekend.

Times Reporter To Be Matrix Table Speaker

Kathleen McLaughlin, United Nations correspondent for the New York Times, will be the guest speaker for the Matrix Table, to be held at 6:30 p.m., next Tuesday at the Nittany Lion Inn.

The dinner is an annual event sponsored by Theta Sigma Phi, women's national professional national journalism fraternity, to honor outstanding women on campus.

Forty-three invitations for the banquet have been turned in at the Student Union desk in the Hetzel Union Building. Deadline for accepting invitations is Wednesday.

Miss McLaughlin attended Mount Saint Scholastic Academy, and upon graduating began her newspaper work as a reporter on the Daily Globe in Atchison, Kan., her home town. She then became a general news reporter to the Chicago Tribune, and after several years women's news editor.

In 1943 she became Washington correspondent in the New York Times bureau. Two years later she was assigned to overseas coverage. It was as war correspondent that she attended the last press conference in Paris, at which German capitulation was announced. She flew to Belgium and Holland to witness celebrations of the end of the war.

Miss McLaughlin covered all stages of the postwar era throughout western Germany and made several trips into the Soviet Zone. Her stories included the Dachau war crimes trials and the Nuremberg trials, the first postwar elections, the Berlin blockade, Soviet measures and policies, and the reconstruction of German cities, business, and trade. She returned to this country in 1951 and has been assigned to the United Nations.

Miss McLaughlin has been awarded the scroll for the best annual news stories three times by the New York Newspaper Women's Club, of which she was president last year. She is the author of "New Life In Old Lands," which deals with the technical assistance program of the United Nations.

GEORGE ANDERSON

Okay, Sue?

CERTAINLY NOT for Mother's Day . . . but without a doubt unique in itself to have for future reference. And if you've been man enough to still maintain your beard, you are deserving to qualify for the following offer. If your beard measures a minimum of 1/2" and not a hair less, we'll give you a complete sitting and an 8x10 portrait for the trifling sum of $3.50.

BROKE?

If we have your picture in our files, you can order one for Mother's Day and pay for it 30 days later. In fact, our bookkeeping system is so sad, you might not even get a bill for it at all . . . Fat chance!

George Anderson, above, is quite a character. Most of you probably know him anyway. He and his father, Pete, run the Mittany Dell (this will cost you 2 free hamburgers, George). A very recent event in George's history was an 18-month jaunt in Europe and North Africa. George is still looking for the right kind of girl (you'll have to ask him the definition) . . . sort of level-headed as well as attractive. George, that first qualification will be tough to fulfill, but this notoriety ought to keep you in shape for a while anyway.

Judy Dombro . . . let it be known publicly that you are a little doll. Just looked at your proofs and believe they've really captured you. You almost made this week's Okay, Joe . . . except that you didn't let your beard grow! Appointments for Mother's Day delivery are filling up quite rapidly. Make yours now.

Quietly and certainly without fanfare, we're giving away our complete stock of frames . . . at 30% off. Actually, it is a give-away as our regular frame prices are lower than the "suggested selling price."

Sincerely,
b.c.
