She will describe the houses, the plan of the collection, and the special showing rooms, which are designed with settings to match the clothes shown there.

She will also show pictures from the Dior house, showing Dior, the fashion rooms, and the work rooms.

A series of movies will be shown in Home Economics south building throughout the two-day program. Included in two of the movies will be "This is Penn State" and the Centennial film.

Contributions to the exhibit were made by people who have visited abroad and by foreign students enrolled at the University. The exhibit will consist of ceramics, leather goods, textiles, dolls, and similar articles.

Foreign Students to Participate

Modern Art Theme Set for Aquacade

Modern art will step out of the picture frame and into the water at 8 p.m. tomorrow and Saturday in the White Hall pool, as the Women's Recreation Association Swim Club presents the annual aquacade.

"Aqua Art in Water Color" will be depicted through the media of synchronized swimming. Approximately 60 swimmers will carry 11 themes of contemporary works into the forms of stunts and ballet.

The first routine, directed by Karen Peterson and Daisy Zimmerman, portrays a "Carousel." Amid bobbing balloons and silver hoops, seven swimmers bring a playful merry-go-round to life.

Mermaids Perform

Three mermaids in aqua costumes perform in "Sea Scene." Sandra Weichel and Mary Phillips direct the submerging stunts.

"Le Valse" will be enacted by 14 members of the intermediate class, under the instruction of Patricia Olkkonen, seventh semester recreation major. Giant water lilies and golden crowns dance with the ballet chorus.

Four swimming natives will interpret "Tahitian Moods." Accompanied by the chant of drums, they add weird tribal signs to the tropical atmosphere. Barbara Seifert, eighth semester education major, is choreographer.

"Country Folk" Portrayed

"Abstraction" portrays the scene of two country folk in an artist's studio. They spy a lonely canoe floating in the water and . . . that's telling. Marilyn Doan, second semester recreation education major, and Joanne Bedenk, second semester physical education major, direct the routine.

Gold glittering on maroon and black masks costume the four performers in "Masquerade." Ballet leg and water wheel stunts dominate the dramatic number, supervised by Jean McMahon and Sally Cushman, third semester physical education majors.

Six swimmers create the graceful movements of "Lady in Pastel." Joan Reitz, fourth semester home economics major, and Nancy Walter, fourth semester education major, are the choreographers.

Floating stunts will be synchronized by eight red and yellow swimmers in "Storm." Sharks and porpoises will be animated in this number, directed by Mary Lockwood, second semester home economics major, and Blanche Kurtz, second semester medical technician major.

Members of University Christian Association may vote for their 1955-56 officers in 304 Old Main until 5 p.m. today.

Three cabinet members-at-large will be elected from the following nominations: David Faust, Joyce Faust, Norman Hedding, Faith Jackson, and Lois Jones.

low swimmers in "Storm." Sharks and porpoises will be animated in this number, directed by Mary Lockwood, second semester home economics major, and Blanche Kurtz, second semester medical technician major.

Advanced Water Stunts

Miss Olkkonen and Miss Seifert mimic one another with advanced water stunts in "Mirrored Image." The two nymphs are costumed in black and aqua, and maroon and orange.

Four senioritas interpret an aqua rumba—complete with castanets—in a "Bit of Old Spain." White shawls and red roses supply the Spanish atmosphere to the number directed by Carole Ruff, second semester business administration major, and Deborah Dane, second semester home economics major.

Centennial Number

As the final production number, "Centennial" will be presented by the members of the synchronized swimming class. With a lighted candle, each swimmer will glide in formation around a giant birthday cake to the strains of "Blue and White."

Tickets for both performances are available at the main office in White Hall. Admission is free.

The rule goes into effect immediately.

Now you must eliminate twenty-six of them, preferably the ones that have textbooks. Try to choose four courses that have no books at all, but if one does have a book, be sure it's the only edition and has been in use since 1855.

All set? That's all you can do now, but when the next semester starts, be sure to get to your first class early so you can get a back seat and sleep.

GEORGE ANDERSON

Okay, Sue?

George Anderson, above, is quite a character. Most of you probably know him anyway. He and his father, Pete, run the Nittany Dell (this will cost you 2 free hamburgers, George). A very recent event in George's history was an 18-month jaunt in Europe and North Africa. George is still looking for the right kind of girl (you'll have to ask him the definition) . . . sort of level-headed as well as attractive. George, that first qualification will be tough to fulfill, but this notoriety ought to keep you in shape for a while anyway.

Sincerely,
